A bill embodying the plans of the Maryland Outdoor Life Federation calls for reorganization of the conservation department to provide seven no-salaried members appointed by the Governor for a period of seven years, the terms to be staggered. This department would deal with problems relating to the conservation and restoration of the natural resources of the State.

It provides further for several divisions within the department—the Chesapeake Bay and tidewater, the Chesapeake biological laboratory, game and inland fisheries and a division of education.

SCHOOL BOARD FORMALLY ACCEPTS FUND ADDITION

Government To Give $2,664 More To Apply On Two Buildings

A resolution was formally passed by the Board of Education of Garrett county at its meeting last Friday accepting the superseding offer as made by the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, the offer carrying an additional grant of $2,664 as part payment upon the additions and alterations to the Oakland Elementary and Kitzmiller High school buildings.

Work upon the two buildings has already begun, F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Education, stated, with the completion date of both buildings being set at July 31, 1939, with as many additional days added as the weather in the meantime makes it impossible for the work to be carried on.

Present at the School Board meeting Friday were Walter W. Dawson, president; Walter W. Savage, vice-president, and Mr. Rathbun.

The board also gave further consideration to the matter of closing the Shook Shop one-teacher school. Superintendent Rathbun said there was a small number of pupils enrolled. The school is located on the Loch Lynn-Gorman road, about four miles east of Loch Lynn and the pupils of the Shook Shop school would be transported to the Loch Lynn school.

Mr. Rathbun said a newly constructed piece of road over part of the route to the school had not yet been accepted by the State and formally opened to traffic, which had delayed the closing of the school.

OVER HUNDRED LICENSES ARE ISSUED IN DECEMBER

New Law Cut Down Number; 1938, However, Was Biggest Year on Record

Although the new marriage law requiring a waiting period of 48 hours between time of application and granting of the license cut down on the number to some extent, a glance at the records for December shows 111 marriage licenses issued.

This made a total of 2287 for the entire year as compared with 1828 issued in 1937. Prior to 1935 the number of licenses reached about 1,400, but that was before other states began to restrict the issuance of licenses.

From the standpoint of revenue there is expected to be about $50 per month less received at the clerk's office on account of the new law. The decrease is lessened somewhat by the necessity of paying one dollar for the application, and then $2.00 when the application is granted. This makes $3.00 for a marriage license in place of $2.00 prior to the new law. There were 94 applications for licenses after December 8, when the license law went into effect.

Five months during 1938 had more than 200 licenses issued, April, June, August, September and October. More than half the couples were from West Virginia, with Pennsylvania running second.

The list by months was as follows:

January	113
February	127
March	144
April	213
May	168
June	249
July	183
August	286
September	260
October	240
November	190
December	111
Total	2287

TWO FRIENDSVILLE GIRLS RUN AWAY BUT ARE FOUND

Were In Hands of Cumberland Police When Sheriff Owens Calls

Two young Friendsville girls, who said they went to Cumberland to seek work, ran right into the arms of the city police there and are now back at their homes following a brief search by their parents.

The girls, Dorothy Bishop, 14, and Pauline Hinebaugh, 16, were apprehended shortly before ten o'clock on Tuesday evening after running away from the Salvation Army Citadel in Cumberland when Brigadier B. L. Phillipson questioned them.

They had asked for a night's lodging, claiming to be from Frostburg. They were going to seek work in the morning, they said. When Brigadier Phillipson sought more information, indicating he suspected they were runaways, they fled—into the arms of the officers. He had called police immediately and the girls had gone less than a block when caught.

They told police they were from Frostburg too, and gave what police said were fictitious names until a call came from Sheriff J. W. Owens, in Oakland, when they told the whole story. The girls' parents had been seeking them in Oakland on Tuesday. They were seen by an acquaintance during the day on Third street here.

They ran away Monday morning after ostensibly starting for school. They said they stayed at a hotel in Oakland Monday night, the clerk giving them lodging despite their lack of funds. Sheriff Owens went to Cumberland for them Tuesday night.

$20,000 DAMAGES SOUGHT BY ACCIDENT VICTIMS

Plaintiffs Were Injured In Cumberland Two Months Ago

The city government of Cumberland Friday faced two damage suits asking a total of $20,000 for injuries received in an accident on the city's "problem curve," in the 700 block of Washington street.

The suits, filed in the Circuit Court by Attorney Lewis M. Wilson, were brought by Stanley Stark, 24, and Milton Turney, 18 years old, both of Oakland.

The suit of Turney was brought in the name of his father, Oscar Turney, of Oakland.

Each of the plaintiffs asks $10,000 as a result of injuries received when their car crashed into a pole on the curve early on the morning of November 6. Turney remains in Allegany Hospital in Cumberland, and is still in a serious condition, according to reports of the hospital authorities.

Papers filed in the action against the city set forth that the plaintiffs were permanently injured and disfigured and charge the city with negligence in permitting the "dangerous" situation complained of to exist.

The street was improperly constructed and graded, the complainants declare, and the city was at fault in permitting the hazard to continue after having it repeatedly called to its attention.

Flue Fire Causes No Damage At Home Of John Shaffer

The Oakland Fire Department answered a call from the home of John Shaffer, in the Pleasant Valley section, at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, January 2. No damage resulted as the flames were confined to the flue and were under control shortly after the call was relayed to the Department.

The Department wishes to gratefully acknowledge a donation of $25 from the Half-Price Stores. In presenting the donation Mr. Feld, proprietor of the stores, thanked the Department for its cooperation during the past year.

Kingwood Hi Quint Beats Oakland 48-29 On Local Court

Kingwood High school's basketball team gave Oakland High school its second defeat this season in a game Tuesday evening on the local court. The final score was 48-29. Kingwood led all the way. Wolfe, six-foot three-inch pivot man; Crogan, a fast cutting forward and a well-balanced team was too much for Oakland.

Kley, Oakland guard, scored six field goals and four fouls for a total of 16 points. Wolfe scored three field goals for Oakland; Sharps 1 and Fazzalarl 1. Wolfe for Kingwood scored 15 points and Crogan 14. Oakland was also beaten earlier in the season at Kingwood.

PUBLIC MEETING TURNED INTO A "COURT TRIAL"

Several Take Issue With Commissioners on Purchase of Road Machinery; Recommendations Are Very Few

ONE MOTION ADOPTED

A public meeting called for last Saturday afternoon at the Garrett County Court House in Oakland supposedly to discuss proposed legislation and make recommendations to the Garrett County delegation was almost a blank as far as the original purpose was concerned, the discussion (if one may term it as such) being turned into a "trial" for the Board of County Commissioners because they had purchased certain road machinery for use in speeding up WPA road project work.

Even this question was not brought to a head by a motion criticising or upholding the Commissioners for the action they had taken, and the meeting, after about three hours' of argument, rather abruptly came to an end as people seemed to tire of the futility of it all and left the court room.

Prior to the meeting coming to a close, however, a motion carried 34 to 26, which was to the effect that the roads of the county should be retained under the State Roads system unless the Board of County Commissioners can show the legislators and taxpayers that it is more economical for them to be taken care of by the Commissioners.

This one motion brought about discussions lasting about an hour, some wanting to know how this could be demonstrated. Senator Clifford Friend announced that he had already pledged himself during the pre-election campaign to return the roads to the county if such a step were possible.

Mr. Friend also intimated that a number of legislators were of the opinion that if the roads were turned back to the counties that a portion of the road machinery now in use by the State would have to be purchased by the counties at an appraised value, such a stipulation probably appearing in the present road law.

Cheston H. Browning, County Commissioner, termed much of the State owned equipment as out of date, and that if the legislature turned the roads back to the counties under such a stipulation, that they would be burdening the taxpayers unnecessarily. "The Commissioners could not be held responsible for this," he said.

William Miller, William R. Browning and a few others, criticized the Commissioners for purchasing the road machinery, amounting to approximately $40,000. Equipment costing about $20,000 has already been delivered and is being demonstrated over the territory by representatives of the Alban Tractor Company, of Baltimore.

Purchase of the balance of equipment, which included stone crushers and compressors, has been held up, pending further developments and a further study of the problem. Paul Friend, a member of the Commissioners' Board, expressed himself that perhaps the board had acted too hastily, but reasserted his conviction that roads were badly needed in the county and that their plan was workable. The machinery was purchased after consulting with the State Roads Commission in Baltimore and no bids were asked.

Attesting to the fact that roads in outlying districts were in poor condition were several taxpayers from Friendsville and other communities in the county.

Those criticising the County Commissioners were fearful that the tax rate would be raised, but the Commissioners gave the assurance that no raise was anticipated beyond a few cents and possibly none at all.

About 150 people were attending the meeting when it opened. Truman C. Bittinger was named chairman and Darwin B. Martin, secretary. Legislators were asked to step to the front to hear all the recommendations that were expected to be forthcoming. Senator Friend opened the question of roads—and it began.

When a few who could "still take it" remained and the road motion was passed, Major E. B. Garey, representing the Deep Creek Lake Association, presented recommendations for legislation as follows:

The three-day fishing license be extended to a week; issuance of a one-day license; that boats on the lake be required to carry life preservers for each passenger; that surf-boat riders be required to wear life preservers and proper head-gear; that commercial beaches be required to keep on hand six grappling hooks; that the lake be closed to fishing until July 1, and daily between 8 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The Association also recommended that screening was not necessary over the tunnel of the power house, that the loss of fish through this tunnel was greatly over-estimated. C. E. MacMurray, in charge of operations here for the Associated Gas and Electric Company, explained that game fish would not go more than fifteen feet below the surface and therefore would never get into the tunnel.

No definite motion recommending the enactment of the proposed rules governing Deep Creek Lake was made. The meeting then adjourned by general consent.

Mrs. F. E. Rathbun was hostess to a few of her friends at a bridge luncheon at her home last Wednesday.

LOCAL WELFARE BOARD IS MANAGING DIRECT RELIEF

Has Been In Hands of Commissioners Since April, 1937

All direct relief, heretofore administered by the County Commissioners since April, 1937, has been turned back to the Welfare Board, it was decided at their meeting this week.

This order was to take effect immediately and according to Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the County Welfare Board, the Commissioners have agreed to expend $2,000 monthly for general public assistance. An order was signed giving this amount each month for three months.

Miss Miller said there were about 150 cases coming under this section of relief. The Welfare Board has had charge of old-age pensions, aid to dependent children, and aid to the needy blind. All direct relief, therefore, will now be handled by the Welfare Board, for at least three months, and it is understood commodity distribution is being started again.

The County Commissioners also announced this week the appointment of Roy Sowers, Kitzmiller, and Harry Hinebaugh, Oakland, as constables. At the conclusion of their last meeting they appointed Julius C. Renninger as attorney to the Board.

PARTY ENJOYS WINTER SPORTS IN THIS COUNTY

State Forester Was Guide To Baltimore Group In Forest Recreational Areas

The possibility of developing Garrett county as an ideal place for winter sports for Marylanders was demonstrated in recent days by State Forester F. W. Besley when he conducted a group of Baltimore business and professional men to Oakland and vicinity for several days' visit over New Year's.

The party was quartered in log cabins erected by the Forestry Department, and the group was taken daily on skiing trips and enjoyed skating excursions on the New Germany lake, which is frozen over.

The party also visited the Swallow Falls, Deep Creek Lake area and the site of the proposed fifty-acre fishing, bathing and skating lake on the Herrington Manor project.

In the Potomac Forest and Savage River section excellent ski trails were shown as well as sites for toboggan and sled runs in the New Germany and Big Run developments.

Great Opportunities Seen

Work of the Forestry department in opening camping and recreational areas was inspected by the group, and several expressed amazement that more Maryland people had not taken advantage of the opportunity it offered for skiing, sledding, and skating.

It is expected that another group will be organized later, coming by train from Baltimore to Piedmont and then going to camp Bond by truck.

Several visitors stated they wished to return to Garrett county during the maple sugar season, and that they also intended to return in the summer on camping tours in the forests, rather than going to Maine.

CITY COUNCIL TO PREPARE LEGISLATION FOR PASSAGE

Laws Would Make Possible Community Building and Give Town A Law For Registering Voters

WILL COLLECT BACK TAXES

Definite steps toward a registration law for the town of Oakland for municipal election purposes, and the preparation of a proposed law creating the power to issue bonds for the construction of a community building, were taken up at the monthly meeting of the Mayor and City Council Tuesday evening.

Their attorney, Julius Renninger, was instructed to prepare both for possible passage into law at the present session of the Legislature, which convened yesterday.

The bond issue proposal will have a referendum attached, giving the people of Oakland the opportunity to vote on the question. The WPA recently approved a community building wherein the federal government would furnish about $51,800 for construction of a building costing approximately $74,000. As the town has no authority to issue bonds without legislative enactment, a new law will be necessary before the project can proceed. The Oakland Fire Department members stated several months ago that they would be responsible for raising the money to repay the bond issue. The community building has spacious quarters for the fire department.

Mr. Renninger stated the registration law may not be enacted soon enough to put it into effect for this year's election. Another subject to be incorporated in the proposed law is one doing away with the citizens' meeting or "primary" and substituting a system for proper filing of candidates.

To Collect Back Taxes

Arthur Lawton, the new city clerk, was ordered to give notice to the people that all taxes due prior to the year 1938 must be paid on or before February 1, 1939, or the properties would be advertised for sale according to law.

Bills amounting to about $1,300 were ordered paid.

PETER COMMENDED AND REBUKED

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 16:13-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.—Matthew 16:16.

"What think ye of Christ?"

This question, which was asked by Jesus Himself (Matt. 22: 42), is the touchstone that tries men, and churches, organizations, and movements. The answer to it determines character, condition, and destiny. As we study the life of Peter and see how he responded to the question of Jesus, let us not fail to apply the truth to ourselves and to those to whom we minister. This is indeed

I. A Crucial Question (vv. 13-16).

With His crucifixion now only six months away our Lord in preparation for it is about to make a more definite claim to Messiahship, and thus to establish the truth in the minds of His disciples. He therefore asks this all-important question about Himself.

First, it is a general query, "Whom do men say that I am?" The answer (v. 14) indicates that the common opinion concerning Christ was a very high one. He had made an impression on the people of His time, and this has been true down through the ages. Even those who do not believe on Him admit that He was "the ideal representative and guide to humanity," or the person before whom "everyone would kneel." But beautiful tributes to His character and leadership are worse than meaningless unless they lead to a personal confession of Him as Lord and Saviour.

The question becomes personal as He asks, "Whom do ye say that I am?" That question no one can escape. We cannot refuse to answer. Neutrality is impossible. Whatever we do or say, or do not do or say, is a decision.

Peter's answer is really the sum and substance of Christian doctrine. He recognized Him as the Messiah, the fulfillment of all Hebrew prophecy, and as the Son of the Living God, the Redeemer and Savior of men, the One in whom centers all Christian faith.

II. A Divine Revelation (vv. 17-20).

Peter had been ready to be taught by the Holy Spirit, and therefore made a confession of Christ which was not conceived in the mind of a man but was a conviction born of the Spirit of God (cf. I Cor. 12:3).

Upon Peter's confession, which was thus really a divine revelation of the person and work of Christ, the Church is established, Christ Himself being the chief cornerstone (I Pet. 2:7) with Peter himself as one of the apostles built into its very foundation (Eph. 2:20).

Note that Christ calls it "my church." It is His Body, and He as the Head rules over it. The gates of Hades, that is, the wicked powers of the unseen world, while they now seemingly have great power against the Church, shall not ultimately prevail. We have a victorious Christ.

The giving of the keys, and the authority to bind or loose have been variously interpreted. It would seem to be clear, however, that this was not intended to be any personal power to be used by Peter, and quite evidently not to be transferred by him to others. It was rather the authority to admit men into the kingdom of God as they fulfill His provisions for entrance, and to declare that those who do not enter by way of Christ must be forever barred from its sacred precincts.

III. The Shadow of the Cross (vv. 21-25).

The cross of Christ casts its shadow over the little group as Jesus begins to show to His disciples (v. 21) what He is to suffer as the Saviour of the world. The city of Jerusalem exalted to heaven by its opportunities and privileges is to be the place where He is to be nailed to the tree. "Where roses ought to bloom, sin has often planted thorns." Peter in an outburst of affectionate folly tries to hinder Christ from going to the cross, and becomes for the moment the servant of Satan. He "meant well," but it is not enough to have good intentions.

The cross of Christ calls for the cross of the Christian (v. 24). Note well that this does not refer to little acts of so-called "self-denial," but rather to the denial of self. It means that self-will is set aside and God's will becomes paramount in the life V. 24). It means the abandonment of selfish motives and desires, the losing of life for Christ's sake. Thus only do we find the real fulfillment of life (v. 25).

For God to Decide

There are those who say, and that continually, that life is too short. That depends. What are you doing with it? For some things it is; for others it is not. In any case, it is not for us to make any declaration on that point. God knows whether it is, or is not, too short. And it is safe to leave that matter with him.
—Christian Conservator.

Scoop's Column

BY Scoop Himself

Last week when the cool breezes were blowing, I uncovered on my desk a post card from George M. Brown, of Loch Lynn, who left there several weeks ago for Florida.

Fruits and flowers and balmy breezes
Winter gardens everywhere;
Lovely homes and groves and palm trees
Every day the best of fare.

* * *

He says he sympathizes with the people on the Mt. Top.

* * *

Well, I'd enjoy being in Florida, but since I'm not, there's no use not enjoying what we have in Garrett county. People in Florida can't skate, sledride or ski. They can't be sure that they won't be blown away by a hurricane.

Anyway, they can't enjoy the dry and pure air that we have, even if it is a bit colder air than they get there. There are a lot of things which compensate the Garrett countians who remain here throughout the year. Most of those who leave here always seem mighty tickled to get back.

And there is absolutely no complaint on the summer-like weather this week.

Class In Political Isms

Socialism has been defined to mean that if you have two cows you give one to your neighbor. Under communism you give both cows to the government, which gives you back some of the milk. Under Fascism you keep the cows but give the milk to the government, which gives you back some of it. Under New Dealism you shoot one cow, milk the other, and then pour the milk down the sink.

This year I expect to reserve my New Year's resolutions until about September. Then I shall resolve to "shop early for Christmas," so that Christmas Eve doesn't roll around and find me frantically rushing hither and thither.

* * *

The way it looked, some of the ones stirring up dissatisfaction at the public meeting Saturday were the ones who were sore because they didn't have the opportunity to sell the county its machinery themselves.

On Tuesday, January 3, at 5 o'clock p. m., the earth was in perihelion, or in other words distant from the sun only 91,312,900 miles. The earth will be in aphelion on July 5, 1939, at 3:00 p. m., distant from the sun 94,424,500 miles.

While the sun is closer the earth in winter its rays are slanting and not as forceful as in the summer when the sun is more distant.

* * *

However, from the warm weather of Tuesday and yesterday, maybe the sun got another million miles closer the earth than the scientists expected.

BITTINGER

The New Year began with mild winter weather, but with a high wind prevailing throughout the first two days.

While cutting timber off the Ashby place, near this village, last Friday morning, Harvey Knox was seriously injured about the head and shoulder by a falling limb, but at this writing the unfortunate man is recovering satisfactorily.

Orval Glotfelty motored to Frostburg on business one day last week.

Leon Curran returned to his studies at Raleigh, N. C., last Sunday after having spent the Christmas season with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Curran, at the Lutheran parsonage.

District Game Warden, Richard Browning, Oakland, accompanied by Messrs. Wilt and Bowman, passed through this village last Monday.

Communion services were held in the Lutheran church in this village last Sunday morning.

E. F. Weimer, of near Avilton, was a business caller in this village one evening last week.

F. M. Bittinger and Elbert Buckle spent Monday in Oakland on business.

Dorothy Brenneman, who is employed near Bittinger, returned to her duties after having spent the holidays with her parents here. She was accompanied as far as Cumberland by her brother, Oney, on Monday.

The sugar timber on the Thomas B. Wiley farm is being rapidly cut and removed by Arthur Resh, who recently purchased it.

Homemakers' Column

Edited by Miss Mildred Barton, Home Demonstration Agent, Oakland

"I Resolve"—Homemaker Style

When it comes to making New Year's resolutions there are those who do and those who don't, the believers and the skeptics. Of the believers there are the wavering and the steadfast, those who resolve and fall by the wayside, and those who resolve and hold to the straight and narrow. Among the skepties those who keep resolutions without making them, outnumber those content to drift with the wind.

But in the end, all these groups add up to one. They are all members of the great class of folk who are not quite satisfied with what they made of their lives, their efforts, and their money during the past year. And so, for Garrett county homemakers who feel they would like to make a fresh start in 1939 here is a set of new year's resolutions, drawn up by the Bureau of Home Economics, in the U. S. Department of Agriculture:

"I Resolve——" To Make A Spending Plan. No list of new year's resolutions would be complete without the mention of the family budget—a plan designed to help get the most good from every dollar the family has to spend.

To Plan The Family Diet. A weekly shopping list—a set of menus to match—a systematic tour of the markets—will do much for the health, wealth, and general welfare of any family. Make weekly plans, and in these plans remember the mottoes o good nutrition. Among them are, "at least a pint of milk daily for every member of the family, preferably a quart for children" or "four or more servings of vegetables and fruits daily"—at least one of the vegetables should be leafy green or yellow—"tomatoes or citrus fruits several times a week," "eggs, almost daily for small children, several times a week for adults."

To Plan The Family Home Produced Food. The home produced food plan has its place in the family earning-spending-saving scheme, and no part of it should be left to chance.

To Read The Labels On Foods. Read the labels to know what you buy, don't guess. Judge howm uch you are getting by net weight or by volume, not by the size of the package.

To Be An Honest Cook The family pays for the food you prepare, feed it to the family, not to the garbage can or the kitchen sink. Peel potatoes and other vegetables and fruits "tissue-thin". Or even better, bake or steam in their jackets. When boiling vegetables use no more water than necessary so you can serve the soaked out minerals and vitamins in the gravy or in soup. And save the oil from canned salmon for its valuable vitamin D.

To Make My Kitchen A Better Workshop. Waste motion, unnecessary retracing of steps, stooping, and reaching in the kitchen, steal energies that belong to the real homemakers job. Study your kitchen. Be your own efficiency expert. Are the equipment and utensils grouped into work centers? Are the vegetable brush, colander, and pearing knife within easy reach of the kitchen sink? Can you mix a cake or get a pie ready for the oven without moving the worktable? Do you work progressively "around" the kitchen, or are you constantly criss-crossing the room?

To Sit At Work Whenever Possible. Kitchen stools with backs come in correct heights for different work surfaces. Ironing boards are now being made with adjustable heights for sitting and standing. Vegetables may be prepared and batters mixed from a comfortable kitchen chair or stool with a back.

To Make The Family Meal A Happy Occasion. Dinner time is the family social hour in many a home. The food is a symbol of the family's well-being, let it be offered at its simple best, well chosen, well prepared, well served. But in this connection the food is only a symbol, while the family gathering is an occasion worthy of the best homemaking effort.

BALANCING YOUR HEALTH ACCOUNT A GOOD CUSTOM

People Should Take A Leaf From Custom Of Financial Concerns

"Take a leaf from the custom of the financial concerns at this season and start the year by having your health account balanced," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, advises Marylanders, particularly grown-ups, as 1939 opens.

"In the reports of the recent surveys of health conditions throughout the country by the U. S. Public Health Service and other national agencies, particular emphasis is laid on the steady increase in illness and deaths from chronic diseases, particularly diseases of the heart and arteries; diseases of the kidneys; the mental and nervous diseases; rheumatism; cancer; tuberculosis; diabetes; chronic diseases of the gall bladder, and the complications of syphilis.

"We are inclined to associate most of these diseases—with the exception of tuberculosis—with persons beyond middle age, but the nation-wide survey showed that a marked increase in illness from chronic ailments begins in those just reaching maturity—young men and young women of twenty or thereabouts— and reaches its maximum in old age. So the advice to check up on your physical resources applies to the young as well as to those farther on in life.

"If you haven't had it done recently," he continued, "go to your doctor for a complete checking up of your physical assets and liabilities. If his audit of your physical capital shows general or specific weakness, your doctor will tell you what you can do to conserve your resources to the best advantage. You may find that you need to slow up a bit, possibly make some change in your dietary habits or in your daily routine. If your doctor finds that your physical liabilities exceed your assets it is better for you to know about them so you can budget your resources intelligently.

"Nearly all of the chronic diseases have slow beginnings, but the majority may be detected by means of a careful medical examination. In most instances early recognition, prompt attention and a readjustment of activities under the direction of the family physician will do much to check the advance of the disease, prevent suffering, and prolong life and usefulness."

LEGISLATORS FAVORING SALES TAX IN MARYLAND

Rising Tide Of Sentiment For Such A Levy Stands Out From Answers Obtained In Survey

A rising tide of sentiment for a sales tax stands out from answers by members of the 1939 Legislature to an Associated Press questionaire on the sales tax program.

Contrasting with earlier returns which showed an almost solid alignment against a consumers' sales tax, the final count showed advocates of such a measure, while still in the minority, had gained strength from which introduction of a sales tax law may spring when the legislators convene at Annapolis next month.

Increases in real estate taxes and personal property taxes also were looked upon favorably by some members, whereas in earlier returns the solons turned thumbs down on such proposals.

There was unanimous support for the income tax, and some indicated an increase in the tax would be given consideration.

In addition to revenue-raising problems, the returns indicated the legislators will consider changes in the state conservation commission, with revision regarded as likely, and will tackle the county roads problem.

The returning of such roads to the counties' control, taking them from the State Roads Commission, will be a question up for settlement with the legislators apparently divided over which is the best policy.

Oil Company Employes of Long Service Are Honored

Twenty-five employes having 30 or more years of service with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were honored in Baltimore at a luncheon given by W. H. Evans, manager of the company's sales in this area on December 27. Congratulating the long-service employes, Mr. Evans pointed out that their employment with the company totaled 885 years, or an average of 35 years per man.

Prominent among those honored was Frank M. King, cashier of the Baltimore office, who had the longest service of those present. Mr. King started with the company in its Canton refinery in 1894 as a messenger and is completingh is 45th year of employment. Two present were from Washington and the others are employed in Baltimore.

The veteran employes attribuated their long service to the "security" which had been provided for them by the company's sick and accident benefits, life insurance, thrift plan and pensions.

Mr. Evans revealed that of the 2,000 employes of the company in this area, including refinery workers, 21 per cent have service of more than 20 years, and 39 per cent more than 10 years.

The annual payroll for this group totals approximately $4,000,000.

The company's refinery in Baltimore was started in 1892 with a working force of 75. Gasoline, which was an unavoidable by-product of the refining of crude oil for kerosene and wax was regarded as a nuisance. It was run into ponds and set afire. Later the gasoline was used to light street lamps in Baltimore, and this is believed to be the first use of gasoline in this section of the country.

Crude oil was originally received from the Pennsylvania oil fields in barrels. Later a pipeline was built, and ultimately extending as far west as Oklahoma, 1300 miles away. Tank steamers gradually supplanted the pipeline, and all crude is received at the refinery by tanker today.

Mr. Evans said that the products of the refinery now are distributed principally to Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, and North and South Carolina.

Orville M. Marquis nnd members of his family were forced to flee from their home in Cumberland last Wednesday, December 29, when fire was discovered in the basement of the dwelling. On the first floor of the house were Mr. and Mrs. Marquis with their daughters Ruth, Betty and Jean and Mrs. Russell School, of Washington, D. C., and the latter's young son Charles. The daughters escaped from the house still clad in their night clothes.

In the second floor apartment were William Baird, 93, and his nurse, Mrs. Emma E. Chisholm, who had to be rescued by the city firemen. Mr. Marquis was ill at the time of the fire. He is a brother of Mrs. Harold H. Harned, of Oakland, and is well known in Oakland.

The fire ate into the first floor fron the basement and the entire house was badly damaged by smoke.

TAKE A LOOK AT PANTRY SHELVES WHEN CLEANING

With the Fall housecleaning practically out of the way, and everything looking spic and span, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, advises housekeepers, as an extra precaution, to take a look at their pantry shelves before settling down to winter routine.

"Be sure," he said, "that you have not left a box of roach powder or a can of rat poison on the shelf with your baking powder, or a jar of poisonous silver polish or something else equally dangerous, side by side with your pancake flour, your flavoring extracts and spices, your tea and coffee cannisters, your sugar and salt shakers, and the rest of the equipment in daily use. When you leave things of this sort around you are running a terrific risk.

"Over 90 cases of poisoning due to a meat product, accidentally, heavily contaminated, in some way, with arsenic, were reported to the State Department of Health, recently from the Western part of the State. All of the cases were traced to a common source. Fortunately, through the prompt action of the physicians, local hospitals, the county health department and the county authorities, all of the cases were treated promptly, and all recovered. Some of the victims were critically ill; many had a mighty close call.

"Things of this sort, never happen intentionally. They are usually due to carelessness in keeping poisonous compounds in the same place with household supplies; to the absence of labels; or to absent-mindedly failing to read the labels even when the containers are properly marked.

"Accidents of this sort can happen anywhere and in any home—and are likely to happen—unless every possible precaution is taken to prevent them. There are a few simple common-sense safeguards which can be followed without any trouble.

"FIRST: Have a special place for any supplies that may be a source of danger. Don't keep insecticides, plant sprays, rat poison, any other poisons or chemicals used for household purposes, in the kitchen cabinet, the pantry or on the shelvees where you keep household supplies, food, pots and pans or any other utensils used in preparing food for the table.

"SECOND: No matter where you keep these dangerous supplies, see that every container is properly labeled. Replace the labels when they fall off. Dispose safely of the containers, when their contents have been used.

"THIRD: Keep these dangerous supplies—and of course, all drugs, and medicines—out of reach of children, whether of the family or visitors."

MAILING OF WEDDING LICENSES IS HELD LEGAL

Assistant Attorney General Says Application Must Be Made In Person

Maryland marriage licenses may be sent to the applicants by mail but the would-be bride or groom must apply for the license in person, an assistant attorney general's ruling held last Friday afternoon.

Assistant Attorney General Charles T. LeViness notified Circuit Court Clerk as Snow Hill that a license could be mailed "to either of the contracting parties" nfter the passage of the 48 hours required under the new State law.

The ruling will allow out-of-state residents to return home after applying for a license, instead of spending two days within the State. However, they must return to the county where the license is obtained for the marriage ceremony to be peformed.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 5, 1939

IT LOOKS LIKE POLITICAL TRICKERY—

Saturday's public meeting, called to discuss proposed legislation, resolved itself into nothing but a political court with two prosecutors and their "silent assistants", but without a jury, defense attorney or a judge.

The prosecutors were bent upon putting the three new County Commissioners "on the spot" for their purchase of road machinery, and they cloaked their intent behind the curtains of "increased taxes," "exceeding their prerogative," and putting the "cart before the horse."

Because of this, a number of people appeared to side with the prosecution, apparently unaware of what seemed perfectly clear to some to be underneath it all.

There is no question about the interest of people in taxes. Nobody wants taxes raised, and it is safe to assume that the Commissioners realize this. They know that to place an increased burden on the people at this time would not only be political suicide for themselves, but would cause many citizens to become delinquent in their payments.

However, they realize that the people need roads and evolved a plan to give them to the people, which, according to their explanation, would be workable, would build more than twice as many roads in the county annually, and the machinery in the course of two or three years, pay for itself.

Then came the political scheme. If the three Republican county commissioners could be discredited with the taxpayers, perhaps removed from office, there would be three vacancies to be filled by Democratic Governor, Herbert R. O'Conor.

The purchase of road machinery offered a good opening.

So there appeared Saturday at a legislative meeting, a group of political enemies of the commissioners (and not all of them Democrats, either) to "put them on the spot," and they did. William Miller and William R. Browning shot the bullets as others around them did the moulding. They didn't make it look any too favorable for the commissioners, which is just what they wanted to do.

The Republican doesn't want any tax increase any more than any citizen, but it believes the people should be well informed on what is taking place. It believes that perhaps the Commissioners may have been too hasty in their decision to purchase $40,000 worth of machinery. But before any citizen or taxpayer condemns them for this act, they should study the road situation, the plan worked out by them, and get the information in a direct way—not from some political enemy whose only purpose is to discredit them.

The Republican also believes that transactions at the office of the County Commissioners should be open to the public. The Republican wants the taxpayers of the county to be enlightened on all matters affecting their interests.

The Commissioners have stated that it is not their intention to increase taxes. They were elected by a majority of the voters of this county to run their business for four years, and evidently the people had faith in them then.

There should still be that faith—until one finds out that they have betrayed that confidence.

But be very sure that your information comes from a reliable and intelligent source.

A JOB THAT MUST BE DONE

Little difficulty should be experienced by Congressman Martin of Massachusetts in securing support for his plan to have the political activities of the WPA subjected to a thoroughgoing investigation. That there is need for some sort of action is freely admitted by men of both parties. Harry L. Hopkins himself has expressed his concern over reports of irregularities. The Senate Campaign Investigating Committee, though made up largely of Democrats, has unearthed evidence so damaging and so conclusive that it cannot be ignored.

With the election over, any inquiry may seem to be a case of locking the stable door after the horse is stolen. But in this instance, the nation must not let bygones be bygones. The freedom of the ballot is at stake and this is an issue of surpassing importance to every American. So long as any group of people is not at liberty to vote as it pleases and so long as some men think it is their right to put political pressure on other men, just so long are democratic processes menaced.

That there was wrong-doing in both the primaries and elections of 1938 is all too clear. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that in some states, notably Pennsylvania and Kentucky, the matter reached the proportions of actual scandal. When WPA workers were bludgeoned into changing their registration from Republican to Democratic or are required to make campaign contributions as the price of holding their jobs a situation is created which the whole country must face. To permit it to continue is to risk the possibility of utterly corrupt politics and a bought electorate.

Whether a Congressional inquiry will unearth the whole dirty truth is, of course, a question. Many witnesses, with real stories to tell, will be afraid to give testimony. Then again, some of the investigators are bound to be blind partisans and will do all they can to keep the New Deal from being stained. But Congress seems to be the only competent body to undertake the study and we can but hope, first, that it will be willing to do the job, and, second, that the job will be done with a fine regard for the public interest.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Councilmen Spedden, Bolden, Helbig and Bosley, at city council meeting, passed a motion providing for drafting of an ordinance for issuance of bonds, amount $30,000, to establish water works and sewerage for Oakland. Councilman Thomas Little was too ill to attend. The vacancy caused by resignation of President Fraley had not yet been filled.

Charles Bolden, oldest living settler of Oakland, was credited with being able to tell more anecdotes of a local nature than any other man of his age. He was 72, born in Grantsville district, moved to Oakland in 1838. He related of his first year in Oakland in which snow fell every month of the year except July and August.

A severe storm blocked railroad traffic and caught people unprepared. It was a boon to blacksmiths as people were caught with the shoes of their horses "smooth," and they rushed to remedy the situation.

Percy Proctor, spending the winter in Chicago, in a letter to the editor, complimented Dr. Henry McComas upon opening his sanitarium. He said Oakland at that time was both neater and cleaner than Chicago.

At St. Mark's Lutheran church at Deer Park, Miss Lillie May Lashorn became the bride of Oscar J. Harvey, on December 31.

During December Clerk E. Z. Tower issued 26 marriage licenses.

Master Harland L. Jones returned to Wheeling where he was a student in Linsley Institute.

The Loch Lynn Heights Hotel was sold to the Baltimore Building and Loan Association for $17,648.

The New Year started with six inches of snow. Then the mercury dropped to 24 degrees below zero.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Thomas Little, merchant, disposed of his stock and household goods and left Oakland for McKeesport, Pa., where he had employment with a creamery company.

Neil Fraley, who recently returned to civilian life, left for Philadelphia to work for an insurance concern. Randall Ravenscroft, in the Aviation Corps, stationed in England, returned to his home at Accident. Those honorably discharged from the Student's Army Training Corps were Frank Lyon, Robert Sliger, Victor Harvey, Loyal Riley, Donald Sincell, Dana Moore, Julius Littman, Dix Dawson, Townshend Naylor, Everett Casteel. Guy Hinebaugh, Joseph Compton and Walter Janoske were honorable discharged from the army. Charles Garrett, Deer Park, and Walter Kahl, of Oakland, also returned from England.

Official notice came that Corporal Percy Proctor Kildow, U. S. Marine, had been killed in action on November 1. (The local Legion post is named for him.)

A proposal to erect a memorial for the soldiers of the county in appreciation of their services in the World War, was receiving much response. Many letters poured into The Republican office.

Miss Rebecca Thayer underwent an operation at Cumberland.

Time to Dig Out

RELIEF FUND REFORM

The question beggars and the stump dodgers who are still wearing the colored glasses of the New Deal continue active, even locally, with regard to the subject of relief fund distribution.

Whenever one proposes reform in the handling of relief funds, particularly for the purpose of reducing the unconscionable waste that has so long obtained and placing the work on a merit basis instead of letting the favored politicians run away with it, some fellow ups with a yell that such constructive criticism means the sudden abandonment of all relief and the starvation of people without jobs.

It seems superfluous to remind such narrow-minded persons that this stump dodging so ridiculous as to be laughable, and that it would be laughed at were it not for the seriousness of the subject and the pity obtaining over the employment of such loose rhetorie.

The mishandling of relief funds by the New Deal administration, however, has been so flagrantly wrong that there is every indication the new Congress will take early steps to correct the situation. In fact, warnings to this end have already assumed the proportions of an approaching storm, which everybody expects to burst on the opening days of the new Congress. The Senate Committee on Campaign Expenditures is expected to file its report of the widespread use of the WPA to influence the primaries and elections, and that will start things. The prospect strongly supports the opinion expressed by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson that the main purpose of the President's quick shift of Hopkins into his cabinet, the switching of Aubrey Williams to the NYA and the appointment of Col. Harrington, of the Army engineers, to run the WPA was to sidestep the hurricane.

Whatever ignorant or prejudiced persons may say in criticism of those advocating relief reform, it is to be noted that the Republicans are sponsoring a formula of turning back the problem to the states—not abandoning it suddenly or absolutely as insinuated—with the Federal Government continuing its participation through grants-in-aid. Such a reform would transfer the administration of relief from its present political maladministration to those who know better the local applicants and their needs and who would be more likely to prevent the use of relief as a political weapon or as a means of favoring persons not entitled to it.

In the light of that formula, the intimation that relief is not carried on locally when the national government fails to do as it should, and that local administration would fail in handling government funds, is a puerile begging of the question.

THE DIFFERENCE

A great many New Dealers, when confronted with the failure of their economic experiments to bring back prosperity, like to alibi themselves by referring to the depression during the Hoover administration. Yet there is a great deal of difference. When Hoover was President the entire world went to economic disaster and he battled increasingly against a rising tide. The Roosevelt recession came when conditions in the rest of the world were getting better.

Furthermore, Hoover had to battle with an unfriendly Congress. Every act he proposed was willingly viewed with suspicion by a majority in Congress politically hostile and it was impossible for him freely to employ any policy without having it doctored before it went into effect. The case with President Roosevelt is quite different. The Jewell County, Kansas, Republican summed it up well recently in discussing the recent elections when it declared:

"No President ever had so fair a chance to bring prosperity as Franklin D. Roosevelt. Backed by almost every state, given a rubber stamp Congress, supplied with all the money he could spend, give away and throw away, he utterly failed to bring the abundant life or anything that remotely resembled it. He made speeches that were simply wonderful, but a political party cannot live on speeches alone. So that is how it happened."

Here is the difference. Hoover fought a rising tide of world depression and a hostile Congress, yet in the middle of 1932 things were on the mend. Roosevelt basked in popular adulation and the smiles of a rubber stamp Congress and we still have 11,000,000 unemployed. Draw your own conclusions as to the causes of the November election turn.

BOOK MAKES NAVIGATION IN THE AIR "FOOLPROOF"

Volume Is Written By Lt.-Com. P. V. H. Weems, USN, Retired, A Frequent Visitor Here

TO GO TO ARMY FLIERS

The first copies of a little red book that will make the United States Army Air Corps probably the best equipped air force in the world as far as navigation is concerned, came off a Baltimore press recently and were shipped to Washington.

The book is the work of Lieutenant Commander P. V. H. Weems, U. S. N. (retired), is called "Star Altitude Curves," and although it looks to a layman like nothing more than a flock of vari-colored lines and curves, it is guaranteed to enable an aviator to hit any airport right on the button any night he can see a star or two.

Commander Weems, who lives in Annapolis, and who is one of the world's foremost authorities on navigation by air and sea, has been working on the star altitude business since before 1928. He figured there should be some way for an aviator to find out where he was quickly, and he worked out star altitudes.

Few Copies In 1928

In 1928, he published a few copies of his first "Star Altitude Curves." He hadn't worked out the curves for many stars, but the Army Air Corps went around buying up all the copies it could find and howling for more.

So this year he has added a lot more stars, printed a lot more copies and landed a respectable order from the Air Corps for the first run of the books.

Filling the order hasn't been the easiest job in the world, because it is difficult to print in three colors a lot of lines that have to be accurately placed within the limits of a hairsbreadth.

Weather Affects Printing

The printers print the black curves one day, which happens to be a dry day, then they try to print the red curves the next day, which turns out to be rainy, and the paper has soaked up moisture and changed in size, and the whole works is out of register. Commander Weems had two of his staff of seven assistants tossing out the pages that didn't register, because those faulty pages might land an aviator in the middle of the Chesapeake Bay instead of on Logan Field in Baltimore.

When the curves and lines are all registered, however, the Air Corps is guaranteed by Commander Weems that the system will work out a position within two and a half miles of dead accuracy. That was the guarantee the Army exacted. Commander Weems will go even further. He says the charts are exact to a mile or less.

All the aviator has to do is to look up the right table, look at one of Commander Weems' second-setting navigational watches, use one of Commander Weems' "bubble" sextants to get the altitudes of a star or two (the Weems charts show which stars to use), set the altitude down on the star altitude curves, and the latitude is right there on the paper before him.

To get the longitude, the aviator converts some time readings with the aid of tables prepared by Commander Weems and put right into the star altitude book. The Commander says it is simplicity itself and takes only a minute or two.

Northern Hemisphere

The book takes in almost all of the Northern Hemisphere now, and the Commander plans to extend it to cover the whole world. That takes time, though. He and his staff have to make thousands upon thousands of computations, draftsmen have to set down exactly on master sheets and then the printers have to register.

Incidentally, the Commander claims Post and Gatty probably would have had to make a forced landing in Siberia if they hadn't had his first star altitude book along with them. Gatty, with whom Commander Weems once worked on the West Coast, and whom he taught his Weems system, figured out a star altitude or two, and Post found out he had been flying at right angles to his proper course.

Commander Weems taught Lindbergh and Lincoln Ellsworth, Amy Johnson, Dick Merrill, Capt. Alex Papana and many other top-notch aviators. His school is in what used to be his garage in Annapolis.

After he has delivered the Army's contract he plans to make his new book available to all aviators. He thinks that if Corrigan had had one, he would have been able to find California.

Fund for Glasses for Needy Children Increased By Donations

The fund for glasses for school children needing them who do not have the funds to purchase them, has been increased during the past few days by $61.00. The money has been turned over to the County Health Department where there is a record of 250 children in need of such care to assist them in their school work.

"If this interest continues, each contributor will be in a position to say that he helped Garrett county to set an enviable precedent by providing adequate service for every child needing glasses," Dr. H. R. DuPuy, health officer, said.

The list of individuals contributing include L. M. Fraley, Joe G. May, Joe Hinebaugh, C. M. Railey, William Payton, E. A. Fry, Guy Hinebaugh, M. B. Pressman, C. A. May, Bill Gibson, Charles Alexander, W. A. Gonder, J. W. Glotfelty, A. N. Peters, H. E. Liston, Orval Jenkins, Cecil Ashby, J. R. Gnagey, Ruth Stanton, John Pritchard, T. L. Shipley, Bertha Warnick, Mark W. Layman, Wesley Kunkle, Dan Green, Robert Ream, M. H. Warner, William Cobaugh.

The Junior League of the Oakland Methodist church was omitted from a previous list of contributors unintentionally.

Six children have already received glasses, and more will receive them from time to time. The eye glass fund was started several weeks ago by Mrs. J. J. Ashby, Jr., and contributions thus far have amounted to more than $200.

The Health Department also announced that the churches of Oakland contributed the sum of $19.55 from their Thanksgiving offering, the money to be used to purchase medicine in needy cases.

CCC Enrollment, January 10

There will be a CCC enrollment on January 10, Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the county welfare board, announced. The quota is 9 juniors and 2 veterans. Miss Miller said there were now 20 applications on file.

FASHION CRAFT STUDIO
Announces The
OPENING OF THEIR WORK ROOM
AT 34 SECOND ST., OAKLAND, on
TUESDAY, JANUARY 10TH.
We are ready to design and make that slim black dress, that romantic evening frock or that breezy tweed suit—Don't forget we specialize in large sizes and that there is real pleasure in dressing our way.
Whether you have your heart set on a new coat, suit or dress, or wish to rebuild or remodel an old one they are equally important to us.

Do You Use Any of These?
Electric Sweepers, Mixers, Razors, Grinders, or Drills? If so - -

Do you have to turn off your radio while using these appliances? If you do, your neighbors probably have to turn off their radios also at the same time.
We don't wish to discourage the use of these household necessities—rather the reverse, but we do wish to stress the importance of installing noise filters on these items both from the standpoint of longer life for the appliance itself and for the satisfaction of being a good neighbor.
The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland have been studying the problem of better radio reception and have found that approximately 70% of the disturbance in the residential section of Oakland is caused by the above mentioned appliances.
At their suggestion we have equipped our shop with the necessary parts and accessories for stopping "man made static" on household appliances.
If you have a noise problem at your house, we would be glad to make recommendations or demonstrations as to how it can be stopped, usually at a very small cost.
Just bring your appliance to our shop or PHONE 230-J.

Of a Winter's Night the Boys at the Grocery Store Down to the Center Will Be Sitting Not Around the Old Stove, but Around the Electric Pad.

THE MISSISSIPPI IN MODERN DRESS

By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

SOMEBODY down in Washington seems to have got hold of the idea that one of the things everybody is entitled to, the same as air and water and that much advertised place in the sun, is electric light.

It's no secret that the government, having practically nothing else to attend to, has decided to build a few electric light plants, harness up a flock of rivers, including, some say, the Mississippi, and so generally attempt to make the sun feel cheap and dated. Quite an Illuminating Thought.

As far as city lighting goes, I must say I don't give much of a darn to whom I don't pay my electric light bills. When I have the dough and the collector catches me, I pay last month's bill. It's over two years since I paid the current bill for the current, if you absorb my meaning. So far the privately owned company has done nothing about shutting off anything except my apologies. And so, aside from a mild impersonal curiosity about what will be done for the stockholders of the old outfit, I'm not taking sides, one way or another.

All I wonder about this "public" (ha! ha!) ownership of my electric curling iron, is what the government will do if the day comes when I can't even pay last month's bill? Will they actually cut off the juice, or will they appropriate enough public funds to take care of such unpaid bills? Dunt esk. Manana por la manana, as the Spanish say; meaning ish kabibble. In other words, who am I, to ask what appropriations are appropriate and which are not? I'll start criticizing along that line as soon as I can set my mind off of earning enough money again to take care of tomorrow's hamburger. Along in 1942 maybe.

Meanwhile, let the government worry. Don't worry, they will!

But, being public spirited so long as no campaign contributions are demanded of me, I take an interest in these things even if I have no capital. Public affairs are about the only thing you can draw interest on free. Sometimes you draw more than interest, you draw a tight. But before you strike, remember I am a woman and I am not your wife's mother.

But to get back to the other Bright electric project we were talking about, I mean harnessing the Mississippi or whatever they intend doing to electrify the Miss—oh heck, you finish spelling it, I'm all worn out! But you know what I mean, it's the electrifying of the valley it runs through. If they are really going to harness those rushing waters, well all I can say is, boy that's one mule of a river to harness. They've been trying to do it by sandbagging for a number of years, without result. No matter how loud you yelled whoa at her, she jest naturally wouldn't behave or stand still. And if the government is now really going to Moses that ornery body of water, part her with a rod and make her go to work—in other words, if the Mississippi intends Musculing in on Muscle Shoals, all I can say is, hurrny, huhuroo, and hurrah, whichever is the correct spelling.

The first benefit will be the abolition of song-writers who have been telling that river to roll along for quite long enough. I don't suppose we can expect any such good luck as finding that the government will discover a way of forcing these yeggs to go down to some CCC camp and get their feet wet in Mississippi waters so's they'll catch cold and die. But perhaps when modern engineering has taken some of the backwoods romance out of the valley, the song writers will give another river a Publicity Break and we will be turning the radio off because it is playing "My Cellar, the Colorado, and You" for the sixth millionth time. Not that we really give a Boulder Dam

The only tune about the Mississippi valley which will be sung from now on, will be an Old English Folk Dance, and the singers will be performing just where you suppose when I remind you that the words begin:

"Here we go, Lobby, Lobby, Lobby,
Here we go, Lobby, Lobby, Light."

The second benefit the valley would reap from the government quitting haywire and switching to electric wire, is that the farmer could heave a big sigh of farm relief. Maybe we will discover that it takes an electric iron to iron out the farmers' troubles in this region, anyhow. Can you feel that there is anything re-volting in the idea? Ouch. Stop that, you're hurting me!

However that may be, this new project will certainly get the lightening-rod salesmen at their wits end, that is, if they haven't come to the end of their wits long before this, I mean, if they ever had any. While the farmers wanted to keep electricity out of their houses, lightning rods were hot. And now that they want it in their houses, lightning rods are as cold as last year's asparagus and about as useful. But what fun the boys who sell coffee pots with hitching ropes to 'em, milking machines with cold water mixer attachments, dating machines for hens to punch, and so forth, are going to have!

Of a winter's night the boys at the grocery store down to the center will be sitting not around the old stove, but around the electric pad. We hope the salesmen put across a few electric washing machines with the wires before the boys get their socks on that steam generator.

Better take along a few permanent wave machines in the sample cases, boys, you might run into an ostrich-feather farm.

And how about some electric fans? The valley will soon be so sophisticated they'll probably start a few night clubs with fan dancers, and naturally they will use electric fans, since the power will be so cheap. The other kind of fan dance requires power, too, but it's not the kind everybody can furnish.

Oh well, never mind! Even the young folks discuss these things nowadays, and Live Wires don't always shock one. Also, a lot of the farmers I've met know what it's all about to the point where it would take more than Sally Rand to fill them with rural electrification.

I suppose when the TVA and the other big rural errors, or eras, or aereas, or whatever one should call the layout, are completed, a lot of the old charm of the backwoods will be gone. Every housewife will have an electric stove instead of a backache from hauling up coal for the old type cooker. The old oaken bucket will have kicked itself and an electric pump will have taken the vacant job. With no trouble about hauling water, every night may be Saturday in the sweet bye and bye. Considerably sweeter, if you ask me, which you'd probably better not, on account of it's a rather delicate subject.

But when the horse has turned to horse-power, the old farm won't be the same. I suppose it's okay to put the resque in picturesque, but when the hay goes hey hey all I can say is, it'll take an electrically woven straw hat to show which way the wind is blowing.

Cheap power is a swell idea. But the cheap use of power is a mighty dangerous thing. I'll hold my breath while you figure that one out. After all I guess we can only hope for the best, no matter watt happens.

The real question about the whole project down there is, will the farmers have any farms left by the time the job is finished? And will their clubsong be "Sweet Land of Liberty" or "Old Man Ribber"?

TERMS ROOSEVELT'S BLAST AGAINST PRESS "UNFAIR"

Frank Gannett, Rochester Publisher, Denies Newspepers Are Edited In Counting Room

A "PITY" THE PRESIDENT DISCREDITS THE PRESS

Frank E. Gannett, Rochester (N. Y.) publisher, has protested to President Roosevelt for what he termed "an unfair reflection" that "newspapers are edited in the counting room."

In an open letter, Gannett answered a recent statement by the President in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in which Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I have always been firmly persuaded that our newspapers cannot be edited in the interests of the general public from the counting room."

"Anyone familiar with newspapers," Gannett said, "knows full well that any paper edited from the counting room would be doomed to failure. No one is more sure of that than the publishers themselves."

Asserting that he wrote his open letter at the request of the Post-Dispatch, Gannett continued:

"Of course, a newspaper to be independent, fearless and in position to render maximum service to its readers and to its community, must be strong financially. There must be business efficiency in the management of the publication. But that cannot mean, by any stretch of imagination, that the editorial policy shall be dictated by the business office."

Declaring that in America "we have a fair press as well as a free press," Gannett said that a "recent reliable poll" of newspaper readers showed that while a "very large percentage of the newspapers were opposed to the New Deal and the Roosevelt administration, 82 percent of the public believe that our newspapers are fair in their views in regard to you and your administration."

The publisher said that in his opirion it was a "great pity" that the President "should use such clever phrases to discredit newspapers which have, by and large, treated you fairly and x x x are fulfifilling their great responsibility to the public far better than newspepers in any other country on the globe."

WE PREFER NOT TO INTRODUCE THEM TO OUR GUESTS!

YOU, the Readers, are the guests of The Republican as soon as you step within our pages. Advertisers, too, are guests—welcome because of the budget of news and helpful information they bring you every week!

As you know, The Republican is tolerant. Definitely courageous, because otherwise it could not hold the enthusiastic interest of you who are among the most inquiringly thoughtful citizens. But—

There are some paying guests whom The Republican does NOT Welcome!

Personally, The Republican hasn't a thing in the world against the gentlemen in the pictures. Their profession is legal. They may be fine husbands, fathers, citizens of the neighborhood! Often teetotalers, they themselves would be the first to understand The Republican's attitude. They, and many like them will tell you that never in all their life have they urged any one to drink or offered a first drink to a young person.

The Republican feels the same way. That is why none of the staff of The Republican welcomes the liquor advertising to its pages. Just last week the editor refused to accept a series of ten advertisements, concerning liquor.

It is common courtesy not to receive guests in your home who might embarrass other guests—influence some of them to their detriment.

The Republican believes that every reader has the right to decide such questions for himself. WE WILL NOT TRY TO INFLUENCE YOU, YOUR CHILDREN OR THE YOUTH OF THE COUNTY BY TAKING LIQUOR ADVERTISING.

The refusal undoubtedly has cost The Republican a great many dollars in recent years. Money well lost! For The Republican knows that you appreciate its attitude—that it makes a warmer bond between you and your favorite weekly newspaper—a bond expressed in mutual confidence. Because you know that the kind of hospitality you practice in your own home is practiced by The Republican too!

FOR THE YOUNG TO READ AS WELL AS THE OLD

MT. LAKE PARK

The New Year was ushered in Saturday night, or should we say on Sunday morning, very quietly so far as Mountain Lake is concerned. The old bell in the old auditorium rang very rapidly—too fast for the Old Year to go out. A group of youngsters, headed by Mr. and Mrs. Reed Shipley, went to several homes and called "Happy New Year." A bugle sounded taps and other tunes which we later learned was done by Harold Teagarden, and he did it mighty well, too.

Most of the people of the community had gone to bed—guess they were afraid they would make some New Year's resolutions if they were awake. But they should not have bothered about so small a matter. Millions of Americans were doing the same thing. Whether they keep them or not is another matter.

"The Voice That Failed"

We really are not supposed to mention this, but here it is:

We wonder how many of you are listeners in to the broadcast given by Dr. Dan Poling over the NBC network. Incidentally Dr. Poling is the editor of The Christian Herald. This broadcast was given on October 24 in what is known as the "Opportunity" program. It was called "The Voice that Failed" and was the story, and a wonderful story, of a man who had started at the bottom. He was a lumberjack and a dozen other things when he felt the urge to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ. He had no education, but he decided it was time to get one. He completed an eight-year course in four years; had a call and from that time on went forward. At the very height of his career as a minister his voice failed him. For several years he fought this and finally conquered, only to find that his health was failing. Still he hung on, and before he had to give up he had built a church and an old folks' home. Then Dr. Poling said he retired to the Allegheny Mountains where he is now trying to regain his health. There was much more. It was such a great story that copies were issued from the NBC studio and from Dr. Poling. This story was most interesting, particularly to the people of the Park and Garrett county who are fortunate enough to know Dr. W. B. Love. Perhaps more so to us who are his neighbors. At any rate it has taken us a long time to get much information. Certainly we could not get it from Dr. Love. We are glad he is in Mountain Lake Park.

Gov. Nice Criticizes Utopian Plans In His Final Message

Warning Against What He Terms Trend Toward Too Much Government Keynotes Retiring Governor's Address To Legislature—Sums Up His Four Years In Office And Offers Suggestions

A warning against what he said was a trend toward too much government keynoted Gov. Harry W. Nice's last message to the legislature yesterday, delivered before both branches of the Assembly as the major business of their final session.

Speaking in the chamber of the House of Delegates, the state's retiring chief executive summed up his four years in office with a brief 3,200-word address criticizing Utopian schemes and endless bureaus, agencies, and unnecessary laws.

"May I, not so much as the governor of Maryland, but as one of your fellow-citizens, earnestly warn against what seems to me to be a trend in government which bodes ill for liberty if not checked," he said.

"We have today far more government, even in Maryland, touching the individual citizen in more places, as it were, than was ever dreamed of 20 years ago, and infinitely more than was ever thought of at the time our nation's constitution was adopted."

Governor Nice, who leaves office January 11 with the inauguration of Governor-Elect Herbert R. O'Conor, devoted more of his message to this theme than to any other, but incorporated in his address a number of suggestions and recommendations for the incoming administration.

These included:

Appropriations for new gymnasiums at Towson Teachers College and the Training School for Colored Girls; for completing the state penal farm and new buildings at the insane hospitals;

Standardization, by law, of state civil service salaries;

An increase in the State Police personnel to permit further expansion of the highway safety program;

Improvements in the administration of the lower courts, particularly the Peoples Court of Baltimore.

Further efforts to eradicate the present almshouse conditions, possibly by creation of regional general hospitals operated by the state;

Plans for simplification of the state's budget administration, including creation of a new bureau of the budget to lay budgetary groundwork prior to the start of legislative sessions;

Incorporation of the relief program and the unemployment compensation division in the regular state budget, instead of continuing them on separate special appropriations.

Governor Nice predicted a surplus of $3,679,375 on next September 30, "the end of the fiscal period of my administration." This estimate, made by the comptroller, was "extremely conservative," he added.

"The governor-elect will not have to borrow $1,000,000 to pay running expenses of the state, including your salaries during the legislative session, as I had to do in 1935," the governor asserted.

As accomplishments of his administration, he pointed to the state office building here, now under construction; reconstruction of the former executive mansion; building programs at the University of Maryland, and a state roads program "which has turned the tide of deterioration and neglect" of Maryland highways.

In addition, he cited a "definite upturn" in conservation of natural resources, and "great strides" in public health and education, including restoration of teachers salary cuts of 1933.

State employes' salary reductions of 1933 also were restored, he continued, a pension system established, and the morale of state employes improved. The prison labor problem, he said, "is well on the road to solution."

"Your state tax rate has been raised only slightly more than one cent since I came into office," he told the assemblymen, "and in the face of all the attacks made on my administration during the past four years this fact remains outstanding, that the public debt of the State of Maryland is less today than the outstanding state bonds plus the deficits and bank "certificates" were at the time of my inauguration.

"Meantime, the net value of the state's property, including land, buildings, bridges, roads, and investments has increased $30,833,000."

He recalled near the close of the message that "the very few exceptions where my state appointees did not measure up to the highest standards of performance were promptly corrected," and added:

"As they stand today, I am in every case proud of my appointees * * * * Your task as the people's lawmakers is simpler in consequence of our accomplishments during the past four years. Although bitter and blind partisanship succeeded in beclouding and distorting these accomplishments, the facts * * * * speak for themselves * * * *"

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Our Domestic Hullies

Washington, January 4, 1939.

A lot of people not in the least enamored of Mr. Roosevelt and with the strongest sort of distaste for his New Deal were unqualifiedly for him when, speaking through Mr. Sumner Welles, he recently rejected the Nazi demand for an apology. In this case they did not particularly like having to back up Mr. Ickes, whose venomous tongue and lack of restraint make it easy to resist loving him.

* * *

It distinctly was not his business to butt into foreign affairs with public comment. That is the province of the Secretary of State, not the Secretary of the Interior, and a sense of propriety should have kept him quiet. It's not his fault the incident did not cause greater embarrassment. Nevertheless, when a belligerent foreign bully, whose inspired press has been blackguarding this nation for months, takes a threatening tone toward us, the American people, regardless of details, like to see their President respond with courage and vigor. Mr. Roosevelt did exactly that, and even his strongest critics were in accord.

* * *

However, there are many who very much wish Mr. Roosevelt and his aides could bring themselves to be equally emphatic in dealing with the domestic bullies so conspicuuous these days in American politics. The President can be very courageous in handling a European swashbuckler, but when confronted by the home-grown variety of tough baby he sings another tune. It is fair to say that this difference is not peculiar to Mr. Roosevelt. Unfortunately, it is characteristic of nearly all men in public life in both parties. They ferociously howl at Hitler, which may be fine, but with extremely few exceptions they strain themselves to persuade, placate, pacify and conciliate the bellicose leaders of the organized minorities camped here in Washington who make a regular business of brandishing big sticks over the heads of our politicians. It's the way they make a living—and, for some of them, a very excellent living, indeed.

* * *

There are a score or more of such men. Some of them have been on the scene for years; some are newcomers. As they become seasoned, they do not grow, but they visibly swell and a few attain ridiculous proportions. The reasons our public officials who so fearlessly assail Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin and other foreign rulers but are solicitous and tender toward these presumptuous and preposterous group dictators at home are, of course, clear. They can be summed up in a single word—Votes. No votes can be lost by assailing the foreign aggressors, but a good many may be by making an enemy of the paid lobbyist of a special interest here. At least that is the stock political reasoning.

Hence, from President down, our politicians meekly suffer such men to assume an attitude and take a tone that would not be tolerated in anyone else—and should not be in them. They not only escape without rebuke but generally garner the wide publicity which is their real aim in a way that indicates acquiescence if not approval upon the part of those in authority. A striking example of this was given a few days ago when a well-known farm lobbyist went to the White House and there told Mr. Roosevelt that not less Government money but more is demanded by the farmers, and unless they got it there will be real need for the army." He was so quoted in the press and over the radio.

If this is anything, it is a threat of violent revolution made directly to the President of the United States, who receives it without comment. And there are others. It is a more or less typical instance. The great groups which in the last six years have been built up to regard Federal funds and favors as their right are truculent and threatening at the first suggestion of curtailment. This is the stock in trade of men like David Lasser head of the Communist-controlled Workers' Alliance; of John L. Lewis, of the C. I. O., and various others who give political support to this Administration—but are always threatening to withdraw their support if there is the least disposition to stop dishing out favors and funds.

Though to a considerable extent these gentlemen are bluffers, they inspire fear in the White House and in Congress. Potentially they are a greater menace to the security of our form of government than all the European dictators together, because, through pressure, they seem able to force an Administration to pursue policies which accelerate our drift toward national insolvency and economic chaos. The Christmas Day letter to Senator Byrd by Mr. Marriner Eccles, insisting upon a continuation of spending and denouncing any effort to economize,, is a fine example of their influence.

* * *

If Mr. Roosevelt would like to confound his critics and hear the country as a whole cheer as it has not cheered before, he might wait until the next of these domestic bullies makes a threat and then call his bluff and slap him down with the same firmness and force he used the other day on Herr Hitler. It may be difficult for him to believe but the stage has been reached where more votes are to be lost by being tender with these professional trouble makers than by tying up with them. A correct reading of the last election returns would show him that.

EXTENSION AGENTS MAKE REPORTS OF ACTIVITIES

Opportunities Suggested Where Farmers May Increase Income Is Given In Annual Reports

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE

With the opinion that Garrett county farm people, with a conservative program, will prosper as well as they have in the past three or four years, and with suggested opportunities where they might increase their earnings, John H. Carter, county agent, sums up his activities in the county for 1938 in his annual report, which has been presented to the Board of County Commissioners.

The report covers a wide field of activities along agricultural lines, showing that Mr. Carter devoted 58 days to soil conservation work, a total of 198 days in the field, and 83 days in his office.

Similarly, Miss Mildred Barton, home demonstrator, has also completed her annual report which outlines her work among the women of the county during 1938, and her plans for 1939, with a recommendation for more stress and time on cultural subjects in addition to a further study of home furnishings, home management, reading, music, and peace, which were all conducted last year. Miss Barton spent 165 days in the field and 111 days in her office.

Recommendations

Mr. Carter, in his report, points out the opportunity for an organized group to produce and market cool season vegetables, an opportunity for growing young stock, for a profitable seed potato business and recommends the continuance of development in seed and commercial potatoes, canning of peas and sweet corn, growing of fresh pod green peas, production of maple syrup and the raising of sheep, beef cattle and young dairy cows. Many are shifting from dairy cattle to the raising of beef cattle and sheep, he said in his report.

"Potatoes are the most important cash crop in the county," Mr. Carter stated, "and although early and late blight takes a heavy toll, it has been demonstrated for the past five years that disease-free seed produced in this county will compare favorably with the same variety produced in other States. Early tests show that rural

The Bayard girls defeated Oakland girls 37 to 30. Oakland led at the quarter 12 to 6, and still led at the half 19 to 17, but Bayard gradually overcame the lead and forged to the front.

Oakland field goals were scored by Field, 8; Bolden, 3; Butt, 3. For Bayard, K. Duling, 4; G. Duling, 9; Poling, 4.

Sharps and Fazzalari each made three; Stewart, 2, and Wolf and Mason one each. Other players included Stahl, Hinebaugh, Coddington, Smouse, Helbig and Browning. For St. Peter's, E. Pendergast, with 4 field goals, and Brown, with 2, led the scoring.

Oakland High school will meet the team from the Romney School for the Deaf on the local court on Friday evening.

A WINTER SPORTS CENTER BEING PLANNED BY STATE

Rendezvous For Skiers, Bobsledders, Skaters Expected To Be Ready In Fall In Savage River Section Of County

TO BE 1-MILE SKI TRAIL

Following the return of F. W. Besley, State Forester, to Baltimore, after a visit in the forests of Garrett county with a party of Baltimore friends during the holidays, he announced that a winter rendezvous for skiers, bobsledders and skaters would be established in the Savage River Forest.

Work on the project, which is included in the forestry department's recreational program, already has begun. It is to be completed by next fall, Mr. Besley stated.

Plans call for a four-mile ski trail down the side of Meadow Mountain, a toboggan or sled trail down the present Big Run road on the mountain side and skating rinks on the New Germany lake, which is six miles from the mountain and not far from U. S. Route 40, east of Grantsville.

Practice Slopes Planned

Inexperienced skiers who might not be able to negotiate the mountain trail will be able to practice on hills near the bottom of the mountain.

Mr. Besley said that after his visit to the scene recently he was convinced that even if snow remained on the ground for only short periods the project would be worthwhile,

He pointed out that the Baltimore and Ohio runs trains to within two miles from the mountain, providing ample transportation for sports enthusiasts. Ten log cabins are near the ski trail and the skating rink can be used by persons wishing to spend the weekend.

To Build 15 More Cabins

Fifteen more cabins will be built by next fall and will be rented at reasonable rates. Each cabin will be furnished with beds, oil stoves and other equipment.

Members of a CCC camp on Meadow Mountain already have begun the task of clearing trees along the route of the ski trail, which will be twelve feet wide. The lane will also be utilized as a fire trail.

Banked turns will be built on Big Run road for bob-sledders. Skiers and sledders, according to plans, will go down the mountain from the Meadow Mountain road, which is 2,560 feet above sea level.

They will reach the end of their journey at the bottom of the mountain, or Big Run, which is $1,405 feet above sea level. Mr. Besley said trucks might be provided to haul participants up the mountain for a small fee.

Holy Cross Club Elects

The McVeigh Holy Cross club of St. Peter's church held its annual election of officers on Monday evening. The following were chosen: Mrs. Mary Stanton, executive vice-president; Miss Julia Rowan, secretary; Miss Mary Harsch, treasurer.

The club is a missionary society supporting a catechist in the missions in India conducted by the Holy Cross Fathers. Sister Mary Jarlith, member of the Holy Cross sisters and a daughter of Mrs. Stanton, died while engaged in this work in India. The ladies of this club visit Hopemont Sanitarium every week, cheering patients and distributing magazines and religious articles. At Christmas the club prepared 57 gifts for Catholic patients there.

Authorities Investigating Cause Of Cow's Strangulation

A cow belonging to Ralph E. Weber, was strangled to death while in her stall in the Weber barn, adjoining the greenhouses on the place Sunday evening, and the peculiar circumstances surrounding the affair have caused county authorities to do some investigating.

Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, said it appeared to have been done by someone having a grudge against one of the owners of the H. Weber and Sons Company, but there was no positive proof. One person, whom the officer would not name, is being held for questioning.

The cow was fastened in her stall by a chain. The animal was found the next morning with a rope around one of her hind legs, which was drawn up high and fastened to an adjoining stall, the cow being thus suspended between the chain and rope.

O'CONOR TAKES OATH AS 60TH GOVERNOR OF STATE

Forecasts New Taxes; Pledges A Balanced Budget and Economy In Inaugural Addess Yesterday

WILL HALT EXTRAVAGANCE

"I, Herbert R. O'Conor, do solemnly swear . . . "

With this beginning in the august hush that swept the jampacked State Senate chamber at noon yesterday, Herbert R. O'Conor became the 60th governor of the Free State of Maryland.

Before senators, congressmen, state legislators and the State Court of Appeals, the boyish-looking Irishman from Baltimore's tenth ward raised his hight hand and climaxed the greatest day of his 43 years in a firm voice that dominated the Senate chamber.

Forecasts Balanced Budget

Then, in a broadcast inaugural address to the thousands massed on the state house lawn and along the inaugural parade route, the new chief executive forecast new taxes, strict governmental economy and a balanced budget for his four-year administration.

"We shall have to raise additional revenue . . by taxation," the slim governor announced, "there is no easy remedy, no pallitive that is safe. We must balance our budget and maintain our credit. Failure to do so can lead only to disaster."

The ancient ritual of swearing in Maryland's governors and the inaugural address were highlights of the day that left Annapolis slightly dazed after a delirious day that had no counterpart in living memory.

The population of the town was more than doubled as 15,000 visitors converged on Annapolis from all over the State.

City a Riot Of Color

The city was an explosion of gay color amid a thundering pulse of noise that came from cheers and chatter of the jammed hordes who milled on the ancient brick sidewalks.

Loudspeakers, like flaring, great tulips, bloomed on all the principal streets to carry the words of O'Conor to cheering Marylanders.

Much Interest in Address

O'Conor's inaugural address was a focus of interest for legislators, as it is expected to be their guide in the topheavy Democratic House and Senate during the coming 90 days.

Assemblymen Adjourn After Brief Session Yesterday

Maryland Assemblymen at Annapolis, in session yesterday, drew their committee assignments, helped inaugurate a new governor and speedily adjourned until next Tuesday night.

In the Senate Dudley G. Roe was confirmed as chairman of the finance committee and majority floor leader, turning back the bid of Senator James Lindsay (D-Baltimore county). Roe, serving his fourth term, is dean of the Upper House in point of service.

Delegate John White (D.-Prince George's) won expected selection as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which carries with it the majority floor leadership of the lower branch.

Effort Being Made To Start Circulating Libraries

An effort is being made to start circulating libraries in about ten rural communities of the county, under the recreation department of WPA, and an appeal for suitable books is being made by Mrs. George Hanst, county recreation supervisor.

The areas affected are places where people would not otherwise have access to good reading material. Books for children and young people are especially wanted, although other books of a good type are also desired. Anyone desiring to donate any books for this purpose are asked to communicate with Mrs. Hanst, at Oakland.

T. B. Seal Sale Totals $271.06

Receipts from the Christmas tuberculosis seal sale campaign now totals $271.06, according to a report from the county health office. This is about $2 more than was received for the campaign last year, and it was stated there would be receipts for several more weeks yet on the recent campaign.

The fifth week's total was $20.07, while last week's total was $20.15.

Maryland's Sixtieth Governor

HERBERT R. O'CONOR

WESTLAKE WILL BE GIVEN HEARING THIS AFTERNOON

Is In Jail on Charge of Arson—Home Destroyed Year Ago

Frank Westlake, 77, in jail on a charge of arson in connection with the burning of his home in East Oakland on the night of September 24, 1937, will be given a hearing this afternoon before Charles F. Hammond, justice of the peace, according to Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney.

Bond in the sum of at least $1,500 will have to be furnished by Westlake if he is released until the March term of the Garrett County Grand jury, when his case will come before this body for investigation. Bond will be set following the hearing.

Westlake was placed in jail last Wednesday night, January 4, and at the same time Woodrow Baker, 19, was jailed on the same charge. It is reported that Baker has confessed to his participation in the burning of the home, but Fraley would not confirm this.

Westlake denies any connection with the crime. At the time of the fire it was feared he had been trapped in the building but he turned up several days later and appeared much disturbed over the loss. He stated at that time he had been visiting his sister in New Philadelphia, O.

State's Attorney Fraley and Sheriff J. W. Owens have questioned both Westlake and Baker several times since they were placed in custody last week. Fraley and Owens and former Sheriff Clarence Spear have been working on the case ever since the night of the fire.

The house was insured for $3,000 and furniture in the building was insured for $1,200.

WELFARE BOARD EXPENDS $10,962.84 LAST MONTH

Total Was Slightly Less Than in November, Secretary States

A monthly report of expenditures by the Garrett County Welfare Board showed a total of $10,962.84 spent during December. This was slightly less than the November total, according to Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary.

During December 368 old age assistance individuals received $6,050.52; 296 children got $3,069.54 from aid to dependent children funds, and nine blind persons received $169.80. Administration amounted to $1,672.98.

The report was presented at the regular meeting of the Welfare Board on Monday evening. Walter Haenftling, newly appointed member, and Jasper C. Myers, re-appointed, were present.

Six applications for old-age assistance were granted and five were rejected. Five applications for aid to dependent children were granted and two rejected. Miss Miller said that the 150 cases of general public assistance recently taken over from the County Commissioners, were being helped with county money only.

The budget for the first quarter of 1939 has been approved by the Board of State Aid and Charities, covering all types of assistance, and amounting to $42,256.92, Miss Miller said.

A new junior worker, Mrs. Angela Getty Smart, of Grantsville, began work on Monday. Mrs. Smart will be located in Friendsville. Miss Miller went to Baltimore Wednesday evening for the yearly conference of county executives, called by J. Milton Patterson, chairman of the Board.

COMMISSIONERS TO MAKE DECISION ON MACHINERY

Will Tell Taxpayers' Committee Monday Whether They Will Go Ahead or Return Road Equipment

THREAT OF LEGAL ACTION

In the face of a threat of a group of taxpayers that legal action in the form of a restraining order from the court would be taken against the County Commissioners, if they did not cancel their order for road machinery, purchased several weeks ago, the Commissioners agreed at a meeting Monday to give their decision next Monady as to whether or not they would accede to the demands of the group, whether they would keep what machinery is already here and in operation, or whether they would go ahead with their original plan.

Machinery recently purchased from the Alban Tractor company, of Baltimore, amounted to approximately $43,000, and was purchased by the Commissioners, they stated, to supplement and speed up the work of the WPA road projects and give the county about 50 miles of farm to market roads annually where they were getting only 20 previously.

The machinery purchased included a caterpillar R.D.-7 and trail builder, a caterpillar auto patrol, powered with a Diesel motor, equipped with a 12-foot blade and scarifier; a V-type snow plow to attach to the auto patrol; a hydraulic control grader No. 66, with a 12-foot blade; two stone crushers with metal bins, one portable stone crusher and two air compressors.

Already here and being demonstrated are everything but the three stone crushers, the shipping orders for which were temporarily halted following a meeting in the Court House on December 31, in which the Commissioners were criticized by a group of taxpayers for what they termed "unauthorized expenditure of public funds."

Since the public meeting the group of taxpayers opposing the plan of the Commissioners had a conference with an attorney who advised the appointment of a committee of citizens to meet with the County Commissioners to get the facts in the case to halt the numerous stories that have been spreading over the county in exaggerated form.

The committee appointed included Senator Clifford Friend, W. R. Browning, Blaine Frantz, C. M. Bailey, D. Edward Offutt, and on Monday morning they met with Blaine Giessman, Cheston H. Browning and Paul M. Friend, commissioners.

Mr. Fraley acting as spokesman for the group, brought forth the following facts:

All machinery is costing approximately $43,000. Machinery costing $16,000 arrived a day or two before

Firemen Called Twice Monday; Neither Fire Causes Damage

The Oakland Volunteer Fire department answered two alarms Monday, January 9. The first, coming at 6:10 a. m., was a fire at the home of John Lower, north of Loch Lynn, which was extinguished by the owner before the equipment had left the fire house. Eighteen sleepy looking firemen returned to their homes and finished dressing for work.

At 8 p. m. another alarm was sounded. A tractor used in construction at the Oakland Grammar school had caught fire presumably from being started by some children playing there. Upon the arrival of the fire trucks the cover on the tractor was blazing and was standing near the tool house erected by the Construction company. No damage resulted.

The regular monthly meeting of the department was held last Wednesday evening. Changes in the by-laws were discussed. John Criss was admitted into the department as a probationary member.

During the week a telegram was received by the department announcing the death of Prof. Criswell, a well and favorably known instructor in fire fighting and prevention. Prof. Criswell held, a short instruction for the Oakland department last summer.

PETER SEES CHRIST'S GLORY

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 17:1-9, 14-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—We beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father. —John 1:14.

Service in the name of Christ can be nothing but an empty formality, and a disappointing experience of one's inability really to help anyone, unless it is backed by a vision of the Saviour in all His glory. To Peter, whose life we are studying, there came such an experience as he went with the Lord to the Mount of Transfiguration. We cannot duplicate that day of days in his life in any physical sense, but we may, yes we must, withdraw to that quiet place where we may spiritually see Him whose we are and whom we serve as our transcendent Lord.

I. A Vision of Glory (vv. 1-9).

1. A mountain-top experience (vv. 1-3).

Too much of the daily life and walk of Christians is in the valley. We need now and then to come up to the high places where we may be spiritually renewed. Jesus is ready to take us as He did the three disciples, "up into a high mountain apart." We may not be able to move our bodies, but our spirits may soar to sublime heights with Him. There He will reveal Himself in all His glory.

2. A mistaken attitude (v. 4).

Whether Peter was confused by the remarkable experience, or if it was but another expression of his unfortunate tendency to talk when he should be quiet, we do not know. But he is a representative of those who miss the supreme blessing of such a priceless moment by trying to tell God what should be done.

Had Peter's suggestion been accepted by our Lord there would never have been any redemption for the human race. Sin and sorrow would have reigned supreme in the earth, while he and his brethren enjoyed a season of fellowship with Moses and Elias and their Lord.

3. A divine testimony (vv. 5-7).

God spoke and scattered the confusion of men's thinking by declaring the deity of Jesus, "This is my beloved Son," and His supremacy, "Hear ye him." We live in days of theological and philosophical confusion. We struggle in vain to resolve the moral chaos which has resulted from erroneous teaching by any arguments or by the devices of men. Let us appeal to the Word of God. It is plain, powerful, "sharper than a two-edged sword."

4. A glorious result (vv. 8, 9).

"They saw no man save Jesus only."

II. A Call to Service (vv. 14-18).

Service should never precede vision. Vision is given as a preparation for service.

1. A needy soul (vv. 14, 15).

We live in a world of such desperate need that even the confirmed "all's well with the world" optimists are beginning to see that their rose-colored glasses cannot make them oblivious to its sin and sorrow. The boy was sick; his father was in despair; and these two things just about sum up the need of most of humanity.

2. Impotent Christian workers (vv. 16, 17).

The man brought his son to the place where he had a right to expect help—to the followers of Christ. But he found them without faith to help him. Little wonder then that those around them were still in perverse unbelief. We who profess to follow Christ, and especially those of us who say that we are His servants, should be ashamed of our impotent gestures toward our needy fellow men. There is power with God, power in prayer, power in devoted and faithful service to Christ. Let us claim it!

3. The omnipotent Saviour (v. 18).

Jesus spoke, and the demon departed. The absolute supremacy of our Lord appears not only on the mount of glory, but shines even more brightly in the valley of need. Words do not suffice to describe Him, and yet we must by both word and life proclaim Him to the world as its living Lord and Saviour.

4. A glorious result (v. 18).

"The child was cured from that very hour."

Here is no partial solution, no "hope to help you" effort to meet man's need. Jesus met the boy's full need and at that very hour. Just so we may tell the sinner that he may come to the Saviour with the full assurance that his sin will be put away, and that by faith he will become a child of God.

Seventy Years' Capacity

Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: Because ye have not heard my words, behold, I will send and take all the families of the North, saith the Lord, and Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant, and will bring them against this land . . . Moreover, I will take from them the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness . . . and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years.—Jeremiah 25: 8-11.

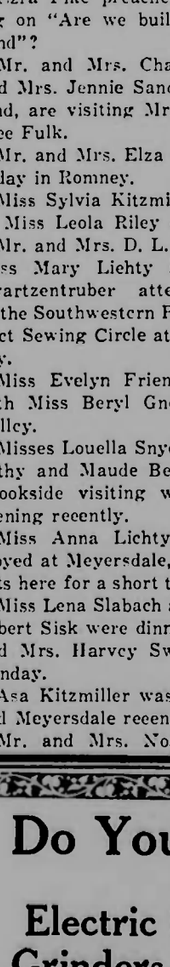
Do You Use Any of These?
Electric Sweepers, Mixers, Razors, Grinders, or Drills? If so - -



Do you have to turn off your radio while using these appliances? If you do, your neighbors probably have to turn off their radios also at the same time.

We don't wish to discourage the use of these household necessities—rather the reverse, but we do wish to stress the importance of installing noise filters on these items both from the standpoint of longer life for the appliance itself and for the satisfaction of being a good neighbor.

The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland have been studying the problem of better radio reception and have found that approximately 70% of the disturbance in the residential section of Oakland is caused by the above mentioned appliances.

At their suggestion we have equipped our shop with the necessary parts and accessories for stopping "man made static" on household appliances.

If you have a noise problem at your house, we would be glad to make recommendations or demonstrations as to how it can be stopped, usually at a very small cost.

Just bring your appliance to our shop or PHONE 230-J.

HOT LUNCHES IN WINTER MONTHS HELPS STUDENTS

Hot Food Serves To Prevent Fatigue And Benefits Students

These suggestions come from the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health:

Are you planning a hot school lunch for your children during the winter months? A hot feed serves to prevent fatigue; children eat less hurriedly, chew their food more thoroughly, and are apt to eat more lunch when something hot is included in the noon meal. Such a lunch not only benefits the individual but also has a desirable effect on the class room in that the group shows greater interest in class room work and there is less need of discipline after a warm lunch.

In some schools children are fortunate enough to be able to buy a hot feed. In others, where facilities are limited, the teachers arrange for a pan of hot water to be available in order that jars of food brought from home may be easily heated. Both methods bring equally desirable results, but in the latter it is necessary for the mother to plan interesting dishes. These may be placed in small glass jars with screw tops, which may be part of the lunch box equipment.

Some of the foods which may be used are: Hot cereals; cream soups; cocoa made with milk; creamed milk; vegetables, eggs, or macaroni; stews; and canned tomatoes.

Of course in inculding a hot food only part of the lunch is considered. To have a child obtain the necessary amount of food needed at his noon meals, insuring an adequate day's food supply, it is also necessary to include a cup of milk or two milk dishes; one substantial food such as a sandwich in addition to the hot dish; a fruit or vegetable—one full serving; a simple dessert if desired.

With such a luneh available for each school child during the winter months, an imporatnt step is taken toward affording the health protection necessary during this season.

MT. LAKE PARK

Self-Help School To Reopen

No matter what knocks or boosts have been given the Self-Help School, people are still interested enought to want to know what is going on, which is a good sign. But we have been more or less chasing rainbows or something else. At any rate it's been hard to get a definite statement regarding the reopening. All sorts of rumors have been abroad—some good, some bad. Most of our inquiries have come from folks away from Mountain Lake Park. Those here seem to think they know all about it. Anyhow, we have tried very hard to get the truth and nothing but the truth.

On Tuesday night the regular patrons meeting was held with Dean Webster in charge. Dr. Webster stated that the school would "carry on." Due to the illness of Mr. Ford and to other obstacles they were not able to open at the time specified but it was hoped that the school would be operating in two weeks' time.

Personally, and I believe I am expressing the wish of the great majority of people of the community, we should like to see the school go on, for a finer group of young people we have seldom seen. Here's hoping that what we have told you really happens.

Weather these days is more like April than January—but look out. Those who are up early enough to see that large star which shows plainly around four o'clock in the morning will also see the sun and moon both visible at the same time. Until 6:30 they are most brilliant. What it means or what it has to do with the weather conditions will take a better student than we are to figure out.

Winners in the weekly spelling bee held here this week were Mrs. Belle Nine, with runners up Mrs. W. Blake Love and Mrs. Jack Stevenson. A great deal of interest has been manifested in these weekly matches. What we want to know is, what's wrong with the younger generation. Don't they teach spelling any more!

Mrs. Lawrence Taylor entertained at a surprise birthday party in honor of her husband last Thursday evening, January 5. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Edgewood Bowen, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Callis, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington C. Welch, Howard Taylor, Mabel Taylor, Miss Wilma Moomaw, Harland Bittinger, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gower, Miss Marie Gauer and Mrs. Della Moomaw.

We desire in this manner to thank all those neighbors and friends who were so extremely kind and helpful during the illness and following the death of our husband and father, the late P. K. Adams, and also the members of the Knights of Pythias lodge for their services.

We appreciate the thoughtfulness of those who sent flowers and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral service.

Paragraph Opinions

Before the election the New Dealers told us there was no politics in relief. Now they say they have a plan to take politics out of relief. You answer that one for us.

* * *

A Suggestion

An increasing number of fire departments in various communities are joining in conducting home inspection campaigns.

When Cincinnati inaugurated its program five years ago fourteen truck loads of useless, combustible rubbish were carted from a single house, and five from another. In Providence, R. I., 1,680 tons of similar dangerous waste, an average of 43 pounds per home, was carted to the municipal incinerator. As a result the annual dwelling house fires dropped at once from 550 to 201.

Such vital safety work as this would not have to be confined to large communities. It could be made a wonderfully fine poject by the Oakland Department. Two firemen coming to the door of every home in Oakland and vicinity would be welcome visitors. People would rather have them visit with spick-and-span uniforms for an inspection than to have them call later in rubber boots and coats because of a fire alarm, when that fire could have been avoided.

* * *

By this time most of your New Year's resolutions have probably been broken. I guess that is only human. But there's one resolution every one should try to keep for the twelve months ahead: "I resolve to do my part, as a motorist and pedestrian, to help reduce America's ghastly death and accident toll on the highways."

There were five people killed in Garrett county in 1938 due to automobile accidents.

MARYLAND HAS SERVICES FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

1637 Children With Some Crippling Disability Under Supervision

A report recently issued by the State Department of Health on the services for crippled children in the counties of Maryland, shows that 1637 children and young people living in the counties, all of them suffering from some crippling disability, are under supervision at present. Children in Baltimore City, who are similarly handicapped, are under the supervision of the Maryland League for Crippled Children—the pioneer organization by which State-wide clinics and follow-up care were started over ten years ago—which continues its cooperative connection with the services for crippled children.

The expansion of the services for crippled children in the counties of Maryland was made possible by State appropriations matched by funds from the Social Security Act under the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor. The services were administered at first by the Board of State Aid and Charities and were transferred to the State Department of Health by an Act of the Legislature in 1937. Under the terms of the law, the activities are limited to those under twenty-one years of age and do not include services to the deaf and the blind.

The present program is a continuation and extension of the plans originally developed by the League for Crippled Children. A special effort is made to locate children suffering from any crippling disability in need of surgical, hospital or follow-up care. Clinics at which the children are examnied by physicians with special training in this particular field, are arranged through the County Health Departments. Provision is made for hospital care, if necessary, or for other care or treatment. Braces, shoes and other appliances are obtained for those unable to pay for them.

The number of clinics has gradually been increased. Sixty have been held within the last year. The staff has been enlarged to include three nurses and seven other workers with special training in the care and treatment of those with bone or joint diseases or who are crippled from other causes.

Of the 1637 children and young people under supervision and treatment at present, 886 are boys and 751 girls. Fourteen are under a year old, 302 from 1 to 4 yars old; 447 from 5 to 9; 529 from 10 to 14; 315 from 15 to 19, and 30 are 20 years old. About one-fifth of the total are crippled through infantile paralysis. In other eases the disability is due to injury at birth; to rickets; to tubereulosis, to some other disease or to accident.

Transportation to the clinies is one of the most difficult problems of the service. It is made possible largely through the volunteer aid of the American Legion, civic and other service clubs, and interested individuals. But no child recommended for clinic care has gone without necessary attention. If the parents have found it impossible to get the child to the clinic, one of the clinic surgeons has visited the child in his own home.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Three persons were drowned when the ice upon which they were skating on the Rasche mill dam in Oakland gave way. They were Kezia Yelloly, 19; Robert Yelloly, 16, and Thomas Smouse, 21. Young Smouse died in an attempt to save the others. Emma Yelloly, who also broke through the iee, was saved by her father, John Yelloly, and Truman Miller when they arrived on the scene and threw her a rope. Thomas Smouse was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smouse.

West Virginia capitalists leased the Oakland Hotel for a term of years and planned to operate it as a first-class sanitarium. Dr. W. M. Longstreth, of Charleston, West Va., was to be the superintendent. The lessees were operating under a charter and were known as the Mount Pisgah Chautauqua Sanitarium Company of West Virginia. Mud baths was to be one of the features.

The annual Farmers' Institute for Garrett county was scheduled in Oakland with three sessions, one for dairying, one for fruit growers and a home session.

Sportsmen Ravenscroft and Burkhard were preparing for a fox chase at Accident.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's death was recorded. He died Monday, January 6, 1919, while asleep at his home at Oyster Bay.

The financial statement of the local Red Cross chapter showed receipts of $7,070.77 and expenditures, $6,123.57.

A. R. Martin, manager of the Evans Garage, purchased the property and planned to continue the business.

Bank statements showed total resources of the two banks in Oakland as being approximately a million and one-half dollars.

The Bittinger correspondent had the following as his introductory:

Both idle men and flivvers need
Some new unfailing clutch
So Fords could not exceed their speed
And tongues not wag so much.

"The returns of the election can be accepted as an approval of the policy of increased taxation," O'Conor declared. "they can be accepted as an indication that the people understand the situation and are willing to assume the necessary burdens to the end that their state's financial house may be put in order."

O'Conor said readjustments of the tax structure would "encourage and stabilize" business, rather than cripple it under an impost of new taxes.

On economy in government, O'Conor said in part: "I am fully convinced that substantial reductions in governmental costs can be made without impairing essential functions.

No Personal Organization

"No one need fear," O'Conor emphasized, "an attempt by me to build a personal organization or a political machine. I am now free, and shall remain free to avail myself to the full potentialities of the whole party for the betterment of our state.

"I do not intend to criticize or condemn those who have been in charge of the state's affairs," O'Conor continued, "instead of occupying your time with what could or should not have been done, it is my judgment that it is more useful to invite your attention to, and seek your consideration and support of what might be done henceforth. We go on from here."

On the subject of politics in state government, the new governor aimed his shots especially at the State Roads Commission and the State Conservation Commission. These two, he said, "prove the case for the avoidance of polities where polities might jeopardize the proper advaneement of state interests."

Turning again to fiseal matters, he called on the General Assembly to create a budget bureau to assist and advise the governor in the preparation of his budget.

Urges Budget Bureau

"The law puts upon the governor the duty and the responsibility of submitting the budget and the appropriating body," he said. "At the very outset the incoming governor is faced with this major problem at a time when other matters of importance must also be considered."

budget plan and tned to make it more bureau "would systematize the whole budget plan and tend to make it mare efficient and orderly," he said.

Moving to a discussion of capital and labor, O'Conor urged workers to remember that, in addition to the right to strike and to bargain collectively, "there also exists another right, namely, the right to work."

"This right is ingrained in the American philosophy underlying our economic and social order," he said, "and so long as this country has respected it, we have advanced on the pathway of civilization."

Points Out Social Needs

The governor pointed to what he said were "four primary social needs," which "must be driven 'line abreast' under the rain of economy and the spur of efficiency." These he listed as law and order, public health, roads and other means of transportation, and education.

Law and order, he said, must he placed first as a necessity to the other three. As a detail under the law nnd order category, he called for "intelligent administration of a well-organized and adequately staffed parole system" and greater efforts toward study of prison inmates as a means of crime reduction.

The comparatively brief address closed with a hint to the legislature that its deliberations should be speeded toward early adjournment.

"It may not be too much to hope," he said, "that the work of the legislature will proceed as promptly as in consistent with efficiency and suitable deliberations so that the work may be completed before the expiration of the period allowed hy the constitution. Public money would be saved . . . if this General Assembly terminated its session before the end of 90 days."

Honesty Is Not Confined In Garrett County Alone

A few weeks ago it was learned there were still honest people in the world, specifically in Garrett county, as a lady who found another's purse returned it to the owner when she saw an advertisement in The Republican telling of the loss.

Now it is learned there are also honest people outside of Garrett county—in Zanesville, Ohio, for instance.

On December 22, Mrs. Julius Renninger was enroute to Dayton, Ohio, with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Julius C. Renninger, Jr. Arriving at Dayton they discovered that a small box containing a rather expensive velvet dress was missing. They remembered openeing the ear trunk while in Zanesville, Ohio, where they had stopped for dinner and presumed it fell out on the street where they had parked their car.

On December 31, as the party was enroute home they passed through Zanesville again and decided to insert a "lost" advertisement in a newspaper of that city. On Thursday, January 5, Mrs. Renninger received a letter from a woman in Zanesville stating that she had found the lost article. The dress is now back in Mrs. Renninger's possession.

This makes a total of two ladies in the world that are known to the public to be very honest. Does anyone know of any real honest men? They do, no doubt. And the person reading this is one of the many.

A BILLION A YEAR

After the war with Spain, when the federal expenditures exceeded half a billion dollars for the first time, somebody grumbled to Tom Reed about it.

"Well," said Reed, "this is a billion-dollar country."

It has become a billion-dollar country in another respect: the annual interest on the public debt has reached the figures that seemed so huge in Reed's time.

True, the debt interest was above a billion in 1920 and again in 1923, but that was a result of a great war during which money was borrowed at a high rate. Tops in the war debt was 25 billions. Secretary Mellon proceeded to bring it down to 16 billions. Now, under the carefree and beneficent New Dealers it is close to 40 billions. And there is little consolation in the thought that the borrowings of peace time were made at a lower rate than those of war time. A billion is a billion.

Moon enlisted over a year ago in the United States army and is stationed at Langley Field. He wrestles in the 145-lb. class and in a bout recently with the Norfolk Central Y. M. C. A. he nearly defeated their champion. A Norfolk paper states: "In the most interesting bout of the evening, Norfolk's sensational Arthur Lillienfield had his hands full in winning a decision over powerful B. E. Moon in the 145-lb. class. Moon made it a most interesting bout as he kept the veteran Lillienfield troubled throughout the match. Arthur's experience, however, won for him over the powerfully built soldier, and he used a headlock and arm chancery to great advantage."

COMMISSIONERS TO MAKE DECISION ON MACHINERY

Christmas and since that time additional machinery costing about $9,000 has arrived. The first order came upon open shipment upon which an order for $500 was drawn as first payment. The balance of machinery coming in and that held up following the December 31 meeting was bought under conditional agreements of sale. The sales contracts call for payment at different intervals during 1939, the final payment being due on September 15, although the Commissioners stated the Tractor Company was agreeable to extend liberal terms, and had so informed them verbally.

The Commissioners said it was not their intention to levy for the full amount in one year, that it was not going to hurt taxpayers one bit and that they were of the opinion that their plan was a good one and workable. "If we didn't think so, we wouldn't have gone into it," said Mr. Giessman.

He continued, "if there is any increase in the tax rate it won't be because of any road machinery purchased. It will be because of overspending in levies for schools, relief, hospitals, etc." The Commissioners must lay the levy in February for 1939 expenditures.

The committee was told that Ernest Selby was the salesman, but that the machinery was purchased direct and any commissions that might be paid Selby would result from agreements between the Company and Selby, not the County Commissioners.

The Commissioners also stated that shelter for the road machinery was going to be provided by WPA.

Money to pay for the machinery was to come from back taxes against which there were no orders drawn, and from the credit the WPA would allow them for use of the machinery.

Mr. Giessman pointed out that the Commissioners pay 20 percent of the cost of any road project out of receipts from the one and one-half cent gasoline tax fund. Officials of the WPA informed them they would allow a credit of $140 per day for use of the machinery, and with a minimum of 200 days of work throughout the year, there would be a credit of $28,000 allowed. This amount, Mr. Giessman said, would be used to pay for machinery.

The committee told the Commissioners that this did not take care of running the machineery. cost of fuel, repairs, etc., to which the Commissioners replied that WPA would also furnish drivers. The Commissioners had agreed to pay one-third the salary of one driver.

The committee told the commissioners it was instructed to state that if the machinery was not returned legal action would be taken, probably in the form of a restraining order from the court to prohibit the Commissioners from providing for payment of the machinery in the annual levy.

The probabilities of the legislature turning back county roads to the counties, and the possibility of WPA work being sharply curtailed were discussed along with the probable effects upon the Commissioners' office.

The Commissioners agreed to inform the committee of their decision on Monday. It is not known whether the Commissioners could disregard the conditional sales contracts or not, even if they desired to do so.

LOG CHAPEL PICTURED IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH PAPER

Gift Of $50 To Oakland Rector Built Roadside House of Prayer

How a $50 gift led to erection of a tiny church at Wilson, near Altamont, in Garrett county, the highest point on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, is pictured and told by Rev. David C. Trimble, rector of St. Matthew's Parish, Oakland, in the January issue of the "Spirit of Missions," an Episcopal church publication, which is issued in New York City.

Accompanying the article is a picture of the tiny log church, known as "Our Father's House," situated on a State highway, at a point "where two ways meet."

In 1932, the Women's Auxiliary of Old St. Paul's Church, Baltimore, sent to Rev. Mr. Trimble a check for $50 to be used at his discretion.

Rev. Samuel S. Johnston, now rector of All Saints' Church, Reisterstown, then a candidate for the Episcopal prieshood, was sent to Oakland that year to assist at the Oakland church. He organized a small congregation in the Altamont community, without a church. Services were held first in a small school house in the section. Several summer residents, Presbyterians, who owned a large tract of land nearby, offered to aid the congregation obtain a site for a church, and sufficient chestnut timber if its members desired to build a chapel of their own. An architect donated the plans, friends volunteered the labor, and material was donated, including an altar cross.

The cornerstone was laid by Mrs. George Stewart Brown, who with her husband, had given the land. Three hundred people attended the ceremonies, which were followed by a picnic.

The next year the structure, built of logs, was consecrated by Bishop Edward Trail Helfenstein.

The church of logs and stone is of pioneer style. It stands in a spacious setting surrounded by oak, locust and evergreen trees. Services are held in winter and summer. During the summer, the "log chapel," as it is known, draws many campers and summer visitors in the Oakland area to its Sunday services. Financially, the church pays its way, and the members also subscribe annually to the missionary quota of St. Matthew's Parish.

ORIGINAL GUN MOLL WAS NOT UNKNOWN IN COUNTY IN NATIONAL ROAD DAYS

"Gun Molls" contrary to common belief, did not originate in the prohibition-gangster period. They existed in this country—and in this section—more than a hundred years ago.

At least, a woman was in the gang of "highwaymen" who attempted to rob a stage coach near Grantsville on August 12, 1834.

This incident and other highlights in the career of the driver of the stage, Samuel Luman, have been recorded in "The Old Pike, a History of the National Road," by T. B. Searight.

Race Recalls Exploits

They were brought to light by Mrs. Ralph Luman, of 224 Fayetts street, Cumberland, widow of the veteran driver's grandson, as an interesting sidelight on the period recalled by last week's race between an old B. & O. locomotive and a Railway Express stage coach.

The attempted holdup was one of the outstanding incidents in Mr. Luman's career, and he used to "relate it with seeming pleasure."

The affair took place on the mountainous stretch of highway between Piney Grove, in what is now Garrett county, and Frostburg, in Allegany county.

Road Was Blocked

Luman was piloting an eastbound mail and passenger coach. Darkness had fallen, when at a point studded by a thick growth of pine trees, he was "confronted by a party of foot-pads . . . bent on felony."

They were "five in number, and strange to relate, one was a woman."

The highwaymen had thrown across the road a fence-like obstruction made of logs, stumps and brush.

As the horses hesitated at the barrier, one of the would-be robbers stepped out, seized a bridle and ordered Luman to descend from his seat and surrender his charge.

"This he very politely but very decidedly declined to do."

"What do you want?" queried Luman with seeming innocency.

"We are traders," was the reply.

Wet Powder Prevents Murder

"Well," Luman rejoined coolly, "I have nothing to trade; I am satisfied with my trappings and not desirous of exchanging them."

At this point, the robber, who was holding a lead horse by the bridle, called out to one of his partners to shoot the driver.

The accomplice leveled a pistol at Luman and pulled the triggre, but the result was nothing more than a "snap."

The night air was damp, and the powder had failed to explode. Luman's life was spared.

Seeing the opportunity for a getaway, Luman poured a volley of stinging lashes upon the robber holding the horses.

The bandit winched and released his hold.

Passengers Wealthy

The stage coach team, under Luman's skillful hands, started off on a run, leaped the barrier and sped on. The coach almost capsized when it struck the obstruction.

The "grateful" passengers—western merchants going east to buy goods and having among them as much as $60,000 in cash—took up a collection to reward Luman for bringing them safely to Frostburg.

The amount was ludicrously small, however, and he declined to accept "and ever thereafter regarded that lot of passengers as a 'mean set.'"

Searight in his bulky volume terms Luman "one of the best-equipped stage drivers on the road" and "altogether one of the most interesting characters of the road."

Was Later Innkeeper

After many years as a driver, he tried his hand at tavern keeping, operating establishments at Piney Plains, Frostburg, Mt. Savage and in Cumberland.

He died July 12, 1895, at the age of 86 years.

Butler, with his brother, Ray, was coming east and McKenzie, driving a truck owned by Carl Ravenscroft, who was in the truck at the time, had parked on the left side of the highway going west. COUNTY'S NEEDY TO GET $95,415 FOR THREE MONTHS

Grant Is For Aged, Dependent Children, Blind, Unemployable

Maryland's needy—the aged, dependent children, the blind and unemployables—will receive $2,416,985 in the next three months, the Board of State Aid and Charities announced on Friday of last week.

The budget allocated $685,740 for direct relief to those unable to work, $916,621 for old age pensions, $741,193 to aid children and $43,430 for blind persons without private means.

Samuel E. Shanahan, board chairman, announced Federal funds totalling $735,578, and State funds of $766,831, have been set aside for the quarter from January 1 to March 31. Local communities must provide $914,576 of which $685,710 is for direct relief to unemployables. Distribution of State funds for unemployables was stopped last July when income proved insufficient from the State tax.

The amount made available for dependent children is an increase of about $50,000 over the last quarter. Funds allotted for the aged and blind during the next three months is slightly less than the amount appropriated in the last budget.

Baltimore City's share of aid was $1,567,500.

Washington county headed the list, receiving a grant of $97,211, while Allegany was second, with $95,415. Garrett county will get $30,522.

Of the other Western Maryland counties, Frederick will get $51,936; and Montgomery, $44,891.

Calvert county, with a grant of $9,422, was low on the list.

EXTENSION AGENTS MAKE REPORTS OF ACTIVITIES

potatoes appear better adapted and give better yields in this county than other varieties."

During the year there has been an increase of 25 per cent in production of legumes on account of the soil conservation program and the application of lime encouraged. Mr. Carter also said in his report that acreage of alfalfa, one of the most profitable legumes, has been gradually increasing.

The report stated the county had an excellent rating as a modified accredited area for tuberculosis in cattle. A recheck on 10 per cent of the dairy cows in 1938 showed only one reactor for tuberculosis.

The report contains a detailed account of the potato experimentation work being carried on at the DeBerry farm, north of Oakland, by the Extension service.

Under the soil conservation program there were 1486 farmers with 218,148 acres. Two hundred tests, covering 3,500 acres were made for soil acidity; 844 applied lime materials approximating 21,000 tons; 752 applied 791.5 tons of recommended fertilizer; 800 used recommended crop rotation on 20,000 acres. Some were practicing strip cropping and growing crops on contour.

Women in Homemakers' units have studied home furnishings, home management, etc., giving demonstrations and holding schools on furniture refurnishing, upholstering, slip covers, dress, cheese, garden and lamp remodeling. A number of families are budgeting food expenditures, following food-buying recommendations and are serving better balanced meals in the farm homes.

Meetings conducted by these two agents have been attended by more than 10,000 people throughout the year. Mr. Carter, in addition, has made 456 farm visits and had 1370 calls at his office. Miss Barton has made 212 visits and has had 225 calls at her office, in connection with extension work.

Fifty-four per cent of Garrett county's 438,400 acres of land is classed as farm land, with 38 per cent of the farm land available for crops. There are 1999 farms with a population of 10,769, indicating that the work of the county agent and home demonstration agent is of interest to a majority of the people of the county.

A more detailed account of their activities is available in the annual reports to any one interested in ny particular phase of their work.

Year-End Report of PWA Is Made by J. B. O'Donnell

A year-end report by John B. O'Donnell, PWA engineer, made to the regional director, Col. M. E. Gilmore, shows that during 1938 there were two applications received from Garrett county. These applications covered construction of additions to the Elementary school at Oakland and the Kitzmiller High school, and the cost was estimated at $85,920, of which the PWA was to furnish 45 percent.

At the end of the year, the deadline set by Congress for start of construction, there were fifty men at work on the two projects.

The report also showed that the Grantsville Grade school had been completed in 1938 at a cost of $67,150.

Mr. O'Donnell will remain at Oakland and Kitzmiller until the two projects are completed.

MARYLAND GOVERNORS' VOICES TO BE RECORDED

Governor Nice's Is The First One To Be Followed By Successors

It may be a case of "let's listen to the record," if State Archivist Dr. James A. Robertson, at Annapolis, has his way.

The official keeper of the records and seals for the Free State hopes to have recorded—and placed in the archives—the voices of all future Maryland Governors. He has started with Governor Harry W. Nice.

Dr. Robertson pointed out that recordings of historic addresses "such as the Gettysburg address, would be invaluable, both from the standpoint of history and human interest."

The modern voice recording disc, symbolic of the ultra-modern science of recording, is in strange contrast to some of the yellowed, ancient documents in the Hall of Records at the Maryland State House, many of them dating to the mid-Seventeenth Century.

"I have no doubt that recorded discs will play an increasingly important part in historical records," Dr. Robertson said. "They are of inestimable interest and value. Imagine, for instance, the value of the Gettysburg address recorded in Lincoln's own voice, both from an historical and human interest agle."

Governor Nice is the first Governor, so far as Dr. Robertson knows, to record his voice for the permanent archives of a State.

Gov. Nice spoke on the construction of the Hall of Records, its purpose and historical antecedents of the State.

Farm Bureau Members Discuss Problems At Meeting

He told the group the Farm Bureau offered service of insurance, cooperative livestock marketing and wool pool.

An agriculture policy committee, consisting of William Wildesen, Guy Stanton and Foster Yost, was appointed by the president.

A legislative and taxation committee was named as follows: William Miller, J. U. Stanton, Donald Frazee, R. O. McCullough, Ernest Selby, B. F. Shaffer, Jr., and Charles Reichenbecher.

A group meeting will be held with the Allegany county organization at Frostburg some time in March. Plans were also made for a meeting of the entire membership at Friendsville High school on January 28, beginning at 12:30 o'clock.

William Winterberg, Charley B. Miller, John H. Carter, R. O. McCullough, William Wildesen, Mrs. C. C. Beachy and Miss Jessie Guard are attending the State Farm Bureau meeting in Baltimore this week.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of Jacob Stump.

A precious one from me is gone,
A voice I love is still;
A place is vacant in my life
Which nonce an ever fill.

God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon his love had given,
And though your body moulders here
The soul is safe in heaven.

Yet again I hope to meet thee
When the life is fled;
And in heaven greet thee
Where no farewell tears are shed..

BY HIS WIFE, MARY STUMP.

VOLUME 62. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JANUARY 19, 1939. NUMBER 47.

CONSERVATION, AN OLD LEGISLATIVE BUGABOO, BOBS UP AT ANNAPOLIS

Maryland's Natural Resources Becomes Number One Battle Of Legislature

An old legislative bugaboo—conservation—reared up on the General Assembly yesterday, temporarily overshadowing the administration's high-speed efforts to get its reorganization program under way.

Overnight, the problem of what to do about Maryland's natural resources became the prospective No. 1 battle of the 1939 legislature.

Although working otherwise in apparent surface harmony, speeding Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor's legislation into the hoppers at machinegun speed, blocs were forming rapidlyy in both House and Senate to oppose the O'Conor plans for the Conservation Commission.

As secondary potential trouble-makers, administration proposals for reorganizing the State Roads Commission, the Labor Department and the Accident Commission, popped up for attention.

Court Bill Is Introduced

Principal reorganization bills introduced yesterday were aimed at revision of the Justice of the Peace system in Baltimore and the counties, involving creation of People's Courts. The bills provide for a constitutional amendment, which will be submitted to the voters at the next election.

The People's Court proposals were not a part of the recommendations made by O'Conor's special reorganization committee, but were in line with proposals made by O'Conor during his gubernatorial campaign.

Nineteen members of the House joined in dropping a conservation bill into the hopper, well ahead of the plan which the administration is whipping into bill form. Their measure has the backing of wild life and sportsmen's organizations.

Both bills, however, follow the same general plan, requiring creation of a seven-man unpaid Conservation Commission to work with and advise a salaried director. The sportsmen's bill, however, would have the advisory commission name the director; the administration measure would make the director a gubernatorial appointee.

Bills Differ In Details

In the creation of sub-divisions, too, the bills differ in details, with the independent measure listing a division of Education and Public Relations which is not included in the administration's proposal.

Conservationists and would-be conservationists were engaged in hot debate by mid-afternoon, and the trend of debate indicated that, for the first time, the legislators were at odds on such fundamentals of both plans as the advisory committee.

Even leaders identified closely with O'Conor's forces were apparently swinging around to oppose a multi-member group, some preferring one commissioner, others yielding to a possible three-man advisory commission.

The concensus seemed to be that it would be difficult to find seven fully qualified persons to serve without salary.

O'Conor, meanwhile, said his recommended conservation bill probably would not be ready before the end of the week or early next week.

Seventeen Bills Are Introduced

Yesterday's session duplicated Tuesday night's in unusual freedom from legislative delay. In all 17 bills were dropped into the House and Senate, 10 in the lower branch and seven in the upper.

Both adjourned until noon today.

About two hours after the legislators had scattered through the Statehouse to organize committees, Chairman J. Glenn Beall of the State Roads Commission, accompanied by commission auditor William A. Codd and Thomas Jenifer, Special Assistant Attorney General assigned to the commission, arrived for a conference with the governor.

They presented a detailed summary of the commission's financial position, its contract committments, and prospective committments—a statement the governor demanded from the roads unit last Sunday.

O'Conor said later he would have to study the voluminous report and break down the figures before making them public.

WESTERN MD. DELEGATES FORM BLOC IN ASSEMBLY

First District Organization To Appear in House of Delegates

Western Maryland delegates met after the house session yesterday to form the first district bloc to appear in the House of Delegates.

In the past, district blocs have played an important part in legislation, many times standing as a solid unit despite party lines to kill legislation they held detrimental to the district.

The Western Maryland bloc in the house will command 37 votes, almost a third of the membership, and will be an important bargaining agent when the real work of passing bills begins.

Charles S. Houck, Jr., (D.—Frederick), was named chairman of the group. Allen I. Meyers, (R.-Washington), was chosen vice-chairman. Ruth E. Shoemaker, (D.-Montgomery), will serve as secretary.

The group includes delegates from Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Montgomery, Frederick, Carroll, Howard, and Harford counties, and two delegates from Baltimore county.

DAVID LEWIS EXPECTED TO GET LABOR BOARD POST

Roosevelt to Withdraw Appointment Of Donald Smith

Senators in close touch with Administration labor policies renewed yesterday their predictions President Roosevelt would withdraw his appointment of Donald Wakefield Smith for another term on the National Labor Relations Board.

They said they had reliable information former Representative David J. Lewis (D.-Md.) would be appointed in Smith's stead.

A check of the senate indicated, they said, that Smith could not be confirmed.

Smith has been opposed by the American Federation of Labor and Senate Republicans generally have expressed opposition to his appointment.

Snow Snaps County Back From Springlike Weather

Snow has covered all of Garrett county since last Friday, snapping the entire section out of advancing springtime warmth back into the midst of winter. The temperature, however, has not been much below the 20 degree mark, and during the past few days just enough snow has fallen to keep the landscape white.

Last Friday's storm was the first of the new year and although "Friday the thirteenth," it didn't seem to bring bad luck. There were no serious accidents and highways remained open for traffic.

The storm, coming from the east, brought about five inches of snow while in Cumberland and to the east of Cumberland there were nine to twelve inches. Shifting winds brought another storm and about two inches more snow from the west on Saturday, with more being added on Monday and Wednesday. Sunday and Tuesday there was clear and thawing weather.

The weather has been ideal for skating, skiing and sled riding for the young people and others who are young in ideas, if not so young in years. A crust forming Friday on the snow gave a good foundation for skiing and many took advantage of the opportunity over the week-end.

Snow continues to fall today, with about two inches added since last night. Officially, taking the figures of the government station at Weber's, four inches fell Friday, 1 inch Saturday, 2 inches Tuesday, and 1 inch yesterday, making a total of 8 inches. No measurement was made for today, but two or three inches have fallen since last night at midnight.

To Form Pre-School Group

Miss Elizabeth West who has been engaged in historical records and survey work under a branch of the WPA for the past two years or more, was transferred this week to the recreation division in this county, and will organize and have charge of pre-school groups.

These groups are to include any children in Oakland from three to six years of age, not in school. Miss West and Mrs. George Hanst, county supervisor of recreation, will go to Cumberland tomorrow to observe the pre-school groups there.

Just where the classes will be conducted, has not been determined.

CITY COUNCIL APPROVES BOND BILL LEGISLATION

Proposed Measure, If Enacted Into Law, Will Permit Borrowing To Erect Public Building

REFERENDUM IS ATTACHED

At a special meeting of the Mayor and Council on Monday evening, the proposed law to make it possible for the town of Oakland to issue bonds to provide its share of the money to construct a community building, was approved, and is now on its way to the Garrett County delegation at Annapolis for its presentation before the General Assembly.

Should the bill be enacted into law, there will be a special election in Oakland on February 10, 1939, to give the citizens an opportunity to approve or reject it. The bill has a referendum attached.

The bill empowers the town of Oakland to borrow not more than $25,000 by the issuance of Community Building Bonds. The bonds would be payable in 25 years but could be paid sooner, at the option of the town.

Should the citizens favor the bond issue, it will be possible to have a community building constructed here at a cost of $74,000, with the Federal government, through WPA, furnishing approximately $51,800.

The WPA recently approved the project calling for the construction of a colonial type building of limestone, but since the town had no authority to issue bonds with legislative enactment, the new proposed law will be necessary before the project can proceed. Samples of the lime stone have been obtained from a quarry at Sang Run and compares equally with a grade of limestone used in the construction of a community building at Williamsport, Md.

Members of the Oakland Fire Department have stated the organization would be rsponsible for raising the money to repay the bond issue and that it would not necessitate burdening the taxpayers of the town. The building plans call for spacious quarters for the fire department, as it is declared the present quarters are entirely too small and inadequate.

The proposed bill requiring a registration of those seeking to vote in the town will be taken up at the next meeting of Council.

To Have Skating Rink

Rev. David C. Trimble appeared before the Council Monday evening seeking a solution to a skating rink, and following a discussion the Council decided to try to make the town tennis courts, at the north edge of town, into a skating arena.

Workmen were engaged there this week in getting the courts in condition for flooding. Councilmen were of the opinion that there would be practically no cost in making a skating place available to citizens.

Council also discussed with WPA officials the possibility of having a connecting water line placed on Third street, between the Coca Cola plant and Green street. This line would give the water system two direct lines from the reservoir to the east and south sections of town, and make possible the lowering of the insurance rates here. At present a break in the line on Second street would cause all sections east and south to be without water.

The city clerk was directed to collect all water bills.

WPA officials also showed members of Council a proposed project for a club house on the municipal golf course, but no action was taken.

High School Youth Almost Waylaid Sunday Night

Edward Smouse, Oakland high student, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smouse, narrowly escaped being waylaid Sunday night as he was returning to his home on the State road at the north edge of Oakland.

He said as he neared White's Garage, North Third street, two young men in CCC uniforms came out of the shadows and called to him, "Hey, buddy, come here, we want to see you." As they advanced upon him "Eddie" said he gave one of them a shove and then ran for home. They appeared to have been drinking, he stated.

They didn't demand any money or anything, but whether or not this was their purpose, "Eddie" said he didn't wait to see.

ALLEGED FORGERS KEEP COUNTY OFFICERS BUSY

"Dick" Helbig Has Run For His Money When He Chased One Of Those Now Incarcerated

BUT HE GETS MONEY BACK

The county had a run on alleged forgers over the week-end, and Charles C. "Dick" Helbig also had to run for his money when he gave chase to one of the alleged forgers. He got his money—even though he didn't win any track records.

As a result of the week-end activities Mr. and Mrs. Noah Rodeffer, who gave their address as Harrisonburg, Va., are in the county jail waiting for action of the March Grand Jury. They were said to have cashed forged checks at Helbig's Mill and at Aronhalt's Feed Store.

Howard King and William Hicks are also in the county jail and DeLeon Fike and James Schroyer, who were "enforced guests up on the hill," have been turned over to authorities in Kingwood, W. Va. All four of the young men are from Friendsville. The latter two were said to have left a trail of forged checks over in Preston county, while King and Hicks were with Fike and Schroyer when an attempt was made to cash a check at Lakeside Park several days ago, in payment for some gasoline. When Mrs. Railey questioned the check, she said the four drove off without paying for the gasoline.

Unusual Chase

Rodeffer and his wife were apprehended only after an unusual and exciting chase, at least for Dick Helbig. According to Dick and Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, who investigated, Rodeffer stopped at Helbig's Mill and purchased a small amount of feed, giving in payment a check for $16.50 supposedly signed by Russell T. Beekman, of near town. He got some cash in return.

Reflecting later he scrutinized the check and discovered that it was not Mr. Beekman's signature. He decided to make a search and at random picked the Oakland-Terra Alta highway. West of Corinth he recognized the man driving an automobile going toward Terra Alta. He kept ahead of the man until he came to the narrow bridge near Hopemont when he blocked the road. The man suddenly stopped, turned the car around and headed for Oakland. "Dick" caught up again at Corinth and the man turned the car across the railroad tracks and along a cinder pathway but when the pathway narrowed he was compelled to stop. He continued his flight on foot along the tracks with "Dick" still in pursuit. Finally the man called, "What do you want?" When "Dick" told him in no uncertain terms, he replied, "If I give you the money will you let me off?" and when "Dick" agreed he dropped the money on the railroad tracks, and continued in flight. After "Dick" had recovered the money he returned to the man's car. A woman accompanying him and later identified as Rodeffer's wife, was still in the car, but "Dick" obtained the keys, got into his own car and returned to Oakland.

Rodeffer's car was later brought to Oakland by State's Attorney Fraley and Corporal Currie, and since that time Mr. Fraley reported that the tags were from a stolen car in Harrisonburg and that possibly the car also is a stolen one from Roanoke, Va.

Apprehended At Kingwood, W. Va.

Rodeffer and his wife were apprehended the following day at Kingwood when he accosted a deputy and asked a ride to Morgantown. A description of the man having been broadcast by authorities the deputy recognized the man and was about to place him under arrest when he fled, but was finally overtaken when he became entangled in a barbed wire fence and after the deputy had fired several shots in his direction.

Served Term In Virginia Prison

Fraley said Rodeffer was released from a prison in Virginia where he had been sentenced to two years on a larceny charge.

Samuel Aronhalt identified the man as the one who also bought some feed from him and gave him a check in payment, which required the "shelling out" of about $13.00 in cash. Mr. Aronhalt, not participating in the chase with Helbig, has not yet been reimbursed as Rodeffer had only a few cents in his pockets when arrested.

PYTHIANS PREPARE FOR BIRTHDAY OBSERVANCE

February Will Mark 50th Anniversary of Founding of Local Order

In preparation for the 50th anniversary celebration of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, during the month of February, a committee was appointed at the last meeting to arrange a program and complete other details for one of the largest get-togethers in its history.

In addition to observing the 50th anniversary of the founding of the local order, the 75th anniversary of the founding of the parent order in Washington, D. C., will be celebrated.

The committee appointed included Harry L. Stemple, Alva G. Gortner, Walter W. Dawson, W. O. Davis, Paul B. Naylor, Arthur Lawton and I. R. Rudy.

The Pythian order was founded February 19, and the exact date of the celebration is to be announced next week following a meeting of the committee. As in past years the Pythians will also probably observe their annual Ladies' Night.

FIREMEN ARE KEPT BUSY ANSWERING FIVE ALARMS

T. E. Shaffer Store at Mt. Storm, W. Va., Is Entirely Destroyed

The Oakland Fire Department answered five alarms within the past week, three of them being within sixteen hours last Friday and Saturday.

No damage resulted from any of the flue fires Friday and Saturday at the homes of John Michael, Mt. Lake Park road; David K. Glaze, South Oakland, and at the Gift Shop, Third street. Another call coming yesterday afternoon from the F. A. Smouse store resulted in no damage, except a broken axe handle of the Fire Department. The cause of the alarm at the Smouse store was said to be from a short circuit in the wiring between the floors.

The large store of T. E. Shaffer, at Mt. Storm, W. Va., about twenty-two miles from Oakland, on route 50, was entirely destroyed by fire last Saturday evening. A call came to the Oakland department about 10 o'clock and although the truck was not taken members of the local company left at once. Companies and trucks from Petersburg and Keyser, W. Va., were at the scene when the local members arrived.

The fire, which was thought to have originated in a defective flue, had been burning about two hours when the local firemen got there. Because of lack of water the blaze slowly got out of control. At about 1 o'clock the fire companies backed away from the building and gave up the fight and concentrated on the houses nearby which were saved.

Mr. Shaffer estimates his loss at about $20,000, with insurance of about $7,500. The store was said to have been substantially built and the owner carried quite a complete stock of goods.

In regard to local fires, Emroy Bolden, fire chief, stated, "If the person first seeing the flue fire will get in touch with the local fire company at once, we will stand a much better chance of preventing a real conflagration." The Oakland department has acknowledged a donation of $10.00 from Miss Beulah Loughridge, of the Gift Shop.

The local company has answered ten calls since December 1.

Scout Leaders To Be Invested At Meeting This Evening

A captain and a lieutenant of the Oakland Girl Scout Troop No. 1, and two members of the scout troop committee will be invested at a special ceremony at the scout hall this evening.

Miss Mary Virginia Cooper was appointed as captain and Miss Dorothea Fridinger as second lieutenant at a meeting of the troop committe about a month ago. Miss Beryl Davis is the first lieutenant of the troop.

Besides Misses Cooper and Fridinger two members of the troop committee, Mrs. J. G. Robinson and Mrs. R. F. Boening, will also be invested.

It was also announced this week that Mrs. Willard Elliott, who recently accepted the responsibility of organizing a Brownie group, composed of girls under scout age, would start her meetings on Saturday morning in the City Hall.

COMMISSIONERS DECIDE TO KEEP ROAD MACHINERY

Disregard Threat Of Group Of Taxpayers To Institute Court Proceedings Against Them

NO ACTION IS TAKEN YET

Disregarding the threat of a group of taxpayers that legal action would be instituted if the Board of County Commissioners did not cancel their order for road machinery, amounting to approximately $43,000, they announced on Monday to a committee that they "would stick to their guns."

G. Blaine Giessman, president of the Board, told the committee, "we intend to continue with our plans" after the committee had criticized the action, declaring taxes would be increased and that the Board had exceeded its authority in making the purchases of the road equipment. "We aren't going to let a bunch of politicians scare us out," Giessman added.

Senator Clifford Friend, arriving at the Court House a few minutes after the decision of the Board had been announced (Mr. Friend being a member of the committee), asked for the decision of the Board, was told by Mr. Giessman to "Go down to Annapolis where you belong; you weren't elected to run the office of the County Commissioner," as the Senator began to remonstrate with them on their decision. The Commissioners then declared the meeting at an end as Friend attempted to address the gathering.

Hold Impromptu Session

Seventy-five persons were present when the committee asked for the decision of the Commissioners. The majority of the persons were farmers whose properties are located on dirt roads and WPA workers who favored the Commissioners' program to speed up work on WPA roads projects by the use of machinery.

An impromptu meeting continued in the rotunda of the Court House with Senator Friend trying to explain the committee's point of view. Mr. Friend was interrupted at times, Giessman stating at one time, "He's just telling you a pack of lies."

Arthur Frantz, Deer Park, pointing his finger at Friend, said, "What the people of this county want is roads. We WPA workers want a chance to work on the job, but we haven't been able to do much heretofore without machinery and trucks. Give the Commissioners a chance. They were elected by the people."

A cheer arose at the conclusion of this speech, and after another person had stepped up to inform Senator Friend that he had made a complete about face on the roads question since the election campaign, William R.

Appeal For Support For Band Brings $225 From 40 Citizens

A letter appealing for support of the Oakland Boys Band, mailed to 75 or 100 local citizens last week by the band committee of the Oakland Rotary Club, sponsors of the organization, has brought about forty replies already and donations amounting to $225, it was announced this morning by Julius B. Littman, treasurer.

The Rotary club recently decided to sponsor the band and set up a budget for its activities, amounting to $600. About $300 was to be raised from the citizens, if possible, the balance coming from local organizations. The budget provides for some payment for a director.

Members of the committee in charge are Grover C. Stemple, Dr. W. W. Grant, R. E. Weber, Arthur Lawton, Emroy Bolden, F. D. Bittle, Delbert Davis, secretary, and Julius B. Littman, treasurer.

Oakland F. F. A. Boy Wins

Competing in a State-wide F. F. A. Project Contest, Ralph Baker, president of the Oakland Chapter F.F.A., won the first prize for the outstanding Sheep Project in the State.

In the different divisions of the contest 2,200 boys are eligible to compete for prizes which are awarded for the best and most outstanding projects in each division.

The awards were presented Thursday afternoon, January 12, by President Nuttle, The Maryland Farm Bureau in connection with their annual meeting held at the Lord Baltimore hotel.

PETER DENIES HIS LORD

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:31, 32, 54-62.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.—I Corinthians 10:12.

One of the most heartbreaking experiences we have as Christians is to find that one in whom we have had every confidence as a true and faithful follower of the Lord, has denied Him by going out into almost unbelievable sin. Often it seems that those who, like Peter, have had the loftiest and most inspiring fellowship with the Lord, and who speak with the greatest ease about His love and grace, turn to the most reprehensible of sins.

Lest any unbeliever who reads this begin to gloat over the failures of Christians, let him be reminded now of his own sin which needs his attention, and of the fact that though Peter fell, he arose again to victory and usefulness. May it also be said that none of us has any right to a "holier than thou" attitude toward a brother who has fallen. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall" (I Cor. 10:12), and let him in brokenhearted sympathy help to restore his stricken brother "in the spirit of meekness: considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted" (Gal. 6:1).

I. Sifted but Not Destroyed (vv. 31, 32).

Satan, who is a far more powerful spiritual being than most folk think, is actively interested in tempting the Christian. He uses many clever devices. Although he is not possessed of divine powers, he does have supernatural cunning and knows the weakness of each one of us. He knew the boastful self-assurance of Peter and was ready to tempt him at that point. Jesus knew this, and even in this dark hour shortly before His crucifixion He takes time to warn Peter, and with His warning to give the assurance that though it was to be tried, his faith was not to fail, and that he was to be restored to fellowship and service when he "turned again," which is the correct translation for the word "converted."

II. Self-assurance and Disgraceful Failure (vv. 33, 34, 54-60).

Peter was sure of himself and of his consecration to the Lord. A man who stands in that place is in grave danger. It is not long before we find Peter, apparently presuming on his own ability to stand fast, consorting with the enemies of Christ, warming himself by their fire. Someone has suggested that the great spiritual problem of our day is not the conflict between the Church and the world; nor is it to determine how the Church can best serve in the world, but rather what to do about the world which has gotten into the Church. How did worldliness get into the Church? The members brought it there after they had gone out and warmed themselves at the world's fire, and fellowshiped with the world in ungodly living.

The denials made by Peter seem almost unbelievable in the life of one who had been in immediate fellowship with the Lord and who had seen His glory. We have here a revelation of the fact that "the heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked; who can know it?" (Jer. 17:9). We agree with Dr. Wilbur M. Smith: "This is of the Devil. This is humanity sinking to the lowest plane of base ingratitude. This is shame upon shame." One might have hoped that one denial would bring quick and sincere repentance, but instead it leads the way to a second and to a third. There seemed to be nothing that could stop Peter, until "the Lord turned and looked" at him. This suggests the only effective way to deal with backsliders. Argument, pleading, even shaming them, will do no good. We must bring them to the place where they meet their Lord.

III. The Look of Love and a Broken Heart (vv. 61, 62).

What was in the look of Jesus is perhaps best expressed by Alexander Maclaren: "It spoke of Christ's knowledge, of Christ's pain, of Christ's love."

The backslider needs first of all to realize that the Lord knows all about his denials and sin. He has been hiding things from his family and friends, denying accusations, trying to cover up his guilt. Let him now abandon every such effort. Jesus knows all about it.

The second thing to be realized is that he has added to the pain and sorrow of his Lord. For a believer to turn away from Him is no light matter, to be casually dealt with. He needs to be deeply conscious of the wounding of the heart of the Lord, as well as of the damage done to God's people and His cause in the earth.

But above all it was a look of love. The Lord deals in tenderness with the backslider. While he never can or will condone sin, He loves the sinner, and especially does He love the one who belongs to Him but who has gone astray. What a gracious Lord we do have!

Family Bickering Normal

A moderate amount of grumbling, a little nagging and occasional sharp arguments are generally signs of a healthy family relationship, says Dr. Paul C. Young, Louisiana State University psychologist at Baton Rouge.

Such news as this should make a lot of families in Garrett county feel better—and more normal.

He explains his stand this way:

"How shall the family handle anger and bitter talk? Certainly not by denying that anger often exists in the family; instead, by allowing the one who feels aggrieved to state his grievance. If grievances are stated honestly they can be righted promptly and 'making up' can take place. Sometimes in a family that 'never had a quarrel we see terrible explosion."

* * *

President Roosevelt says he doesn't eat "grilled millionaire."

Somehow, this reminds us of a cannibal chief, who upon becoming acquainted with the white man's method of warfare, asked an officer: "You no eat 'em? Why you shoot 'em?"

* * *

The Wail of The Males

Have you a little buckwheat starter in your home? And if so, is it added to every night so that next morning there will be many little and many big buckwheat cakes? Or is it allowed to stand and get sour? Or is it thrown out and forgotten about, and never a fresh "starter" brought in from the neighbors or from some few scattered homes where they cater to the desires of the stomach regularly throughout the winter months.

Of course, I'm not getting personal in this matter. With me and my stomach, what it is, buckwheat cakes would not make good fodder and aid digestion. Now, several years ago I could have gotten personal. For instance, there were two traits that I determined to look for in a wife when I was yet very young and tender. She must be able to play the piano and be able to bake good buckwheat cakes.

This, you'll understand, was before I fell in love—and then it didn't matter. It didn't stop me, however, from attempting, after the honeymoon, from trying to arouse her enthusiasm for buckwheat. She was from West Virginia—but not from Preston county, which ranks pretty well along with Garrett for its buckwheat fame.

The enthusiasm, I soon found out, was not to be aroused as far as buckwheat was concerned, and as for the piano—I determined to learn to play myself. Lesson ten, on a 36-lesson course ($36.00 by mail, if you please,) was as far as I ever got in this. At that I was ahead of my wife on lessons. Her buckwheat-making lessons never got beyond number four.

I never considered allowing such information to be spread about the world until recently. In September, I read in an article in the Farmer's Wife Magazine that the editor, F. W. Beckman, and one of his field editors, Carroll Streeter, had brought to St. Paul, Minnesota, some pure and unadulterated buckwheat from a distance of one thousand miles, and that the subsequent results were worth the effort.

So at Christmas time I sent them some Garrett County buckwheat and pure maple syrup. The replies I got from the editors convinced me that I was not alone in suffering for lack of buckwheat. On the other hand there were evidently many husbands in the same predicament.

Mr. Beckman wrote, "When I was a youngster among the hills of northeastern Iowa, buckwheat pancakes were a regular fare from the time we put on red flannel underwear until the time we took it off. But in all the years since I went away from home buckwheat cakes have been too infrequently a part of my fare.

"In this attitude of women folks with respect to buckwheat cakes I am inclined to think there ought to be a law about it with severe penalties for not having them when the makings are available."

Mr. Streeter wrote, "I have been thinking a good while about this problem of getting the pancakes actually made. The same applies to coffee cake and sour cream cookies. I wonder how it would be to put a chart on the kitchen wall and give the cook a star every day she obliged. Or maybe we could have a flagpole on the house and run up a suitable banner to signalize the occasion."

* * *

If any readers have any workable ideas, they might let me know so that I can pass them on to husbands, whose wives are not too much prejudiced against the daily winter routine of buckwheat cakes.

* * *

The Garrett County buckwheat and maple syrup, by the way, were tested in the Country Kitchen of the Farmer's Wife magazine, by Miriam Williams, foods editor, and a stag lunch held, attended by representatives of the Farmer's Wife, and The Farmer.

One of the men wrote: "She tried three recipes on us—one using some white flour, one using some cornmeal and one straight buckwheat—but after the first round she had a hard time selling anything but the straight buckwheat. We all agreed that there was no use contaminating good buckwheat with anything."

Scoop will welcome comments, either upon buckwheat, or other favorite edibles, which they get regularly or have a hard time getting at all. And no hard feelings against the wives is expressed or even intended.

Man Living Alone Found Dead

John Lenz, of Shallmar, where he was employed as a miner, was found dead in his bed Monday morning. The discovery was made by a neighbor who had gone into Lenz's house to secure his laundry.

Constable Roy Sowers was called and he made an investigation. The man, according to authorities, had been dead about eight hours when his body was found and that the cause of death was a probable heart attack suffered during the night preceding.

Lenz had been a resident of the community for about thirty years. He was unmarried and had no known relatives in this section. No further investigation is contemplated by the State's Attorney's office.

CLARIFYING THE ISSUE—

The Republican, in its news stories of the past three weeks, has pictured the situation in regard to the Commissioners' purchase of road machinery, not only from the Commissioner's side of the picture, but from the side of the taxpayers who oppose the move. We gave the facts as the facts were disclosed.

It has attempted to bring to light through editorial opinion the motives behind some of the men in the controversy.

It believes the people are entitled to know the facts, and in pursuance of this policy, it had a representative at the meeting last week with the Commissioners and the taxpayers' committee. Last week's story contained those facts as brought out in the meeting.

An account of the same meeting appearing in the Mountain Democrat did not coincide with the facts in three instances. Whether this was deliberate on their part or deliberate on the part of the person from whom they obtained the information, we do not know. We do know that there was no representative of that paper at the committee meeting, and on the surface the misrepresentation of facts looks like more political schemes to discredit the Republican Commissioners.

The Democrat stated, "The Commissioners stated that they did not contemplate levying anything this year to cover the payments due under the contracts hut it was not made clear just how they proposed to meet the payments."

The Republican definitely stated what was brought out in the meeting, that "money to pay for the machinery was to come from back taxes against which there were no orders drawn, and from the credit the WPA would allow them for use of the machinery."

Whether the Commissioners can do this or not is not the question for the moment. They definitely and distinctly said this was how they expected to pay for the machinery. Misrepresentation No. 1 in the Democrat.

Misrepresentation No. 2.—The Democrat stated "The Commissioners informed the Committee that the local agent representing the concern from whom they had purchased the machinery was Mr. Ernest Selby, of Selbysport, and that the purchase had been made through him as agent."

Actually what was said and what the committee heard was that the Commissioners said Ernest Selby was the salesman, but that the machinery was purchased direct and any commissions that might be paid Selby would result from agreements between the Company and Selby, not the County Commissioners. This statement was made in The Republican last week.

A lot of trouble being stirred up in the Friendsville section seems to be about this very item, and not about the improvement of roads or the increase of taxes.

Allegedly libelous statements concerning "divvies" and "commissions" were uttered in the meeting on December 31, about which there has been absolutely no proof, but which continue to persist. Until they can be proven, no person who is after facts should allow such whispering charges to sway him from the real question.

The question after all is one of opinion on the soundness of the plan of the Commissioners. If they can work it out satisfactorily and provide more roads, they will be praised. If they fail, they will be condemned for their policy from one end of the county to the other.

Whether they can satisfy the people is a question we are not prepared to answer. At least they have the strength of their convictions and they were elected for four years by a substantial majority to run the affairs of the county.

How many of those so bitterly opposed to the plan voted for these three Commissioners in the general election, or ever favored their actions?

Unknown Heroes Made Known

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Cornelius Johnson, residing between Oakland and Sang Run, brought to Oakland the skin of a tremendous wildcat, which he had trapped. The animal was caught by the feet.

Fifty-four subscribers were added to The Republican list in one day.

A donation of groceries, provisions, etc., along with an overcoat for the pastor and an onyx table for his wife, was tendered to Rev. R. B. Ward at the Methodist church. A large number of his parishioners were present.

Voters in the western end of Allegany county were objecting to the new boundary line by which they were moved into Garrett county. In Allegany county the difference in the tax rates stirred some of the residents to the point of taking the matter into court. The voters, they said, wanted to remain Alleganians. This statement was disputed by one who helped lay the line, saying only one taxpayer had become displeased.

Tax receipts in the State were $2,095,314.22. The tax basis of the State was $603,326,096.

A story from the Parsons Advocate said J. Ed. Kildow, editor of the Beverly Enterprise, and also a preacher, made a proposition to marry any couple for three pounds of ginseng. He had several calls. Wanting some groceries, he hied himself to the nearest groceryman. Upon examination of his "deposit" he found out it was poke root. The preacher-editor then fell back on the old reliable coon skin.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Nearly one thousand hunting licenses were issued during the year 1918, according to a report of the Conservation Commission.

Seven states completed ratification of the prohibition constitutional amendment, bringing the number taking such action to 30. The number necessary for ratification was 36.

The coal market was overstocked, consumption falling off since the close of the war and many mines in this section ceased operations or were running half time.

Herman Creutzburg advertised for sale his entire stock of general merchandise and also his real estate on Alder street. Mr. Creutzburg planned to retire from business on account of failing health.

Ice was being harvested from the lake at Mountain Lake Park, and also from Helbig's lake, near town. The ice was from five to eight inches in thickness.

A movement for a memorial to soldiers gathered force as a meeting of delegates from every district in the county was called. Letters by the hundred had been received favoring the memorial.

BACK TO SANITY AND COMMON SENSE

Jack Houston, recently reelected to Congress from the Wichita, Kansas, district by the small majority of but 467, in a Topeka State Journal interview, says:

"I believe I know just what the voters were driving at and I intend to give heed to their mandate. They are against the New Deal. They are against borrowing and spending and they are against court packing and the agricultural adjustment act and the wage-hour bill, the federal labor board and all the other things that have groups of interests. No one thing did it. As I interpret the vote, they were registering a protest against the New Deal generally."

If the truth was known there are a great many reelected Democrats by reduced majorities, formerly New Dealers and rubber stamp men, who secretly entertain the same views as Houston and when the time comes will give heed to the people's mandate. Fed up on New Deal nonsense and pretense, such Democrats will now begin to study their party's platform instead of falling for fireside chats and chasing rainbows. They will see the solemn pledge to "reduce the cost of government 25 per cent" and vote against the profligate waste and expenditures of the people's tax moneys.

The New Deal is on the skids and they know it. In 1940 they will be running as rapidly away from it as they ran for it in 1936.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, January 18, 1939

With the inauguration of Governor Herbert R. O'Connor on Wednesday and the convening of the new legislature, your columnist once more dons his dark glasses and puts on the long white beard and becomes the shadow of the legislators from all parts of the state. As a special feature of The Republican we shall dwell this year with the Garrett County delegation in particular and generalize on the important issues which will come before the House and the Senate. We shall attempt to give previews of coming legislation and our opinions will at all times be unbiased.

Organization and the appointment of committees took up all the time of the lawmakers during the first session and as usual the Garrett County delegation played little part in the proceedings. All of the county representatives have been placed on committees and these appointments will appear next week.

Although Governor OConnor has warned against the usual dilly-dallying at the State House it is hard to believe that the boys will not revert to the bi-annual beating around the mulberry bush for the first several weeks of the session. The new Governor apparently means business but he must remember that down through the ages Governors of the Free State have grown grey trying to whip the playboys of the legislature into a great deliberative body. Perhaps he will leave this important and difficult task to his able and experienced advisers, Curran and Bruce—at any rate it's a headache for someone.

Sweeping reorganization of State government, including the abolition of ten major state departments was advocated recently in the report of the commission headed by Dr. Isiah Bowman. Dr. Bowman is president of Johns Hopkins University.

Unlike the findings of most commissions, the recommendations of the Bowman report are now being drafted into bills which will in due time be presented to the legislature for approval. Governor O'Connor has expressed his unqualified approval of the report.

Other important measures will be discussed with the presentation of the new budget which will call for an increase of perhaps ten million dollars in the state expenditures. New taxes will naturally be necessary and the most prominent increase will be in the income tax which is almost certain to be doubled.

The matter of jury service for women is being urged by womens' organizations all over the state and when the bill is presented by Miss Doub of Allegany county it is our guess that it will be passed without serious opposition.

Of particular interest to Garrett county is the question of county roads. At this point it is difficult to determine the trend but we shall endeavor to keep the readers of The Republican informed on this and other problems which are of definite importance to the county and the state.

Until next week's deadline your columnist returns to the scene of battle to keep his eyes and ears open and to keep you informed as to the trend at Annapolis.

RAILROADS—NO. 1 TAXPAYER—

Every American citizen has a direct financial stake in the railroad industry because of the tremendous taxes it pays—taxes that would have to be made up by heavier levies on all other businesses and individuals, if the railroads were socialized.

In 1937, all the revenue received during 29 average operating days went to the tax collector—as against 22 days in 1927.

For every dollar the railroads paid their owners in dividends in 1937, they paid $1.91 in taxes—as against 67 cents in 1917.

For every employe in 1937, they paid $292.16 in taxes, as against $123.45 in 1917.

The taxes paid by the railroads amount to more than the Federal income taxes paid by the residents of Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and all the states West of the Mississippi River.

The insolvency of a number of railroads and the economic dangers facing the industry as a whole, have justly worried many local units of government. Many a county literally lives almoste entirely on the tax revenue received from a railroad. And the railroads are among the chief supporters of school districts. Their school taxes alone come to more than $100,000,000 a year—enough to edueate 1,300,000 children. Destroy the railroads, or make them tax-exempt as they would be under government ownership, and our educational system would receive a terrific financial blow.

Taxes paid constitute just one of the tremendous economic contributions made to all America by this essential industry! It's no wonder that economists, the press, government officials and other thinking people are urging that legislation to help the rails regain their economic feet, be framed immediately by Congress.

TURBINE LOCOMOTIVE

It is big news when a steam turbine engine, with an electric drive, like those in the most modern ocean steamships is mounted in a railway locomotive. Here is the most impressive step so far in the moderinzation of American railroads.

The engine built in Erie, Pa., and recently given its first trial, is described as "shaped like a giant projectile." It develops 5,000 horsepower, can go 125 miles an hour, and can haul a passenger train from coast to coast "on a bathtub full of water." It need only stop briefly every 700 miles or so for a filling of fuel oil, and could carry all the fuel needed for a 3,000-mile trip if it were worth while to haul the extra weight. In such a case, that incredible steed might literally run from New York to San Francisco without a stop.

The turbine type of power plant avoids vibration, has few moving parts and saves much weight in metal. It needs little water because it can use the same water over and over. The power from the steam turbine is turned into electric energy and applied directly to motors geared to the driving wheels. Efficiency is said to be so great that it uses only half as much fuel as an ordinary modern locomotive.

It looks like the Locomotive of the Future, and the biggest competitor of the automobile that has yet appeared.

DEEP CREEK LAKE BODY MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS

Requests Garrett County Delegation To Enact Them Into Laws

The Deep Creek Lake Association has sent a number of recommedations concerning the lake to the Garrett County delegation at Annapolis and requested that these recommendations be enacted into law.

The Association also asks that the license charge on boats be lifted, pointing out that nowhere else in Maryland is a license of that kind required.

"The season lasts only eight to ten weeks and the owners of the boats can see no reason for the discrimination," Major E. B. Garey, secretary of the organization, said. "Why license boats here and not elsewhere. It is expensive to bring motor and other large boats here and people who want to enjoy small boats many times can't afford it. It is just another thing that drives people away from the lake and keeps them from becoming willing taxpayers," he said.

The association requested the following: That the present three-day fishing license on the lake be extended to one week for the same fee—$2.25; the issuance of a one-day license, fee $1.25; that all boats be required to have on board a life preserver for each passenger; surf boat riders should be required to wear a life preserver and proper head gear; all commercial swimming beaches be required to have on hand six grappling hooks to be used in case of drowning; the lake should be closed each year to fishing until July 1.

In addition to the above the Association reported it saw no justification for a fish screen being constructed at the dam because of the expense involved and the lack of substantial evidence that such a large expenditure of money would be justified. A careful inquiry into the facts, the letter stated, discloses that the loss of game fish at the hydro-electric power plant had been greatly exaggerated.

With several inches of snow spasmodically falling in this community, beginning last Friday, January 13, it has now reached a depth of about six inches on the level. In other parts of the state, particularly Cumberland and Baltimore, those communities have experienced a total fall of twelve to fifteen inches, with road equipment being operated day and night to make traffic possible. Here in Oakland, the street commissioner, George Fulk, is doing a good job in keeping the streets cleared by plowing the snow to the curb long before the average citizens thinks of getting out of his bed. Result, those who walk to their work have a smooth pathway if they take to the roadway, and the most of them do just that. Thanks to you, Mr. Street Commissioner.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

Attacks On The Press

Washington, Jan. 11.

It would be interesting to know what really is the frame of mind of these Administration spokesmen who make a regular business of denouncing the press. For example, there is the voluble and vituperative, but very intelligent, Mr. Ickes.

* * *

His stock thesis, expounded the other night, is that the press is owned by sinister financial interests, controlled by the advertisers, unfair to the working man and prints the news only when it pleases. Yet the following morning the newspapers printed Mr. Ickes' speech lambasting them more fully than they prioted Mr. Gannett's speech defending them. In addition, more space was gievn Mr. Ickes' denunciation by papers opposed to the New Deal than by some which support it. Indeed, one of the most ardent of the New Deal papers, which Mr. Ickes singled out for praise, appears to have been the only metropolitan newspaper which printed nothing at all about the debate.

* * *

I'y few other big-city papers was Mr. Ickes' attack even minimized. On the contrary, one which he assailed by name—the Herald Tribune—not only gave Mr. Ickes preferred position over Mr. Gannett but devoted its headlines largely to the former, almost excluding the latter. These facts seem to make Mr. Ickes' allegations look foolish and himself a little ridiculous. His protection, of course, is that the people as a whole so completely take it for granted that the newspapers print the news that they do not stop to reflect that the mere printing hy the newspapers of Mr. Ickes' savage attack on the newspapers constituted a fairly convincing answer.

* * *

Certainly, if what Mr. Ickes says of the newspapers is true, the newspapers wouldn't print it. Can anyone imagine the sinister interests whom Mr. Ickes insists own the newspapers permitting Mr. Ickes to say in their sinisterly controlled columns that they are sinister interests and do own the papers? If they did that, they would be less sinister than stupid. Actually, of course, it is an ancient aod well-recognized custom among a certain breed of politicians to hammer the press. It is very old stuff for politicians to deny their indiscreet and damaging remarks which get into print (Mr. Hopkins is the most recent case in point) and it is equally old stuff for politicians placed on the defensive to howl about the venal and licentious press.

* * *

But no sensible publisher objects to that. No sound newspaper editor or owner wants to stop the Ickes tirades. Only the foolish ones retort in kind. Every informed newspaper man knows that good newspapers thrive on that kind of attack; that it is a sure sign their criticism is effective and their aim true. The time for newspaper publishers to worry is not when the job-holding politicians abuse and deny, but when they don't. When that happens it is a disturbing sign, an indication that something or someone bas slipped. There is nothing more healthful for a newspaper than a large, continuous dose of political denunciation. It is the surest sign of journalistic well-being. No politician ever denounces an uninfluential paper or denies the words of an ineffectual writer.

* * *

Particularly, newspapers should welcome denunciation from men like Mr. Ickes, whose inahility to refrain from personalities, congenital virulence and airy disregard of fact would react against his own case, even if he had a good one. It is easy enough to fiod things about newspapers which justifies criticism. No one maintains they are without flaw and no one contends there are not had newspapers. But the sort of criticism practiced by this Administration and the sort of charges made by the Ickeses, the Mintons and the Blacks is so wide of the mark as to spend itself in the air. It is the kind of stuff to which newspapers have been accustomed by generations of politicians who have toward the press the natural hostility of the criticized toward the critic. When the press so behaves as to remove that hostility it will deserve more criticism than it gives or gets.

As a matter of fact, while nearly every President and many an officeholder has had his personal grievances against certain critical newspapers and newspaper men, this is the only Administration which has made hostility to the press a general policy. And that is the more curious because no Administration that can be recalled had as kind and considerate treatoien from the press as this one has had. Particularly is this true in regard to the President's family. The fiction has been promoted that the bulk of the newspapers are against Mr. Roosevelt. The facts do not bear this out. One fact is that in one whole section of the country ninety-eight per cent of the papers are for him. Another is that the New York newspaper with a circulation twice as large as any other in the country is—and has been from the start—as strongly for Mr. Roosevelt as, for example, Mr. Ickes or Mr. Hopkins.

It isn't even true that most of the so-called columnists are anti-Roosevelt. A count of these will reveal that a majority lean toward the President. One of these is Mrs. Roosevelt, who more and more is using her widely syndicated and highly lucrative column to promote the New Deal policies and aid the New Deal propaganda. If newspapers venture to criticize this or any other commercial or political activity of the family, they are made to seem wicked and unfeeling by Mrs. Roosevelt's plea that she and her children be allowed to live their "normal lives."

Homemakers' Column

Pork

With present day refrigeration fresh pork is available all year, however, most of us still think of it as a cold-weather favorite. This is especially true on the farm where pork is being butchered throughout tbe winter months.

At one time the apple was about the only fruit associated with pork. True enough it does make a pleasing flavor contrast whether baked, fried, broiled, glazed, or served up in fancy circles, centered with nuts, raisins, or candied cherries, but now homemakers are finding that other fruits such as pineapple, peaches, cranberries, and apricots make a pleasing flavor combination also.

Sausage Cakes

Make sausage meat into flat, round cakes, panbroil in hot frying pan until well done. Serve with one of the following:

Fried Apple Rings

Core tart apples. Pare or not, as desired. Cut in half-inch slices. Fry (saute) in butter, bacon, or sausage fat until tender but not broken, turning once.

Glazed Pineapple

Empty a can of sliced pineapple into a shallow granite-ware baking pan, not allowing slices to overlap one another. Place over very slow heat and simmer 2 or 3 hours, when pineapple will be quite clear. Remove to serviog dish and garnish center of each with a glaceed cherry.

Sauteed Bananas

Remove skins from bananas, cut in halves lengthwise, and again cut in halves crosswise. Dredge with flour aod fry (saute) in clarified butter. Drain and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Rost Stuffed Spareribs

Two matching spareribs, well fleshed; apple stuffing, salt, pepper, flour.

Have breastbone cracked to make carving easier. Wipe, spread stuffing on one section, cover with other, and sew together. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Rub with flour. Place on rack in open roasting pan and sear 20 minutes in hot oven (500 degrees F.) or until lightly browned. Reduce temperature rapidly to slow (300 degrees F.) and cook about 1 hour, or until tender. Remove strings before serving.

Apple Stuffing

One-fourth cup diced salt pork, ½ cup chopped celery, 1-2 cup chopped onion, I cup fine dry bread crumbs, ¼ eup chopped parsley, 5 tart apples, diced; 1-2 cup sugar, salt and pepper.

Fry pork until crisp, remove pieces. Cook celeray, onion, and parsley in fat 3 minutes and remove. Put apples in fat, sprinkle with sugar, cover, and cook slowly until tender. Uncover and cook until glazed. Add crumbs, salt pork scraps and cooked vegetables, and season.

SICKNESS IN REPORTABLE DISEASES ON DECREASE

1938 Had Especially Favorable Record With 17,000 Less Cases

Provisional figures for 1938, issued by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, for sickness from the "reportable" diseases, which include the major contagious or infectious diseases, show that last year went down into history with an especially favorable record for such diseases.

There were 39,184 cases of infectious or contagious diseases reported during the year in comparison with 56,230 in 1937; 47,261 in 1936; 39,487 in 1935; 63,089 in 1934 and 39,781 in 1933. The total in 1938 was divided between Baltimore City and the counties as follows: Baltimore City, 23,104; the counties, 16,080.

There were no outbreaks of outstanding importance, and measles and influenza which add materially to the total in epidemic years, were at a low ebb; 2,561 cases of measles were reported in comparison with 12,230 in 1937; and 523 of influenza as compared to 3,454 in 1937.

Less than half as many cases of whooping cough were reported; 2,315 in comparison with 4,970 in 1937. Typhoid fever dropped from 327 in 1937 to 284 in 1938; diphtheria from 513 in 1937 to 124 in 1938; poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis), from 82 in 1937 to 124 in 1938, and meningitis, from 269 in 1937 to 89 in 1938. There were 200 fewer cases of tuberculosis (all forms) reported, and nearly 400 fewer of the pneumonias. The totals for these diseases were: Tuberculosis, 3,297 in 1937; 2,999 in 1938; the pneumonias, 3,451 in 1937 and 3,061 in 1938.

Diseases in which increases were observed, included Rocky Mountain spotted fever, of which 54 cases were reported; undulant fever, 60 cases; malaria 26; tularemia 30, and septic sore throat 300; in comparison with the following in 1937, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, 38; undulant fever, 44; malaria, 17; tularemia, 23, and septic sore throat, 274. There were 2,166 cases of scarlet fever reported in comparison with 2,064 in 1937. The intensive campaign being carried on for the control of the venereal diseases was reflected in a marked increase in the total of cases of such diseases reported, from 13,353 in 1937, to 16,562 in 1938.

The list of "reportable" diseases includes about 40 that are "catching" in some way. Physicians in attendance are requested to report the occurrence of such diseases among their patients to the nearest health officer, in order that measures to prevent their spread may be instituted without delay. When there is no physician in attendance the responsibility for reporting certain diseases shifts to householders, or to others with knowledge of the facts.

Over nine-tenths of the sickness reported in 1938 was divided among three groups of diseases. The so-called children's diseases including measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria and whooping cough, were responsible for 33 per cent of the total. The veneral diseases were charged with 42 per cent, and the pneumonias, tuberculosis and influenza accounted for 16 per cent. The rest was divided among all other diseases.

THE REPUBLICAN

MT. LAKE PARK

We are indebted to Mr. Bushrod Grimes, of Morgantown, for some very interesting and valuable literature issued by the Conservation Commission of West Virginia. This literature and illustrated booklet in food and shelter for upland game we shall turn over to the Young Sportmen's Club here.

This last bit of real winter has brought to mind the winter of 1935, when farmers and sportsmen together supplied food in order that hundreds of game birds and animals were enabled to survive the rigors of snow and ice. The protection of our wild life and its propagation depends upon such organizations as that club here in our community: the 4-H club member, the farmer, the Boy Scout, the student, the residents and any one else interested in wild life.

This is the time of year when news is scarce in the Park. For several days we have tried to find some for this column, but no luck. We are like the two darkies talking about luck.

George Washington Jackson said, "I sho is glad we got two kinds of luck—good luck and bad luck."

"Why is you glad we have bad luck?"

"'Cause," replied George Washington Jackson, "if we didn't have bad luck I wouldn't have no luck at all."

And there you are. That's all we have had so far in getting news. Better luck next week, we hope; we hope.

Personals

Reverend E. A. Crites, of the U. P. church, opened his evangelistic services at Crellin this week. On Sunday the Reverend Harold Teagarden will have charge of the U. B. church service at Loch Lynn. All are cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Joseph Rathbun, of Gainesville, Florida, who has been a guest of Mrs. Alma Bell, underwent a major operation at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, one day last week. On Saturday Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Benjamin Crane, of Clarksburg, visited the hospital and found Mrs. Rathbun getting along nicely. Mrs. Crane is a sister of Mrs. Rathbun.

The sympathies of the people of the community are extended to Mrs. E. L. Winchell in the death of her nephew, Colonel Devore, who died in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, Saturday and who was buried in Arlington cemetery on Tuesday. Colonel Devore was a frequent visitor at Mrs. Winchell's home, especially in the latter years as commandant of the R. O. T. C. at Morgantown.

J. A. Clark is in Philadelphia and other points east on a business trip.

Mrs. Annie Reppard, who has been ill for several days, is improving.

Mrs. John Stevenson spent one day last week in Cumberland.

James Bittinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Bittinger, is quite ill at the home of his parents as the result of an attack of appendicitis.

William Bitzer returned today from a business trip to Uniontown, Pa.

Homemakers' Club Meeting

The Deep Lake-Loch Lynn Homemakers' Club met at the Aid Hall in Loch Lynn last Thursday. There were twelve members and five visitors present. Due to the absence of Miss Mildred Barnes there was no demonstration given. A business meeting was held and officers named as follows: Chairman of the social committee, Mrs. Gladys Weeks; reading and literature, Mrs. Harold Gamblin; current events, Mrs. Olga Elliott; project chairman, Mrs. E. C. Canton; music, Mrs. G. O. Sweitzer; reporter, Mrs. Ruth Taylor. The program was most interesting, with a book review by Mrs. Cannon and a reading by Mrs. Garrison. The next meeting is scheduled for February 6th.

The Homemakers' Club is doing a very great deal. It is filling a vacant spot in the lives of this community. All over the country you hear of the Homemakers' Club. Perhaps in the far west it is better known than in this community. But out there it is their contact with the world beyond them. And so we say it's a great organization.

The Columbus (Ohio) papers are carrying stories on the new project of that State—"Home Beautification"—under the sponsorship of the State Department of Vocational Education and the Westerville High school. The project is also sponsored by the Agriculture Department and the Board of Education. The instructor in charge of this work is Lindsay A. Frame, a graduate of the Horticultural Department at Ohio State University, and a landscape gardner of Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Frame is a grandson of Mrs. Allie Haymond and is known to many people of this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Combs left here last week for Hagerstown, Md., where Mr. Combs will be located for some time.

Mrs. Fridinger and her daughter, Miss Dorothea Fridinger, High school instructor here, were called to Manchester, Md., over the week-end on account of the death and funeral of a relative.

Browning, another committee member, stepped into the "arena" and urged Mr. Friend to retire with them for a conference.

Legal Action Deferred

The conference of the committee continued throughout the remainder of the morning and although C. M. Railey, committee member, stated that they intended to carry out their plan to institute legal proceedings, W. R. Offutt, another interested party, stated that no further action would be taken until the committee had time to examine the law more closely. Mr. Railey said three attorneys were being engaged, but another committee member said that no legal counsel had been employed as yet.

D. Edward Offutt and Blaine Frantz are other members of the committee, with N. C. Fraley, adviser, appointed by a group of taxpayers last week to meet with the County Commissioners to ascertain the facts having to do with the purchase of the road machinery. It was at this meeting the committee demanded that the Commissioners cancel their order, and also at that time the Commissioners agreed to give their decision on Monday.

The shipment of part of the machinery was temporarily halted following a meeting in the Court House on December 31, in which the Commissioners were criticized by a group of taxpayers led by W. R. Browning and William Miller, for what they termed "unauthorized expenditure of public funds."

At the beginning of the meeting on Monday morning, Julius Renninger, Jr., attorney to the Board of Commissioners, stated that as far as any legal question was involved, the Commissioners appeared to have a perfect right to purchase road machinery if they saw fit to do so.

The Commissioners contend that the purchase of this machinery will make possible the building of 40 to 50 miles of farm-to-market roads in a year, with the help of over 700 WPA workers, where they were getting 20 miles or less of completed roads within the period of twelve months previously, and that the machinery would pay for itself over a period of two or three years. The machinery will also be used on county roads, they stated.

The group of taxpayers opposing the purchase, however, say that the cost of roads to the county will be greatly increased and fear a big jump in the tax rate. The levy will not be made until February 1.

Former County Resident Secures Mercantile Business at Hendricks

C. W. Harvey, former Garrett county resident, who left his home in Kitzmiller in 1910 and has since been in the mercantile busnness at Hendricks, West Va., until a year ago, when fire destroyed both his store and building, has just purchased the mercantile business and real estate of J. E. Poling in the same town.

The Poling store has been under the management of J. E. Poling for half a century. A newspaper at Parsons had the following to say of the deal:

"While the passing of this old business landmark will be more than usually noticed by everyone, the business also goes into the hands of a well known mercantile company, the C. W. Harvey Company. The new management will take charge of the business about the 15th of the month and we bespeak for the new owners a continued public confidence as was always held out for the J. E. Poling Company."

To Present Music Recital

Miss Virginia Kershner will present a group of her pupils in a piano recital at her studio on Alder street, Friday evening, January 20.

Coaling, with 7 field goals, led the Frostburg scoring with Connor and Gnegy scoring 4 and 3 goals respectively. Score at the half was 20 to 15.

Held In Jail On Bigamy Charge

Russell Snyder, alias Walter Plummer, is being held in the Garrett County Jail in Oakland on a charge of bigamy, according to State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, who said that Snyder is alleged to have married Beulah Serk in Oakland some time during the year 1937, while he was married to another womon. Snyder, or Plummer, was apprehended in Baltimore.

BITTINGER

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Mutual Telephone Company, which was announced to be held last Saturday, was postponed on account of foul weather and drifted roads. The meeting will be held in the Bittinger school house next Saturday, January 21, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. A full attendance of stockholders is desired.

The jingle of sleigh bells was heard along the roads in this community on Monday for the first time this winter and the sound recalled the good old days of long ago.

PLAN FOR POPULARIZING U. S. ROUTE 40 UNDER WAY

Meeting Was Held At Uniontown, Pa., Last Thursday; Objectives Set Forth In Bulletin

TENTATIVE BUDGET SET

Plans for popularizing the National Highway, U. S. route 40, were presented at a meeting of National Highway representatives, held in Uniontown, Pa., last Thursday, January 19, under the sponsorship of the Uniontown Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting was attended by a number of people along the highway in Allegany and Garrett counties, those from Frostburg including S. W. Green, County Commissioner, and Dave Gunter. About 25 miles of the highway are in Garrett county.

The objectives of the meeting, as set forth in a bulletin presented to the delegates, are as follows:

"There is every indication that automobile traffic this year will be the greatest in history, due primarily to the World's Fair in New York and the Exposition in San Francisco.

"Tourist trade has become the third largest business in the United States and it is imperative that cities and towns along main highways be alert and organize to take full advantage of this most lucrative and desirable business.

"To secure a full share of the tourist dollars for the many interested lines of business and trade in the cities and towns along the National highway requires careful planning, a definite program of activities and united effort. It is a matter for joint action on the part of many communities and interests. Proper organization, a workable plan and adequate financing are the principal needs to assure beneficial results."

It is planned to raise $10,525 to boost the highway. A tentative budget was presented, listing the expenses as follows: Newspaper and periodical advertising, $1,500; radio advertising, $1,500; signboard advertising, $1,875; 200,000 strip maps, $2,000; posters, membership cards, etc., $350; office supplies, postage, stationery, etc., $1,000; office help, 6 months, $500; traveling representatives—salary and expenses, $1,000; news stories, pictures, mats, etc., $300 and miscellaneous expenses, $300.

According to Mr. Green, all local hotels, road houses, service stations and restaurants along the highway will be solicited for financial aid and the entire project is to be presented before service clubs and other groups for the purpose of securing widespread interest.

Loss of Revenue Because of New Marriage Law Is Not Great

An inspection of the marriage license records at the Court House for the month of January reveal that although the number of applicants is falling below last year's everage, the total number is not going to be far from the figures of four or five years ago, and that the drop in revenue will not amount to more than $25 per month at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, where the licenses are issued.

The records show a total of 59 licenses issued up to noon Wednesday, during the month of January, with 56 applications granted. Considering that $1.00 is charged for the application and $2.00 for the license, there are total receipts of $174. In January of 1938 there were only 113 licenses issued during the entire month, which brought in (at $2.00 each) $226, while in 1937 there were 99 licenses issued which brought in the sum of $198. Prior to the change in the law in December, making the 48-hour wait mandatory, there was no charge made for an application.

With five days remaining in January it is indicated that the revenue loss is not going to be as great as was at first feared when the law went into effect following a referendum vote of the people of Maryland in November.

Activities Of Legislators Are Found In Columnist's Report

The activities of the representatives of this county at the sessions of the State Legislature in Annapolis are given today in the column, "Lounging With the Lobbyists," which appears on another page of The Republican.

Several local bills have been introduced and several more are in process of preparation.

To Present Silver Platter In Recognition As Physician For Fifty Years

The presentation of a sterling silver platter from members of the Allegany-Garrett Medical Association will be made to Dr. Henry W. McComas, of Oakland, at a meeting of the medical society at Cumberland on Friday evening.

Dr. McComas has been quite ill for several months and at present is a patient in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland. The presentation is to be made in recognition of Dr. McComas' services as a practicing physician in Garrett county for more than fifty years.

Members of the association residing in Garrett county are planning to be present upon the occasion.

PARK SELF HELP SCHOOL NOW BEING REORGANIZED

More Local People To Have Part; Meeting Is Called For Tuesday

The Self Help school at Mt. Lake Park, which closed after the Thanksgiving holidays, will not open until March or April, it has been announced.

At a meeting last week of officials and teachers, it was decided to reorganize, and a new set up for the school was effected, according to C. C. Gnegy, president of the Patrons' Association. Originally most of those connected with the project were only slightly known locally, but now the project is to be given a local setting. Local citizens, elected by the people, will be on the executive board. A local treasurer will be elected. In addition there will be an executive board, of 15 members, and a committee for business administration, both of which will have local representation.

Mr. Gnegy said a number of prominent citizens had been contacted and they had pledged support when the completed organization is launched on a practical business and working basis.

A meeting of those interested is called for Tuesday evening, January 31, in the basement of the Methodist church at the Park, beginning at 7:30. Four local people are to be nominated and elected to the executivve board, and a treasurer elected at this meeting.

The new set up and future policy of the school is to be made public at the meeting.

ARTHURDALE HIGH TAKES CLOSE ONE FROM LOCALS

Wins 41 To 39 On Arthurdale Court Last Saturday Evening

Oakland High school basketball quint lost a close game to the Arthurdale five on the latter's court last Saturday evening. The final score was 41-39.

The game was fast and the two teams see-sawed in keeping ahead. Oakland was trailing at 12 to 13 at the quarter, but were out in front 25-21 at the half, and were still leading 35 to 32 at the three-quarter mark. A rally in the final quarter by Mrs. Roosevelt's quint brought nine points while Oakland was gathering only four, giving the West Virginians a two-point margin.

Coach Baucom admonished Kley, Oakland forward, that he must account for two points for each year of his age, as the game was being played on his fifteenth birthday anniversary, and Kley did exactly that, garnering 12 field goals and throwing six out of seven fouls for a total of 30 points. His teammates were wishing he was 16 instead of 15. Sharps and Wolfe each made two goals.

Dezbor, Brown and DeGalyer led the Arthurdale attack with 13, 10 and 8 points respectively.

Child Found on Doorstep

During the Christmas holidays Mr. and Mrs. Mark Dilworth, of the Underwood community, found a young male child on their doorstep, according to a delayed news report from that community.

There was a note asking them to "take good care of the infant and you will be well repaid for your work."

The infant is still at the Dilworth home and is apparently well and healthy, the report says.

A young Philadelphian, Philo T. Farnsworth, who conceived the basic idea of television while still in knee pants, has assured the Monopoly Committee in Washington that visual broadcasting would soon be available for American homes.

GARRETT COUNTY UNDER DEEP BLANKET OF SNOW

Blizzard Tuesday and Wednesday Brings Worst Storm of Year

A blizzard which hit suddenly on Tuesday evening covered Garrett county with more than six inches of snow that for a time threatened to block highways. It was the worst storm of the year in this section.

G. Bates Chaires, State roads engineer, said the fifteen plows had been called out to 'remove drifts which reached depths of from six to seven feet in some places. A probable blockade was forestalled when the weather cleared Wednesday afternoon, but residents prepared to dig in for the coldest siege of the season. By sundown the mercury stood at 12 above zero and was falling rapidly.

A sudden shifting of wind after midnight, however, brought warmer weather and more snow today. The official reading at Weber's was 4 above zero, but the thermometer rose to about 25 degrees this morning when it began to snow again at the rate of about one-half inch per hour. Nearly 4 inches had fallen up to noon today.

Schools were dismissed at noon yesterday and children arriving by bus yesterday morning were sent home at 10 o'clock to insure their safe delivery before any roads were blocked. Attendance, however, was good, and schools resumed today.

Garrett county has been treated to a variety of weather in the past week. It rained heavily Saturday night, melting a lot of the previous snow, but it turned suddenly colder Sunday and was followed shortly hy a severe storm from the west. Monday morning the thermometer stood at 7 above.

CIVIC CLUB TO DISCUSS WORK OF CHILDREN'S AID

Mrs. E. Z. Tower, Local Representative, To Tell Of Her Work Here

Members of the Oakland Civic club will discuss the work of the Maryland Children's Aid society at their regular meeting next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the home economies building of the local high school.

The purpose of the Children's Aid society is to care for all children who are left without parents or are inadequately cared for by their families. No children are put in orphanages. They are placed, instead, in selected boarding homes, or——which the society prefers—in selected private homes.

This work has been carried on in Garrett county by Mrs. E. Z. Tower for the past several years, and Mrs. Tower will speak to the Civic club members about her work here.

The Sunday movie bill, passed more than a year ago, provided $400 in funds to the Children's Aid, one-quarter of the receipts from the tax being designated for this work. The County Commissioners heretofore have paid small sums for board of the children in the boarding homes. There is a possibility that this work will be discontinued, as the County Commissioners told the local committee of the Children's Aid society that all relief was to be handled through the County Welfare Board.

The girls of the home economics department will serve tea to members of the Civic club and also display some of the work that they have recently done.

Masonic Lodge Installs Officers On Tuesday

Officers, both elective and appointive, were installed at a meeting of the Oakland Lodge of Masons on Tuesday evening, with A. Wayne Reed, deputy grand lecturer of Westernport, in charge, assisted by Walter W. Dawson, marshall.

Officers installed included Delbert M. Davis, worshipful master; Robert T. Hoffman, senior warden; Arthur Lawton, junior warden; Harland L. Jones, secretary; Cecil Smith, treasurer; Scott W. Shirer, senior deacon; George H. Hanst, junior deacon; I. R. Rudy, senior steward; Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., junior steward; S. D. Whipkey, tyler; S. Townshend Naylor, chaplain.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the session.

Miss Sarah Lee McCoy, of Westernport, visited her cousin, Donna Jane Littman, Fourth street, over the past week-end.

CITY COUNCIL DISCUSSES PROPOSED LEGISLATION

Authorizes Attorney To Prepare Bills Affecting Municipal Elections

Proposed legislation relating to the town of Oakland was discussed at some length at a special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening, and the city attorney, Julius C. Renninger, Jr., was authorized to proceed with the drawing of two bills to be presented at the next regular meeting of the municipal body.

One bill will provide for a permanent registration of the voters residing within the corporate limits of Oakland. If passed by the Legislature, this would prevent in the future anyone voting at municipal elections except those whose names are on the registration books.

The bill provides for a registration of voters during the fall of 1939, with a date set for February, 1940, and each succeeding year, for a revision day, at which time others qualified to vote may be registered and the names of those who may have removed or died may be stricken from the books. The revision day would be prior to the municipal election, which is held annually during the month of March.

The second bill under consideration by Council provides the method for becoming a candidate for a city office. Instead of having a citizens' meeting as a primary, and eliminating candidates by the votes of perhaps 25 or 50 of the citizens attending one of these meeting, a method is provvided for candidates to file their intentions with the city clerk by the payment of a small fee. In this way all candidates will be given a place on the ballot to be voted.

These bills will be prepared within the next few days, and if approved at the regular council meeting, will be forwarded to the county delegation at Annapolis for introduction in the Assembly and possible enactment into law.

Two Other Proposed Bills Discussed

Members of Council also discussed a proposition having to do with that ever-present question of taxes.

The proposed measure, if it reaches that stage, will direct that county taxes arising from one percent of the taxable basis of the property in Oakland, be turned over to the Mayor and Council. According to an estimate this bill would require the County Commissioners to pay over about $2,000 annually to the municipality. At present there is $800 levied annually for the support of the Oakland Fire Department.

Another possible bill for enactment into law was one giving the Mayor and Council authority in making appointments. At present a number of the city employes are named by the mayor. The bill would also include a clause giving the mayor a right to vote on quesions coming before Council. At present the mayor has no voice in matters before Council.

No definite action was taken on the two latter proposals, but discussion is expected to be continued at future meetings.

Attended Farm Bureau Meeting

A number of Garrett county people returned last week to their homes after attending the annual meeting of the Garrett County Farm Bureau in Baltimore.

Those attending included William Winterberg, president, Grantsville, Charley Miller, secretary, Friendsville; Ray McCullough, delegate; Mrs. C. C. Beachy, community chairman, Accident; and Mrs. W. C. Loechel, delegate, and John H. Carter, county agent. At the youth session on Wednesday, Miss Jessie Guard, president; Margaret DeWitt, Robert DeWitt, Cecil Kight and Miss Mildred Barton, home demonstration agent, attended.

Mr. Carter announced that at the farm products show held in connection, Mrs. John Haenftling, Accident, won an award of $15.00 for first in butter; Mrs. Ernest Griffith, Somerfield, 2nd in cheese; and Mrs. C. C. Beachy, 3rd in cheese. Mr. Carter said that Garrett countians won a number of potato awards but the official placings had not been announced.

T. B. Seal Sale Totals $309.71

Receipts from the Christmas tuberculosis seal sale campaign now totals $309.71, according to a report from the county health office. This includes the total for the eighth week of the campaign of $14.28, and brings the entire amount to more than $40 above the figures for last year.

Pre-School Group Will Begin Classes On Monday

The Children's Play Center, a preschool group, will begin Monday morning at 9 o'clock, at the home of Miss Elizabeth West, Third street, under the supervision of the recreation division of the Works Progress Administration.

Children between the ages of three to six inclusive, who are not enrolled in public schools are eligible to attend. The class will close each day at 11 o'clock.

To meet the requirements of the recreation program, according to Mrs. George Hanst, county supervisor, every child must have a physical examination from his own doctor. In cases where children cannot afford this examination, Dr. H. R. DuPuy, health officer, will give them, if notified 24 hours in advance.

This children's play center is for the purpose of teaching children to play together harmoniously, be cooperative and learn other valuable qualities, Mrs. Hanst said. It is free to all children and there is nothing in the way of school work given them. Reading and writing will not be taught.

A suitable room is being sought so that the group can be divided, one class being conducted in the afternoon for children who find Miss West's home too far away.

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS TO FIGHT POLIO UNDER WAY

Half Of Money Raised For Infantile Paralysis To Remain Here

A campaign to raise funds to fight infantile paralysis in this county and in the entire nation, is being conducted in Garrett county under the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Most of the money is expected to come from the "March of Dimes" program, where buttons are being sold for ten cents each. Containers have been placed in a number of stores and there has also been personal solicitation in several instances.

On Friday, January 27, the March of Dimes will be conducted in the schools of the county.

Two benefit dances are also scheduled, one at Grantsville on Friday evening, January 27, at the Meshack Browning club, and one at the Manhattan hotel, Oakland, on Friday evening, February 3. Reed Raines and his orchestra has been engaged for the latter, and admission is $1.25 per couple.

The chairman at Grantsville is Joseph F. Fahey. Dr. E. I. Baumgartner is chairman of the county committee, with other members being Dr. H. R. DuPuy, Misses Mary Louise Helbig and Helen Offutt, Mrs. Emroy Bolden, Mrs. Bates Chaires and Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner.

The national fight against infantile paralysis was started twelve years ago and this year was put on a permanent basis. County chairmen are to divide the funds raised on a 50-50 basis, one-half being sent to the national committee and the other half being retained by the county.

The money raised is used for research work in addition to proper care of patients who already have suffered from attacks of infantile paralysis. Of a total of 753 cases reported in the state, 432 of them are in the counties and Garrett county stands fourth in the counties in number of cases with 39. Only Allegany, Washington and Baltimore counties have more infantile paralysis cases than does Garrett.

Dr. George E. Bennett, Baltimore bone specialist, and head of Johns Hopkins hospital, who first brought the orthopedic clinics to this county, is one of those at the head of the organization in Maryland.

Friendsville F.F.A. Boy Wins Third In Contest

Competing in a State-wide F.F.A. project contest, Wilbur Thomas, president of the Friendsville chapter, F.F.A., won third prize for the outstanding diversified project program in the State.

More than 2000 boys are eligible to compete for prizes in the different divisions of the contest, which are awarded for the best and most outstanding projects in each division.

The awards were presented Thursday afternoon, January 12, by Mr. Nuttle, president of the Maryland Farm Bureau. This was in connection with their annual meeting held at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore.

O'CONOR SUBMITS 2-YEAR BUDGET OF $95,422,035

Largest Budget Ever Submitted To Legislative Body—An $800,000 Saving Is Claimed

PROPERTY TAX IS SAME

Governor Herbert R. O'Conor dedicated the state to two years of strict governmental economy in his budget message to the Legislature announcing he had reduced Maryland's operating costs more than $800,000 annually.

The governor said he had endeavored to draft a budget which appropriates sufficient to meet the actual governmental necessities, and avoids imparing any of the essential functions of the state.

The Governor told the Assemblymen that he had slashed $6,382,968 from the grand total of $48,731,114 which department heads had requested. To help effect that savings he had abolished 100 positions and salaries totaling $98,620.

The entire biennial budget was $95,422,035.08, but the governor said the increase was due to boosts in the special and debt service fund expenditures, which have no bearing on the tax rate. The present state tax rate of 23.35 cents would remain the same.

The difference between the $42,348,145.98 budget as a charge on the general fund and the total budget of $95,422,035 was placed in the special and debt service funds. The 1938-39 budget adopted by the last legislaturo totaled $73,459,024 for the biennium, exclusive of relief costs of $8,870,000.

O'Conor said the budget would be balanced by a revenue-raising program to be submitted later. Proposed revenue acts will raise an estimated $8.500,000 annually, he said, and the fiscal program outlined will result in cutting the state's bonded indebtedness over nine million by September 20, 1941.

The budget does not provide for diverting any funds from the state gas tax collections to the general fund . All departments had felt the pruning knife. Relief bureau heads asked $11,932,730 for the two-year period. They got ten million. The University of Maryland requested $1,535,293 for the biennium, and was awarded $1,164,135. The cuts were typical of the policy followed by O'Conor in the whole body of the budget.

AIR MAIL PLANE FORCED DOWN NEAR HOYES ON 17th

Pilot Was Not Injured; Few Details of Mishap Avaliable

An air mail plane, which had a forced land on Tuesday evening, January 17, on the farm of Andrew Rodeheaver, located between Hoyes and Sang Run, still remains there, and from all reports will continues to remain in its present position for at least several days longer.

Very few details of the occurrence have been learned, as the section where the plane went down is isolated on account of the deep snow and the storm prevailing ever since the accident, but it was learned that the plane carried only one pilot and a small lot of parcel post.

In landing the motor of the plane was torn loose from its position and repairs will have to be made before it will be possible for the machine to go on. The pilot was not injured and was reported to have notified Morgantown (W. Va.) flying field of the accident, Mrs. W. A. Smith, of Hoyes, said in a telephone conversation with this office.

No details are known as to the cause of the accident, make of plane or what other damages were sustained than those stated above.

PETER DECLARES HIS LOVE

LESSON TEXT—John 21:11 19.
GOLDEN TEXT—If ye love me, keep my commandments.—John 14:15.

"Lovest thou me?" This is the question our Lord asked Peter. It comes to us today. Do we love our Lord? It is a simple question, but also a very searching one. "We may know much, and do much, and profess much, and talk much, and work much, and give much, and go through much, and make much show in our religion, and yet be dead before God from want of love . . . There is no life where there is no love . . . Knowledge, orthodoxy, correct views . . . a respectable moral life—all these do not make up a true Christian. There must be some personal feeling toward Christ" (J. C. Ryle).

The instructive story, the center of which is Peter's declaration of love for Christ, presents a picture of a life of true devotion and service to the Lord we love.

I. Fishing at Christ's Command (v. 11).

Peter had led the disciples in a fruitless fishing expedition (vv. 2, 3). There may have been some unbelieving self-will in his "I go a-fishing." It may also have been the need of food on the part of the disciples who had not yet been sent forth to preach. But in any case they caught nothing until they went to work at the Lord's direction.

Useless and pathetic is the effort of the Church to win men to Christ except as He directs and blesses the work. He knows when, where, and how we ought to fish for men. Let us seek His guidance rather than suffer the disappointment which goes with man-directed campaigns and "drives." As a matter of fact, we need more divine directing and less human driving.

II. Fellowship With the Lord (vv. 12-14).

There are some folk who seem to think that following Christ is a doleful matter, devoid of every pleasant contact. Jesus never taught any such thing. He attended weddings and dinners even in the homes of those despised by men. Remember that He always did it for their spiritual good, not merely for His own enjoyment; and that He always brought the gathering up to His own spiritual level, rather than stooping to any worldly or wicked standards.

Here we find Him with a glowing fire upon which fish is broiling and with bread ready for the hungry fishermen. It is just like Him thus to meet in most delightful and satisfying fellowship those who serve Him. Draw up to the fire, Christian friends who are standing afar off. You may be so timid that, like the disciples, you will not dare to call Him by name (v. 12), but if you will come you will find that the precious fellowship will soon warm your heart.

III. Feeding His Flock (vv. 15-17).

Many (perhaps most) after-dinner speeches and conversations yield little profit. Here is an occasion when such was not the case. One wonders whether we would not be wise to take the suggestion and turn our thoughts and those of our dinner guests to spiritual things. Surely it should be so among Christian friends and in a Christian home.

Three times Peter is asked to declare his love for Christ. Such a public confession was quite in place, before the man who had thrice denied his Lord is restored to a place of leadership. The words "more than these" (v. 15), indicate that Jesus was asking of him a high measure of devotion. It is no more than He has a right to expect of us.

The expression of love to Christ means practically nothing except as it manifests itself in service. We, like Peter, are to be diligent about feeding His flock, whether they be the young and inexperienced lambs, or the mature sheep of the fold. Observe that we are to catch the fish (the unconverted) and feed the flock (the redeemed). Sometimes it seems that we are trying to catch the Christians to forward some scheme of advancement, and failing to win the unconverted, because we are feeding them spiritual food that belongs to the flock of God.

IV. Following Christ to the End (vv. 18, 19).

The Christian (and surely the Christian worker) is to glorify God even by his death (v. 19). What a significant reply John Wesley made when his followers were criticized: "At any rate, our people die well." Peter was to go on to the end, knowing that he faced martyrdom for Christ.

But we are not only called to die like Christians, we are to live for Him. When Jesus "had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me" (v. 19). Just as we said that the Church needs more divine directing and less human driving, so we say that the crying need of the Church now is not more leaders, but a greater host of faithful followers of Jesus. Will you, because you love Him, follow Him in life and death?

A little pamphlet I received asked me to see what happened to my car in just 1,000 miles of driving, and then told me without even asking. Nine million explosions have occured in the motar. The crankshaft, rear axle pinion shaft, the clutch and transmission, the universal joints, all revolved three million times; the camshaft, distributor shaft, each one and one-half million times; the rear axles, 750,000; each valve opened and closed one and one-half million times; the fuel pump operated the same number of times, and each speak plug fired that many times; the contact points opened 9 million times, the piston traveled 2,840 miles, and the carburetor mixed 281,000 cubic feet of air and from 50 to 80 gallons of gas. That's a lot of movements.

I guess it happens to every parent—the time when you realize suddenly that your children have a little self reliance and can do a little thinking for themselves. Up to that time you are under the impression that you must do all their thinking for them, and that without your watchful care they couldn't survive even for a single day.

Anyway we were all outside last Sunday afternoon. The snow had become almost ice and was very slick. Little George hopped on the sled and started down the hill. Suddenly he realized that a brick wall lay at the bottom of the hill and he was headed for it at what seemed to us too great a speed ever to stop in time.

But just before Little George reached the wall he began dragging his feet and came to rest gently about six inches from it. He looked back and grinned.

Looking Ahead

In a little pamphlet coming into this office periodically there is the following message which is adaptable to everyone.

"On an anchient Egyptian tablet unearthed by archeologists was inscribed a lament declaring that the earth is degenerate, youth in despair and the world coming to an end.

"That was more than 2,000 years ago—and we are still here! Since that time we have evolved from the chariot to the airplane. When we can see nothing but progress behind us, why is it that prophets of gloom see nothing but disaster ahead?

"Today the world is going right on revolving at the rate of sixteen miles a second, and scientists tell us that it will continue to do so for another five hundred million years or so.

"As we continue into another new year let us practice the philosophy of a very wise man, the late President Eliot of Harvard, who believed that each man should have a calm attitude expectant of good.' Let us take courage from H. G. Wells' observation: 'Existence impresses me as a perpetual dawn.'

"We will have our problems. We may be delayed. But let us bravely work for the best and expect the best."

Appears like the dog war is on again. There have been reports of promises of so much a head, if brought into the Council chamber, and as a result it is said those looking for dogs even try to coax the pets of people out of their own yards.

This surely is not the intention of Council, and if the practice is found to be true, it should be stopped.

People are very touchy when it comes to pets.

An Alabama couple picked a lovely time to visit Oakland. It was last Sunday and the blizzard of that day was surpassed only by the storm yesterday.

But strange to say, the couple, who had never seen snow before, enjoyed it immensely and even drove from Oakland to Cumberland during its height in the afternoon.

1938 HEALTH CONDITIONS IN MARYLAND FAVORABLE

There Were Nearly 8,500 More Births than Deaths During Year

Health conditions in Maryland in 1938 were generally favorable, as indicated by a report issued by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, containing the provisional figures for births and deaths in the State during the year. There were nearly 8,500 more births than deaths, There were 29,238 births reported in 1938 and 20,881 deaths in comparison with 27,463 births and 21,986 deaths in 1937. Of the births reported in 1938, 22,900 were white and 6,338 colored. Of the deaths, 16,205 were white and 4,676 colored. Infant deaths dropped from 1,706 in 1937 to 1,616 in 1938.

The births reported in 1938 were divided as follows: 13,486 in Baltimore City; 10,152 white and 3,335 colored; and 15,752 in the counties; 12,749 white and 3,003 colored. There were 10,783 deaths in Baltimore City; 8,204 white and 2,579 colored; and 10,098 in the counties, of which 8,001 were white and 2,097 colored.

Considering the births and deaths in relation to population, the report shows that in 1938 there were approximately 16 birth and 12 deaths in each thousand of the total population. There were 15 births and 11 deaths in each thousand of the white population and 21 births and 15 deaths in each thousand of the colored population.

Of the 20,881 deaths reported in 1938 in the State, 1,616 or 7.7 per cent —one in every 13—were babies under a year old. The infant deaths were distributed as follows: Total in the State: 1,061 white and 555 colored; Baltimore City, 436 white and 259 colored; total counties: 625 white and 296 colored. Over half of the infant deaths—869 —occurred in the first month of life.

What are listed as degenerative diseases—usually occurring in middle age, or in the older age groups—were resposible for 12,235 deaths or over half of the total, an increase of more than 150 ever the total for the same causes in 1937. The deaths in this group for the two years were as follows: Heart disease, 5,507 in 1938 and 5,286 in 1937; nephritis, 2,224 in 1938 and 2,303 in 1937; cancer, 2,297 in 1938 and 2,244 in 1937; cerebral hemorrhage, 1,723 in 1938 and 1,804 in 1937; diabetes, 484 in 1938 and 441 in 1937.

Deaths from typhoid fever rose from 31 in 1937 to 33 in 1938. There were decreases in the number of deaths from measles, whooping cough, diphtheria, tuberculosis and influenza and pneumonia. In 1937 and 1938, respectively, there were 38 and 8 deaths from measles, 99 and 52 from whooping cought, 21 and 18 from diphtheria, 1,406 and 1,335 from tuberculosis, and 2,098 and 1,479 from influenza and pneumonia.

Mix the ingredients of filling in order named. Pour into unbaked pie shell and bake in 375 degrees F. oven for about 30 minutes, or until filling is set and crust is crisply brown. When cool, decorate top with whipped cream or softened cream cheese and whole pecan meats.

Orange Pie

One cup orange juice, juice 1 lemon, 3 egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, 3 tablespoonsful flour. Beat yolks, add sugar and flour. Add juice, stir and cook over hot water until thick. Fill baked pie shell, cover with meringue and bake 15 minutes in slow oven (300 degrees F.)

Date Custard Pie

Two cups milk, 1-3 pound dates, 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, few gratings nutmeg. Cook dates and milk 20 minutes in duoble boiler. Strain, rub thru sieve, add eggs, salt and milk. YEAR IN AND YEAR OUT

Electricity

Is Your Biggest Bargain

Even several years ago, before rates reached their present low levels, your electricity dollars bought more than other dollars you spent. Today electricity is an even bigger bargain. And it's a year round, day-in-and-day-out bargain, not just one day or one week "special"

Take your monthly electric bill, and consider it in terms of what it does for you. Household labor, for example, cleaning, washing, refrigerating. Compare electric costs with servants, wages. A bargain? Sure! Then there is the lighting, the radio, table appliances. Yes, it's true. Electricity is more than your cheapest servant .. It's the country's biggest year round bargain.

SCOUT ANNIVERSARY

The Scouts will be celebrating a birthday in February again—the 29th this time—with a message that "Scouting Carries on American Ideals"; ideals of service and cooperation, tolerance and religious obligation, and homage to the responsibilities and privileges of participating citizenship. It is a welcome portent for the future of American democracy that more than a million and a quarter men and boys are now active members of a Movement which, although founded to capitalize on the love all boys have for adventure in the out-of-doors does not fail to provide practical ways for helping them fulfill the obligations felt by every genuine American.

Scouting has succeeded in becoming a part of the American boy's world because it is a program of action plus idealism. So it has a two-fold appeal, demonstrated by its growth in popularity each year, in many sections limited only by the lack of leaders or adequate funds of extension. Measured in terms of boys who want to be Scouts there is still much room for growth. Measured in terms of results produced the Boy Scouts of America has already paid any debt due the American people for the operating charter granted it by Congress many years ago.

In our own community now there are many men, part of the 8,400,000 who have been included in the Scout family since 1910, who believe in the principles that "once a Scout, always a Scout" and who are doing their best to extend and interpret in practice the concept of civic and moral responsibility that came to them in their Scout troops. For this reason, if for no other, America has every right to be proud of its Boy Scouts.

PLACES TO CUT

When critics of the Administration demand that there be a return to economy by the reduction of extraordinary expenditures, the New Dealers are apt to counter by asking the question: "Just show us one place where we can cut down without injuring those on relief?" The question is expected to put the critic on the spot by inferring that he would promote "hunger and suffering."

But it is not impossible to find satisfactory places where economy should begin in Federal administration. For it is to be remembered that the cost of government, outside of relief, has gained tremendously during the past five years. Instead of having fewer boards and commissions we possess more of them.

Congressman Bruce Barton, of New York, answered the question of what we should do, the other day, by wisely suggesting that the Administration begin its policy of retrenchment by abolishing the Emergency Council. It is difficult to find a good reason why this bureau should be kept in existence. Mr. Barton declared that the Council "in reality constitutes a corps of publicity agents for the Democratic party," and he said that a former director of the Council testified before the House Appropriations subcommittee that more money would be needed in 1939 instead of less. Continuing Mr. Barton said:

"Though composed officially of heads of the various departments of the government together with the administrators of the miscellaneous New Deal bureaus, the council practically never meets," said Barton. "Its distinguished membership is only a front for a band of 290 press agents engaged in dissemination of publicity and propaganda for the New Deal.

"It will presently have expended in the neighborhood of $3,850,000, and there is every indication that the Administration has every intention of making the 'emergency' for which it was created, permanent."

When the House of Representatives recently began to reassert its independence of executive authority by cutting down the emergency relief appropriation from the $875,000,000 asked for by the President to $725,000,000, some of the New Dealers stated that such a cut would result in hunger and suffering.

But there is no need that this be true. If the high cost of administering relief were reduced by eliminating useless overhead, if the relief were given to those who really need and deserve it and politics were forgotten, then there is little question that the $725,000,000 would be ample. It is no answer to the demand for economy by stating that economy would increase hunger and other suffering among the unfortunates. What the nation wants is the trimming of unnecessary expense.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

A charter was issued to the Morgantown and Kingwood Railroad company to build a railroad between the two towns.

Stockholders of the proposed telephone line running from Accident and Friendsville via Hoyes to Oakland, met and elected William A. Smith, president. Samuel Lawton, Oakland, was made a director. Bids were to be invited for erection of poles, furnishing wire, phones, etc.

Notwithstanding some bad weather it was being said that the winter was one of the most agreeable experienced in a long time. There were many cases of la grippe.

The roads were so bad a suggestion was made to form a company to build a vehicle or craft that could be navigated on mud canals.

E. M. Spedden and men were at Crellin where they were building a new office for the Preston Lumber Company.

The Postal Cable-Telegraph Company was said to be planting poles almost in the center of the roadbed of the national highway, and that no privilege to erect poles had been granted by the County Authorities. It was intimated the company would have a big bill of damage to pay for its activities.

Carpenters started to frame the building to be erected by Senator Ravenscroft on Second street facing Alder street. The building was to be brick veneer, three stories high. M. Maroney and Sons prepared to erect a livery stable on Green street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A Soldier and Sailor Memorial Association of Garrett County was formed with nine of fourteen districts

A local item was as follows: Nathan C. Browning, the sage of Sang Run, traveled afoot to the county seat from his home Tuesday morning and departed from the city by the same means of locomotion that afternoon, declaring that since the cessation of hostilities in France he preferred to walk rather than to travel otherwise, especially in a flying machine.

Dr. George C. Melody, W. R. Browning, H. L. Bittner, H. R. Smouse, and A. R. Martin left by automobile for Pittsburgh where they were to drive to Oakland a number of new Ford cars for the Martin Garage, formerly the Evans garage.

The town of Friendsville was in the grip of an influenza epidemic, more than 80 cases having developed in the town limits, besides many cases in outlying farms.

The smooth ice at Mt. Lake Park made fine sport for many, crowds having gone there from Oakland.

The Folks Who Ought to Be in History

Committees vs County Commissioners

To the Editor of The Republican:—

The recent controversy between a committee of our citizens and the Board of County Commissioners, over the purchase by the Commissioners of certain machinery to be used in the building and maintaining of county roads, is not a matter which can be passed over lightly by the taxpayers of the county. The taxpayer should, however, be fair in his estimate of the matter and in his criticism of the parties to the controversy and in any conclusion which he may arrive at.

It would seem that in the controversy, thus far, the very essential features of the case have not appeared in any discussion, thus far heard. The essential feature and fundamental fact to be considered in any case, if we would arrive at a reasonable and impartial conclusion, is the motive, or motives prompting the actors on both sides of the question. It is obvious that the acts of every rational individual are prompted by some motive. Likewise it is true that when several individuals work together in a group, whether it be a committee of citizens, or a board of county commissioners, their acts are backed by some motive, evident, or ulterior.

The committee, then, in this case, was actuated by some motive, or motives. We cannot be unfair to that group of gentlemen, nor to any individual member of it, if we consider the motives that are possible in this and similar cases. There might be disappointed office seekers, who wished to establish themselves anew in the confidences of the people. There might be disgruntled politicians, who desired to obtain some self-satisfaction by discrediting official and other more successful politicians. There might be, in such cases, certain individuals, who had personal grievances against some one, or all of the officials whom they criticized, and there might linger some where in a group of citizens the hope that by securing the impeachment of an official, they might by chance, or political manipulations, fall into the vacancy. These are all possible motives, none can say that they are the correct ones, but they are the possible ones.

In the case of the County Commissioners, there seems fewer possible motives to consider. It does not seem possible that by purchasing a considerable number of road working machinery, they could gather any financial benefit for themselves. It is not thinkable that any Board of County Commissioners could hope by such an act to advance their political ambitions unless they were reasonably certain that their plan for paying the bill, without additional taxation, would be workable. Other possible situations might be considered, but it certainly does seem reasonable to believe that in this case the Board of County Commissioners had but one motive and that was to serve the best interests of the citizens of the county, and they must certainly have believed, after careful study of the situation, that they could accomplish just that.

Should not, therefore, the citizens of the county remember that they by their votes elected three gentlemen to serve them as a Board of County Commissioners, and that by that very act they implied confidence in their qualifications and they should continue to repose that confidence in them by cooperating with them, withholding all unwarranted criticism or condemnation, until the conduct of their office has proven that they deserve it.

That the county roads, in many sections of the county, have been grossly neglected, is a well known and undisputable fact and if the Board of County Commissioners can improve the roads in the county, as they predict that they can, they will be performing a great service to their constituents. If they fail, when they have failed, it will be the time to condemn, not now.

Let those citizens who now enjoy the conveniences and advantages of improved roads not cry out loudly against the interests of their brothers who have not these advantages, remembering that the man who has lived along a deplorably bad dirt road all his life, helped to pay for the good roads that he enjoys. It is all just this—be fair in your judgment, sparing in your criticism, and give the Board of County Commissioners a chance to prove their wisdom and worth.

A CITIZEN OF BITTINGER.

To the Editor of The Republican:—

Dear Sir,

I am wondering if Mr. William Browning put up any kick when the slow moving W.P.A. was spending forty or fifty thousand dollars building a short road near his farm from the Power House?

I wonder if Mr. Clifford Friend put up any kick when they put a good road through his place last year? Mr. Miller has had a good road near him. I wonder if they think the taxpayers on the dirt roads are a set of fools? We are likely to have relief jobs for a few years yet. Why not get the most out of them?

I wonder if Mr. Browning and Mr. Miller have put up any kick when their government has been wasting millions of dollars? If it would have been properly used a large number of us could now have better roads, and we would all feel we were getting some good of it. I am a taxpayer on dirt roads in this county.

R. F. D., Terra Alta, W. Va.

A NEW MORAL LOW

Political abuse of the utility industry seems to know no bounds.

According to an AP dispatch, a United States congressman stated on January 1st that he was preparing legislation which would force private utilities to sell power at TVA rates "or get out of the power business."

Consider what the statement implies.

The TVA is practically tax-free, while the average utility pays about 15 per cent of every dime it takes in from its customers, to government in taxes.

The TVA is financed with government funds—the tax money you and I pay into the Treasury—while the private utilities must raise every nickel they need by issuing securities carrying relatively high rates of interest. Normal interest rates for private utilities have been forced higher because of government competition.

The TVA, being a creature of the federal government, is immune to any and all kind of public regulation. The private utilities are regulated in every phase of operation by the states and the Federal Power Commission.

The TVA is given various expensive services—such as promotional literature, licenses for its trucks and cars, mail franking privileges, etc.—for nothing, by the government. The private utilities must pay the going price for everything they buy.

If the TVA sustains operating deficits—as it has in the past, according to testimony of its own engineers—the taxpayers pay the bill. If a private utility, or any other business, can't make both ends meet, and pay taxes, it goes broke.

The TVA can and does allocate costs just about as it pleases, charging this to flood control, that to navigation, and still another expenditure to soil improvement, in order to camouflage its actual investment in power production. The private utilities are forced by law to follow strict bookkeeping methods, that do not permit the diversion of funds to purposes other than power development and distribution.

The TVA gets special low freight rates, as do all government agencies. The private utilities must pay the same rates as any private shipper—rates which are prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This isn't all of the story—but it's enough to show any logical reader just how warped the TVA "yardstick" is. And now it is proposed that the heavily taxed, strictly regulated private power industry be forced to sell its product at arbitrary rates established by an unregulated, tax-supported public bureau!

In this proposal politics touches a new moral low.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, Md., Jan 25, 1939.

Although the lobbyists have been driven from the floor of the house of delegates we are still at our posts—George Lewis, veteran lobbyist, and myself. We have taken refuge in the halls and in the balcony and I find that the new quarters offer a perfect spot from which to follow members of the Garrett county delegation.

The committee appointments are now complete and in looking over the roster we find that Delegate Groves, chairman of the county group due to previous experience at the State House, has been named to the following committees: Art. 3, Sec. 21, Constitution; International Improvements; and Revaluation and Assessments. Nelson Brenneman was placed on four committees: Civil Service Reform; Federal Relations; Militia and Railroads and Canals.

Mountain Lake's contribution to the House, Darwin Martin, drew the most important assignment when he was placed on the Claims committee which is the lower house committee on finance. Martin was also named to the groups dealing with Insolvencies and Expiring Laws.

It seems rather strange that only one delegate from all of Western Maryland has been placed on the committee dealing with Fish and Game, and stranger still that it should be Miss Elizabeth Doub, of Allegany county. In spite of the oversight in the selection of the House group Senator Clifford Friend was selected as one of the members of the Senate on the same subject and so all of Western Maryland must turn to the Senator from Garrett for representation in matters pertaining to Fish and Game. Senator Friend has been made a member of eight additional committees. They are, Agriculture and Labor, Civil Service and Election Reform, Elections, Fish and Game, Judicial Proceedings, Printing, Retrenchment and Expenses State Government, Sanitary Conditions of State, Temperance.

In checking the party affiliation of the lawmakers it is nothing short of a miracle that Garrett and Allegany should receive any recognition at all. There are 104 Democrats in the House and 16 Republicans while across the hall in the Senate chamber we find 23 Democrat Senators and 6 who are carrying the banner of the Grand Old Party.

An item concerning Garrett county and the beer tax was revealed this week in the report of the commission which has been studying the question of alcoholic beverages. The committee has recommended that all tax from beer and liquor should go to the state for revenue and other purposes and that the Garrett county tax is inconsistent in as much as it is the only local tax in the state. The members of the county delegation will of course fight any move which suggests a diversion of the county bee tax.

Of particular importance and interest to the taxpayers of the county is the bill which has been introduced by Senator Friend requiring the County Commissioners to advertise in one or more newspapers in the county before making any purchase or sale in excess of $300.00. This bill is apparently the result of recent purchases of road equipment made by the commissioners.

Senator Friend has also introduced a bill making it mandatory that the county commissioners levy in 1939 the sum of $12,000 for the construction and equipping of a public school building in Bloomington.

Delegation measures introduced this week include a bill providing for an increase in the salaries of election officials who are required to work overtime. The Oakland bond bill has also been introduced and it provides for a special election on February 10, 1939, in order that the citizens of the community may approve or reject the proposed plan for financing the new city building.

The general opinion at Annapolis is that all of the above mentioned bills will be passed.

Bills which have been drawn but are not yet printed are the bills prepared by Senator Friend providing for appointment instead of election of a clerk to the Board of County commissioners and a bounty bill was introduced by Delegate Groves, and provides that wildcats would be worth $5.00, weasels, $1.00, and foxes, $2.00.

Of interest to all is the Budget which has been submitted to the House and Senate by Governor O'Conor. The Governor carried out his campaign promise to cut all unnecessary expenditurese to the bone—this has been done but in spite of the tremendous cut in certain departments the finished budget will probably be the largest in the history of the state. In the slashing of operating costs the budget for the State Roads Commission has received the largest single cut. Operating efficiency will be stressed in this department and if the suggestion of the Governor is carried out there will be no diversion of the gasoline tax which cares for the construction of new roads.

In closing this week's story of your delegation at Annapolis we say only this they are off to a good start and we trust that the good work will be continued.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

No more complete expose of the fallacies of the new Adaministration program for sepnding ourselves rich can be found than the reply of Senator Harry F. Byrd to the letter sent him some time ago by Chairman Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board, in which Mr. Eccles sought to make answer to the Senator's five point program of curing our ills through economy and budget balancing.

* * *

Most significant is the fact that the Virginia Senator represents an important section of political thought in the Democratic Party which the New Deal hopes to control in 1940. Senator Byrd heaped coals of fire, so to speak, by quoting Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson to sustain his contentions and refute the latest program of the New Deal.

* * *

Perhaps two of the most telling blows delivered by Senator Byrd were his quoting President Roosevelt and Mr. Eccles as formerly having advocated a balanced budget themselves, and his proof of the soundness of his theory by citing the example of Great Britain during the depression in contrast to our own.

* * *

The Virginia Senator pointed out to Mr. Eccles that the present New Deal program of greater expenditure was a repudiation of the Democratic platform of 1932, and "the economy and budget balancing messages, and the pledges of the President of the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury and other official spokesmen including yourself."

* * *

President Roosevelt was quoted as stating in a message to Congress in 1936: "We should plan to have a definitely balanced budget in the third year of the recovery and from that time on to ask a continuing reduction of the national debt. Mr. Eccles himself was quoted as having said on March 27, 1937, in an address at the University of Cincinnati:

"I agree with most budget men and bankers that a budgetary deficit, if continued, will create inflation."

"We must look to a period of balanced budgets."

"We must look in the next year or two to a balanced budget."

"Personally I would like to see it by 1938."

Perhaps the most devastating section of Senator Byrd's letter to Mr. Eccles was his reference to the recent happy experience of Great Britain—happy in comparison to our own. He referred to Mr. Eccles' own statement that in 1937 Great Britain's income was 118 percent of the 1929 level, while our own has been averaging about 75 percent of the 1929 level, and that if the United States were enjoying the same level of prosperity as Great Britain our national income would now be $88,000,000 instead of $60,000,000. Continuing the Virginia Senator said:

"England met her depression in a way very different from America. England did not attempt to borrow and spend herself out of the depression. She did not pile up deficit upon deficit. She did not sell her relief rolls. She did not harry and frighten business. She did not revive the depression. She revived prosperity.

"From 1932 to 1938 the total income of England exceeded her expenditures. England is $100,000,000 to the good. The United States in the same period is $20,100,000,000 in the hole.

"I ask you why by your own statement recovery in England from the world depression has so far outstripped recovery in the United States. It cannot be due to superior population. We outnumber the English three to one. It cannot be due to superior resources. Our resources exceed theirs. I am not willing to believe England is superior to America."

* * *

A comparison of programs and the results in England and the United States during the past five years can only prove embarrassing to the New Deal. The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof.

MAPS OF COUNTIES DUE TO BE COMPLETED SOON

Work Fixes Boundaries Of State Not Shown Heretofore

The State Highway Planning Survey is working against a January 31 dead line to complete maps of the minutest man-made and natural details.

Funds for the project, started August, 1936, cease to be available on January 31, and maps of two counties —Baltimore and Allegany—remain to be completed. C. P. Taylor, survey director, and William F. Childs, Jr., engineer in charge, said they expected to have the last two finished before that day.

Contain Much Information

A joint undertaking of the State Roads Commission and the United States Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Public Roads, the maps show 18,417 miles of existing roads and types of surfaces in the State, the types of culture which the roads serve, the amount of traffic flow, roads used by school busses, rural and star mail delivery postmen.

Contours are not depicted, but the maps show the number of houses on each road, farm houses—both occupied and vacant—amusement parks, schools, cemeteries, picnic grounds, factories, railroads, churches and numerous other details.

An important by-product of the maps is the fixing of boundaries of the State and countiees in accordance with court decisions and agreements. Taylor said the survey was the first in twenty-five years, and since the last one boundaries have been shifted in several existing maps.

Maryland lost about one and a half square miles of Potomac River to Virginia in the survey, as well as about a mile of shore line. An award in 1877 gave Maryland a southern boundary fixed by a line drawn from promontory to promontory on the Virginia side of the Potomac River. Taylor said old promontories had disappeared and had to be found again after existing maps failed to delineate the correct boundary in Virginia's Stafford, Prince William and Fairfax counties below Charles county in Maryland.

Lost To West Virginia

Maryland lost another three-fourths of a mile of water to West Virginia at the southwest tip of the State when the line drawn in accordance with a Supreme Court decision in 1909 which made the boundary at the point where the north branch of the Potomac River intersects a line north from Fairfax Stone.

Allegany county obtnined about one mile of forest wilderness from Garrett county at the Pennsylvania line, while Charles county received approximately 500 feet from St. Mary's county by the finding of a boundary marker.

A similar survey has been completed by forty-five other States. New York and Delaware are exceptions. In each State, the survey was made in accordance with a standard furnished by the Federal Bureau. While State areas contain a wealth of information, military reservations are shown only by boundaries without roads, buildings or other improvements.

Three-fourths of the $204,000 spent on the survey in the two years up to last September 30 was granted by the Federal Roads Bureau. Since September, about $45,000 has been paid from State Roads Commission funds.

In addition to preparing the maps, the survey employed auditors to discover how much has been spent on roads in the State. A report is to be made this month on their findings while examining records of 151 units which receive and disburse funds in Maryland for roads.

Ralph Smouse was elected vice-president of the Harrison County Retail Grocers' Association, at a recent meeting of that organization in Clarksburg, W. Va. He was also named on the publicity and public relations committee. The Association is composed of 176 members. Mr. Smouse has been manager of the Smouse Grocery Store in that city for the past two or three years.

Attorney E. R. Jones spent Friday and Saturday of last week in Washington attending the sessions of the Fourth General Assembly of the Council of State Governments and also attended a meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Secretaries, of both of which organizations he is a member. At the sessions of the Assembly, representatives from nearly all of the States were present and a number of matters of interest were discussed, the effect of the new Federal Wage and Hour Law upon the citizens of the various states being given special attention.

INCREASED ATTRACTIVENESS OF HOME ECONOMICS BUILDING HAS BEEN DUE TO HARD WORKING GIRLS

Projects Of Students Are Well Organized And Well Supervised

EXCELLENT WORK DONE

The Home Ec. course of the Oakland High school is carried on in the house located on the street opposite the main building. To all appearances this building seems more like an attractive nome than a school building. The arrangement and atmosphere of the interior convinces anyone that this is a model building for a group of girls studying home-making in all its phases.

On the first floor are the living room, dining room, kitchen and two sun rooms (and, indeed, the adjective well describes these sunny abodes).

The living room is tastefully furnished in maple and certainly looks conducive to reading and recreation. The spacious, well-equipped kitchen has instant appeal for most of the girls. There they try out their theories of cooking. This room is often the scene of many activities, especially at those times when the Home Ec. girls are preparing a banquet or refreshments for parties or for their own guests.

A large classroom, where the girls study the theories they put into practice in the laboratories, is located on the second floor. The sewing room, bedroom and bathroom are also on this floor.

The work of the Home Ec. course is built around certain units of work, such as: Food, clothing, child care, consumer buying and entertainment. The enrollment in this course is sixty. The classes, averaging twenty, are divided into groups to work on the different units in each class.

Two food groups, working on breakfast and luncheon units, are composed of girls acting as head cooks and assistant cooks. The hostess group is composed of a hostess, librarian, housekeepers, nurses and a dietician. The sewing group consists of head designers and their assistants.

Each girls within a group performs the specific duties assigned to her for a period of one week. Then each girl automatically rotates to the next type of work. If, originally an assistant cook, she next becomes head cook. When one girl has completed six weeks of work in one group each enters a new field of study in another unit of work.

Thus, by the end of the year, each girl has performed the duties of all phases of houskeeping.

The hostess, whose position is probably the most important, greets any person coming into the building other than classmates. She inspects the entire house after the various duties have been completed to see that they have been executed satisfactorily and aids the teacher in supervising this work. During her period as hostess, she completes some piece of novelty work and adds a touch of beauty to the house, besides giving the flowers daily care.

She reviews and practices introductions and all forms and types of social notes and invitations. As a final project she must mend any house linens, rugs or other items.

The Home Economics students and teachers have done an admirable amount of work to improve and add to the attractivensss of their school home.

These achievements will naturally be reflected in the care and management of their own homes.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Politics At Its Worst

Washington, Jan. 21.

It being now clear that, stirred by the cost, the waste, the inefficiency and the political abuses of WPA, Congress intends at this session to remodel the system (without, it may be mentioned, any help from Mr. Roosevelt) there is one feature that should not be overlooked.

* * *

The point has been reached where something should be done about Mr. David Sasser and his Workers Alliance. If the facts about Mr. Lasser and this organization permeate to the people there is little question about the way they would feel about it. Particularly would this be true if they had had an opportunity to see Mr. Lasser in action in Washington last week, when he truculently accused Senators of trying to "beat down wages" and intimated that if they did not yield to his demands there would be a march of relief workers upon Washington.

* * *

The question thus raised seems vital. Briefly, it is this: Is it in the public interests that men and women on the Federal relief rolls should join an organization whose sole purpose is to apply pressure to the Federal Government for more money? It is hard to believe that any sensible and posted person will answer yes. Even in this day when the principle of collective bargaiming between employer and employe is generally accepted and White House tenderness toward the labor leaders is unprecedented, the dangers of applying this principle to the Government and those whom it supports with the public funds, appear obvious.

* * *

Yet, such an organization has not only been recognized but encouraged hy the Roosevelt Administration. Its leader, Mr. Lasser, is sympathetically received at the White House and highly eulogized by the President's friends. Mr. Aubrey Williams, as chief WPA aide to Mr. Hopkins, publicly expressed the hope that every man and woman on relief would join the Lasser union. Thus we have the astounding spectacle of an Administration enthusiastreally encouraging an organization whose avowed purpose is to put pressure upon it. Nothing quite like that has happened before.

* * *

In return for this, Mr. Lasser, now claiming to represent 1500 "local unions" with 400,000 members, is an avowed New Dealer and a hundred per cent Roosevelt man who says of himself and his union, "We are in politics with both feet." Wholly aside from the fact that Mr. Lasser's "union" was conceived and created by the Communists and today has a strong Communist flavor, what this sort of thing means is clear. It gives impetus and indorsement to the welding of relief beneficiaries into an organized political minority with which Government officials from President down can be bullied. It forges an instrument with which the relief burden can be riveted permanently upon the country and its weight steadily increased. It provides a weapon which can be used to stage riots and hunger marches and frightening demonstrations.

* * *

There is no desire here to exaggerate the present size of Mr. Lasser. At this time, despite his claims and the obvious White House leanings toward him, he is a good deal of a bluffer with nothing like the power he pretends to. Nor are members of the Senate either awed or attracted by him to anything like the extent of the "Great Americans," as they so often and modestly call each other, of the inner White House circle. Members of Congress at this time are more impressed by the Mayors, the Governors, the small merchants and the labor lobby than by Mr. Lasser. Nevertheless, thoughtful men who reflect upon the facts and grasp the political implications of the Administration support, understand that, unchecked, this arrogant little agitator may easily be built up into a far more menacing figure than he now is. Continued support from the Administration upon which he puts pressure, together with backing by the regular labor leaders, ultimately will enable him to fashion from the relief rolls a political machine of great weight and power.

* * *

The politics in relief which Mr. Lasser represents and of which he boasts, is vastly worse than the politics shown by the Senate committee and the politics played by Mr. Hopkins. It is the most vicious sort of politics. In effect, there is today a political tieup between the Administration and the Workers Alliance which is sinister and shocking. If Congress does nothing else, it should end this. Fortunately, it is easy to do. A single sentence in the new relief bill, making it illegal for anyone receiving relief to be a member of any such pressure organization, would do the trick. The situation is intolerable and indefensible.

GRANTSVILLE

Local Man Injured In Mine

William Baker narrowly escaped being crushed to death one day last week when he was struck by falling slate while working in the Bowman coal mine. Mr. Baker's back was severely strained and lacerated and his right leg was painfully injured. It is reported that had he been a mere foot either forward or backward his life may have been snuffed out. It was some time before he could be extricated by fellow-workmen. No bones were broken, however, and indications are that he suffered no internal injuries. He will be confined to his home for some time, his physician said.

County Youth's Educational Activities Given Publicity

E. Wayne Fitzwater, University of Maryland student, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzwater, of the Swanton community, was given considerable commendatory publicity in the national fraternity magazine of Alpha Rho, January, 1939, issue. The title of the article is "Maryland's Strong Man." The article follows:

E. Wayne Fitzwater was born on a farm in Western Maryland in 1917. In high school he was active in debate and dramatics, as well as journalism. He also won numerous public speaking contests and participated in several F. F.A. judging contests. Graduating from high school in 1932 at the age of fifteen and lacking the funds to enter college, he stayed on the farm for a year and raised capons. He won a scholarship to Blue Ridge College in 1933 and entered there that fall. During his freshman year he was on the debate team, a member of the dramatics club, vice-president of the Y.M.C. A., winner of college oratorical contests, assistant sports editor and a member of honor roll.

In his sophomore year he continued debating and became debate manager, advertising manager and sports editor of school paper, manager of basketball and baseball, winner of college oratorical contest and vice-president of sophomore class.

"Fitz" left Blue Ridge at the end of his sophomore year and went back on the farm for another year and a half, raising capons and certified seed potatoes and working in the county agent's office. He entered the University of Maryland in February, 1937, pledged AGR, and was initiated in April. His first office in Alpha Theta was that of noble ruler, before having been a member for a full year.

During his one and one-half years at Maryland, he has becoone a member of the student grange, swimming club, Rossbourg club, inter-fraternity council, ag student council, twice treasurer of Block and Bridle, and president of F.F. A. For the past two summers he has been working for the U. S. bureau of agricultural engineering and at odd jobs during the school year, earning the majority of his expenses. He has an all-time average of better than 3.5

MT. LAKE PARK

Mountain Lake Roads

Traversing the roads of Mt. Lake during this "queer" weather we are inclined to wonder if it would not be a good idea to spend some money on cinders during the rigors of winter, and not all in getting the roads shaped up for fall. Seems to us that spring or late spring would be time enough to fix roads for summer use. As it is now the roads are almost hopeless. Strangers coming into the Park are met with icy, rutted roads. It's alright for the natives who know that road but lord help the fellow who does not. Mr. Teagarden has used the snow plow and done his best, but when it starts to sleet and rain and the roads get icy that's a different thing. Beginning at Braethorn cottage the State Roads Commission has cindered and do cinder when its necessary, but in the Park where there are workers going out in the early morning its pretty bad. After all they do live in Mt. Lake and should have some few comforts, and cinders would be a real comfort.

Self-Help School To Reopen

The Self-Help school will not open until March or April. After a meeting held here last week with Mr. E. D. Ford, of Cleveland, O., and several other members of the staff, this was definitely decided upon. Miss Maude Jefferson, of West Liberty, who has been a guest at the Colonial the past week, and who is registrar of the school, said "We feel that it is best to re-open the school in March. This will give a spring term and credits will be available for that term. Continuing on through to August first will give a summer term for which credits will be given."

Well, all we can say is that we are sorry. It's too bad the fine group of young people who came to this mountain top and expected to stay could not do so. But it's the old, old story—not enough funds. Had plans worked out as expected it would have meant a great deal to Mountain Lake. There seems to be some sort of a "jinx" on the Park. With all we have to offer, the finest water, and the finest climate, and all sorts of natural resources, there is something wrong. What is it? Your guess is as good as mine. We give up.

Tribute Paid Lieut.-Col. Devore

A very fine tribute was paid to the memory of the late Lieutenant Colonel Leland Devore, commandant at West Virginia University, when the military ball was postponed until March. This ball is a life-time affair and is held between semesters. This is the first time that it has ever been postponed since its inauguration. Col. Devore was a popular and loved figure at the University and he will be greatly missed in University circles.

Mickey's Band

The patrons of Mickey's Band have decided that it's time they had their own quarters, so the old Rathbun building, now owned by the Mt. Airy Canning Co., was decided upon. The entire second floor will be remodeled and made into first class condition. This band is doing a great deal to advertise Mt. Lake and Loch Lynn. It is also doing a great deal for the younger members of the community. We wish we had space to tell you just what it means to these boys who belong to this organization, and we wish also that we might tell of all the parents have done to help. It's a real organization and it's really "going places."

GROUNDHOG HAS CHANCE TO LOOK AT HIS SHADOW

Lowest Temperature of Year Recorded Saturday With 10 Degrees Below Zero

Although today began dreary enough to make it certain that the groundhog wasn't going to see his shadow, the sun peeped from behind the rain clouds long enough between 11:00 and 12:00 o'clock to give the animal an opportunity if he happened from his winter home at that time.

And so, according to tradition, we can expect six more weeks of winter weather.

Last week's storm continued in this county until Friday, nature putting a six-inch top dressing on what had already fallen, and bringing the total snowfall since January 13 to about 30 inches. Another two inches was added to the total on Tuesday when another storm struck here, causing school to be dismissed so that bus students could be assured of getting to their homes before the roads became blocked.

Although there has been much thawing in the past week, the coldest weather of the year was recorded Saturday morning. It was ten degrees below zero at the State garage and 7 below at Weber's. Eight above zero was registered last Friday and also yesterday morning.

The City Council has had a number of men employed clearing the piles of snow from the main streets and conditions are getting back to normal, waiting for the storm that is scheduled to be on its way from the west. It continued to thaw, however, today.

Oakland Teams Win A Double Header From Grantsville

Oakland High school basketball quint won its seventh game out of 12 last night on the local court when they easily defeated Grantsville 42 to 13. The girls, appearing in their new uniforms, also defeated the Grantsville lassies 33 to 8.

In the boys' game Wolfe was shifted to forward and came through with nine field goals. Kley and Fazzalari made four each and Sharps one. Patton was Grantsville's high scorer with 8 points. Oakland used many substitutes.

Both Oakland teams will travel to Frostburg tomorrow evening for games with Beall High school.

POWER HOUSE EMPLOYES AWARDED CERTIFICATES

Men At Hydro-Electic Plant Had no "Lost-time" Accidents in '38

Employes of the Deep Creek plant of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation, who during 1938 experienced no accidents resulting in lost time, were awarded honor certificates at a meeting held at the plant last Friday evening, January 27. Certificates were presented to fifteen employes by C. E. MacMurray, chief engineer, who presided at the meeting.

A special honor certificate was awarded to the Deep Creek plant in recognition of the fact that not one of its employes suffered an accident causing him to lose time from his work during the past year.

This is the second year that honor certificates have been awarded in the continuous accident-prevention competition which began in 1937. In this competition all employes, divisions and operating companies in the Associated Gas & Electric System compete. The purpose of the competition is to reduce pain and suffering, permanent disability, death and sorrow, which go hand in hand with accidents. All the operating companies in the System will compete in a special summer accident-prevention campaign this year.

Five of the employes who received honor certificates last Friday night for their perfect records in 1938 have avoided lost-time accidents for twelve years.

The five were Peder E. Baasland, Fred G. Gearhart, C. E. MacMurray, Clarence Sutter and George O. Wahl. The remaining ten of the fifteen who were awarded honor certificates included L. E. Beckman, T. C. DeWitt, Martin Friend, William Hastings, Paul Hinebaugh, F. E. Kershner, W. C. Mummert, Thomas Savage, C. W. Shipley and E. J. Sterline.

Fire Company Appoints Committee To Inspect Fire Escapes At School

At the regular meeting of the Oakland Fire Department last evening a committee was appointed to inspect the fire escapes at the Oakland Elementary school, and to meet with the Board of Education to make their recommendations with regard to the safety of the fire escapes and to take up the matter of regular drills in all the schools in the territory the local company serves.

This action was taken after the matter had been brought to the attention of the company by a group representing the Parent-Teachers' Association. Named on the committee were L. M. Fraley, Emroy Bolden, G. C. Stemple, James Lewis, and R. J. Stanton.

A banquet has been scheduled for next Wednesday evening, to be held at the Manhattan hotel. A pig has been donated by W. R. Browning to furnish the main item on the menu.

The Oakland Firemen answered one call the past week at the home of Chamber A. Spiker, on the Gortner road. No damage resulted from an overheated flue.

Grantsville Woman Seriously Burned by Kerosene

Mrs. Albert Wiley, 33, of Grantsville, was admitted to the Miner's hospital at Frostburg on Monday evening suffering with severe burns sustained in her home when she used kerosene in attempting to start a fire in a coal stove.

Flames leaped from the stove and ignited the woman's clothing. Her husband, in the house at the time, succeeded in extinguishing the blazing garments but not until the woman had been burned about the face, arms and body. Her condition was described as "very serious".

CRIMINALS SOUGHT BY THE G-MEN THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN IN OAKLAND

Act Suspicious At Every Place They Stop—Roomed At Canty's

If Oakland people had realized who their callers were last Wednesday evening and Thursday morning, perhaps they wouldn't have breathed quite so freely—at least the people living in the home of Mrs. M. J. Canty, or the employes at Lakeside Park, or in Glotfelty's restaurant, or in Pritts Brothers garage.

Two men and a girl came to Oakland last Wednesday night, getting rooms at Canty's. They drank coffee at Glotfelty's, and in returning to Canty's got in the Miller home across the street. They had also stopped previously at Railey's, on Deep Creek.

Several people along their route thought they recognized two of the trio as Benny Dickson and his wife, Stella Mae Dickson, who are being sought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, for armed robbery of a number of banks, kidnapping, and other violations of the law, throughout the middle west. They were reported in Maryland two weeks ago and pictures of the couple appeared in a number of newspapers.

At all places where they spent some time in Oakland they appeared to act suspicious. In Railey's and at the restaurant they separated while eating their meal, the two men drinking coffee with their left hands, keeping their right hands in their pockets. The girl usually did the talking and went into the places first to see if it appeared safe. The man, it was said, became suspicious at Pritts garage when in fixing his automobile the mechanic was absent from the car longer than he thought necessary. The trio traveled in a car with Texas license plates. They told some person they were on their way to Cumberland.

After suspicions had been aroused Sheriff J. W. Owens was notified and after getting in touch with the Federal Bureau at Cumberland, two G-men came to Oakland to investigate, but they had left town by this time.

URGE LOCAL LEADERSHIP IN SELLING OUR STATE

Tourist Trade Is Third Largest In Country, But We Neglect It

Urging that Western Maryland take the lead in a movement to "sell" Maryland to the nation's tourists, Harold E. Fink, Baltimore, president of the Maryland State Hotel Men's Association, told the Cumberland Rotary club Monday that the tourist business is the third largest in the United States and that Maryland is backward in going after its share of the millions that are spent every year by those who travel.

A national chart shows that hotels and restaurants get 23 per cent of the tourist dollar, but much of this goes back in local channels in garages, food purchases and taxes. Retail store sales account for 31 per cent of each tourist dollar; ten per cent is spent at garages and gas stations; eight per cent goes to theatres and amusements, and the remainder goes to a variety of enterprises.

Mr. Fink cited how New England had made up losses sustained when textile mills began to shut down by seeking tourist business through State-wide publicity and convention bureaus. Some states have spent as much as half a million of dollars a year to attract tourists.

Along this line, the speaker called attention to a recommendation of the governmental commission headed by Isaiah Bowman that a Department of Natural Resources be established and that it include a section devoted to publicizing the tourist attractions of Maryland.

Governor O'Conor's speech during the recent campaign in Garrett county was also cited. In that address the State's chief executive visioned the extreme western end of Maryland as a great recreational area. Mr. Fink termed Western Maryland the logical place to start a movement to get staid aid for Maryland publicity.

Sixty-Eight Marriages Are Performed During January

Sixty-eight marriage licenses were issued during the month of January, according to A. G. Ross, Clerk of the Circuit Court. There were sixty-three applications also granted.

SYSTEM OF FALSE CLAIMS ON TAX REFUND EXPOSED

Three Accident Men Under Arrest For Obtaining Money From State Under False Pretenses

OBTAINED AT LEAST $600

A systematic plan of entering false claims for refund of the tax on motor vehicle fuel, which has cost the state of Maryland at least $600 within the past year, has just been uncovered here by Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, and other county officials and has resulted in the arrest of three young men of the Accident community.

Darl Harding, 24, was arrested in Akron, O., last Thursday, where he was visiting a sister, and was brought to Oakland last Saturday where he was placed in the county jail. Robert Rush, 19, and Blaine Miller, 23, were also arrested and the two latter are under bond of $1,000 each.

Fraley said the three were charged with obtaining money under false pretense, defrauding the Comptroller's office of the State of Maryland, and that possibly a charge of forgery would be lodged against them. The nature of the offense makes possible also a Federal charge—that of using the mails to defraud.

Fraley said that Robert Rush had confessed to participating in at least fifteen instances of filing claims against the state for tax refund and that Harding and Miller had admitted "knowing about them." The Maryland law authorizes a refund of four cents per gallon on gasoline used for airplanes, farm machinery, motorboats, and stationary engines, etc., where the engine is not used on the highways.

Blank claims were obtained from various garages in Oakland, Accident, and Grantsville, and sales slips indicated that the specified amounts of gasoline had been purchased were made out, properly signed and marked "paid", and attached to the claims that were sent to the Comptroler's office. A book of sales slips had been "swiped", one of the parties admitted, from the Tri-State garage in Accident. There were also sales slips that had been stolen from other garages.

In the claims filed the parties explained that the gasoline was being used for corn shredders, choppers, wood saws, tractors, threshers, and other farm machinery. Mr. Fraley said the claim upon which they caught the parties was one for 880 gallons of gas supposedly used between October and December 15, amounting to $35.20, by a fictitious person at McHenry. The check was never cashed.

In some instances those involved made out claims in their own names, while in others they would make out claims for fictitious people, and then after a few days call at Postoffices in McHenry, Friendsville, Grantsville, and Accident, asking for mail for parties whose name had been signed to the claim, and to whom the comptroller had made the check payable. These checks, Fraley said, would then be endorsed and cashed.

The claims, Fraley stated, averaged about $35.00. It appeared that the practice had been carried on for possibly a year, perhaps longer, he surmised.

After questioning Harding, Rush and Miller thoroughly Mr. Fraley announced that possibly others would be involved, but as yet no other arrests have been made.

Records at the office of the Comptroller show that each year there are tax refunds on gasoline amounting to approximately $700,000, whether there have been other cases in which the State has been paying false or padded claims, is not known.

Farm Bureau Meets

The Garrett County Farm Bureau met in the Friendsville High school auditorium Saturday afternoon, January 28, to hear reports on the annual State meeting held in Baltimore recently, given by William Winterberg, R. O. McCullough, Mrs. C. C. Beachy, Charley B. Miller and John H. Carter, the county agent.

A business meeting was conducted following the presentation of these reports. The bureau set a membership quota of 100 for 1939, and a program and membership committee was appointed.

William Wildesen was named as delegate to attend with County Agent Carter, a land planning group meeting in Hagerstown on February 15, 16 and 17.

Baltimore Epworth League Will Not Meet At Mt. Lake Park

Announcement has been made that the Epworth League Summer Institute, held at Mountain Lake Park for several years, would be transferred to Westminster, and held on the campus of Western Maryland college, commencing July 19.

The decision to change the location of the institute was made Saturday at a meeting of the faculty, called by Dean Edward G. Latch, at the Chevy Chase church, Washington, D. C.

Reasons given for the change were the rundown condition of the buildings at the Park, the fact that the Park is in the extreme western end of the state. The institute, sponsored by the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist church, has a faculty of about 25 teachers and is usually attended by nearly two hundred young people of the churches included in the conference.

CITY COUNCIL DISCUSSES SPECIAL ELECTION PLANS

Citizens To Vote February 10 On Community Building Bonds

Final preparations were made for the special municipal election at a meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening.

The election is scheduled for Friday, February 10, and citizens of Oakland will vote on a measure which permits the town of Oakland to issue bonds for funds to be used in the construction of a Community Building. A notice of the election to be held on the above date, as well as the text of the legislative measure authorizing the election and the issuance of bonds, should the law be adopted by the voters, will be found in The Republican today.

A project of the WPA for construction work has already been approved. The proposed building will cost approximately $74,000, of which the Federal government will furnish about $51,800, leaving around $23,000 for the town to furnish.

According to town officials members of the fire department have assumed responsibility of repaying the money borrowed, so that there is no likelihood of the town becoming involved in the repayment of the money borrowed. The town already provides $1,500 annually toward the support of the fire department and the county the sum of $800, and this amount, it is stated, will be used in part to liquidate the debt.

At Monday night's meeting Council also authorized Z. S. Heskett, auditor, of Cumberland, to make an audit of the books of the town. Each year a report of the financial condition of the municipality is published prior to the regular election held during the month of March.

Medico Is Called Out In Storm After Seeing Movie About Doctors

When Dr. Clift P. Berger emerged from the movie theatre on Monday evening after seeing the dramatization of the book entitled, "The Citadel," dealing with the life of a practicing physician in Great Britain, he was met by a man who had been waiting for him quite some time.

"My mother is very ill," he told him. "Will you come?"

When Dr. Berger told him "Yes," the man continued: "Ih's out beyond Deer Park. When we get as far as we can in a car there is still a mile to walk.

Dr. Berger went. It was almost midnight and there was a storm raging.

The picture witnessed, of course, wasn't responsible for his readiness to go. But it must have helped to put him in a mood for rendering service, and being proud of it.

Two Persons Taken To Hospital

Frank Westlake, who was being held in the Garrett County Jail on a charge of arson in connection with the burning of his home in 1937, was taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, last Friday afternoon, suffering with pneumonia. He still remains in a very serious condition.

At the same time Ruth Baker, of Rosedale, about 20 years old, was also taken to the hospital. Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, who was called to attend her prior to the trip to Cumberland, said she told him she had taken four bichloride tablets earlier in the day and that she took them with intent to commit suicide. These tablets are used as a disinfectant.

COMMISSIONERS ANNOUNCE TAX RATE OF $1.15 FOR '39

Garrett county's tax rate was fixed at $1.15 on each $100 of assessable property by the Board of County Commissioners, according to the annual levy, which was released for publication late last night. The levy was completed on January 20. The Commissioners are required by law to make the levy on or before the first of February.

The rate is 15 cents more on each $100 of assessable property than was levied during the four years previous to last year, but a change in the law, applicable in 1938, brought the rate to 85 cents last year, creating some uncertainty in the minds of many taxpayers of the county as to whether taxes had been raised or lowered, as the fiscal year had been changed from July 1 to January 1.

With this year's rate at $1.15, all important county officers, including those connected with the health office, the county agent and home demonstration agent, are retained, and large sums are levied for roads and equipment and relief agencies.

Schools Get Minimum

Public schools received $93,143.99 for general operating expenses and nothing for capital outlay or debt service, both of which were requested in the estimated budget submitted to the Board of County Commissioners by the Board of Education several weeks ago in compliance with the law. The school board requested $94,966 for current expenses; $73,675 for capital outlay and $13,654 for debt service. The amount levied by the Commissioners was exactly 47 cents on each $100 of assessable property, as required by State law.

Relief Burden Increases

The Commissioners levied the sum of $34,936.79 for various items of relief that are administered by the Garrett County Welfare Board, which is an increase of $9,000 over last year. General public assistance got $8,000 of this increase, making a total of $13,000 levied for this item. Old age pensions got $13,000; Welfare Board administration, $3,800; Children's Aid Society, $3,155, and aid to dependent children fund, $1,981.79. All this was in addition to an item of $9,000 for the almshouse and asylum fund. The Commissioners disbursed general public assistance funds last year but recently

PETER PREACHES AT PENTECOST

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:12-18, 36-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts.—Zechariah 4:6.

We need a revival. With one accord leaders of the Chureh agree on that point although they may differ widely on other matters. Social and eivie leaders agree. One prominent government offieial recently said that the only hope for the world in this hour of eonflict and eonfusion was a return to the Christian faith of our fathers. He was but one of many outstanding men who have expressed such a belief.

How may sueh a revival of faith toward God (with its quiekening of the believer and the resultant salvation of sinners) be brought about? Certainly it is not in the power of man to produee it, although he does have a vital part in surrendering himself to God's plan and purpose so that He may work again in the midst of His people. Our lesson for today elearly indieates how God worked on Pentecost, namely, through a Spirit-filled people, proclaiming His own Word, with astonishing results following. Will not God work in the same way today if we only give Him a ehanee?

I. An Amazing Spiritual Experienee (vv. 12, 13).

Read the first 11 verses of this chapter and you will learn of the coming of the Holy Spirit upon the disciples—as the rushing of a mighty wind, in tongues of fire, and in the ability to proclaim the Word of God to all men.

There is no use talking about another Pentecost as though God needs to repeat that marvelous day. But the essence of what oeeurred on Penteeost is the deep need of both individual Christians and of the Church today. In much (one is almost ready to say most) of our Christian work there is not only a failure to recognize the Holy Spirit, but what appears to be an aetual ignoring of Him. One of the great experienees of literally thousands of students who have come under the writer's care during the years is their sudden understanding of the faet that the Holy Spirit is a person —yes, a eonvieting, regenerating, direeting, and energizing member of the divine Trinity, working in and through man.

II. An Effective Spiritual Message (vv. 14-18, 36. See also vv. 19-35).

The eharacteristies of a real gospel message are found here. First of all there must be a Spirit-filled preaeher. He may be a minister or he may be a layman, but if the Spirit of God is upon him, there will be the right kind of message.

That message will not be an essay, book review, or dissertation on social or civie problems, but an exposition of the Word of God. Note that Peter preaehed and interpreted propheey — a subjeet whieh no preaeher should neglect—but that he did so not for the purpose of having a sensational sermon subject, but in order to reveal the glories of the person and work of Christ—a lesson some preaehers need to learn.

The manner of preaching is also important. Peter was definite, earnest, bold, and deeidedly personal in his preaehing. A man who is speaking in the energy of the flesh should beware of sueh marks upon his preaehing, but a Spirit-filled man should rejoiee in the holy boldness and assuranee whieh the Holy Spirit gives. He will be delivered from any temptations to be extreme or unkind, but will at the same time be led to say those things whieh will priek the hearts of people and cause them to turn to Christ.

III. An Appropriate Spiritual Result (vv. 37-41).

We often say that there is very little old-time conviction of sin today, and alas, it is all too true. It is not even the privilege of many spiritually-minded preaehers who present a true gospel to see sueh a response as Peter saw on Penteeost. But that does not mean that the Spirit is not working.

God does not hold us responsible for outward evidenee of results. He does hold every teacher and preaeher responsible for faithful diseharge of his sacred stewardship. That includes more than the publie ministry of teaching a Sunday School class or preaching a sermon. It means that the individual's life is right with God—no triekery, no dishonesty, no double dealing with God or man; a life yielded to the eontrol of the Holy Spirit. Next comes diligenee in study of God's Word, and a willingness to proelaim its whole truth without fear or favor, in season and out of season.

The Living Word

Christ is the Living Word; so it is the Word of God that has come from God, and has eome into this world, and by whieh all and every operation of God is effeeted. Where the Word of God is reeeived the soul is begotten of God.

In the other game of the twin bill, the local boys bowed to a Salisbury (Pa.) team 33-11.

Lucille Patton registered 24 points for the winners while Betty Patton accounted for 23 of the Alumnae's markers. In the nightcap, the Salisbury quint proved too much for coach William Grimm's outfit, the visitors leading 9-3, 15-5 and 24-9 at the periods. Rodney Patton, Mark Schaefer and Bayard Keller accounted for the local's baskets with Belmont Miller scoring a foul shot.

TWISTING THINGS ABOUT—

Sometimes it doesn't seem to be of much use to try to give out information that comes from public officials as facts. Other people—and other newspapers—twist about what has been said and try to argue on other points that have not been said and are entirely beside the question.

Then the other people—and other newspapers—make a charge of misrepresentation on things that never even were said in the first place. It's all a very slick game and to see through it, one must do his own thinking.

For instance, two weeks ago we pointed out that some information appearing in The Democrat about the meeting of the taxpayers' committee and the County Commissioners didn't coincide with what the Commissioners had stated. We didn't argue whether what the Commissioners had said was sound, or whether or not they could do what they pleased. We stated the Commissioners had said certain things.

In regard to paying for road machinery we stated that the Commissioners had definitely stated at the meeting how they expected to pay for it—with back taxes and the credit on machinery from WPA. We added a statement at that time saying that whether or not the Commissioners could do what they pointed out, was beside the question. At least they had so stated, and we were reporting facts as they were disclosed.

Last Thursday the Democrat made the statement that we were misrepresenting, because there were no back taxes and that machinery could not be paid for with credits. We didn't say they could. We merely stated what the Commissioners had said they could do, and in reporting the same matter the Democrat stated the Commissioners had not been clear on how they expected to pay for the machinery.

In the matter of WPA credits, THE COMMISSIONERS EXPLAIN it this way: The Commissioners must pay 20 percent of WPA road projects. In other words, if a project cost $100,000 the county would have to provide $20,000. If the WPA allows them credit on machinery used during the project costing $100,000, then it stands to reason that they wouldn't have to pay money to the WPA but could apply the $20,000 on anything they desired, purchase of machinery, etc. WPA is prepared to allow the Commissioners over $100 per day for use of machinery purchased. Working 200 days a year would make $20,000 credit, and that much that the Commissioners wouldn't have to put up in cash.

Whether this works out or not, we are not prepared to say. The Commissioners think it will.

The entire front page editorial of the Democrat is in the same vein. Because the Commissioners say the machinery will speed up WPA work on roads the Democrat attempts to point out that it is "strange indeed that The Republican would be in favor of anything the WPA had any connection with. Many times in the past they have been very critical of the WPA and all of its works and we wonder why this sudden face about."

Their "ghost writer" certainly left himself and the Democrat wide open on this question, with their attempted wisecrack.

Even with microscopic specs and the giant telescope now in process of completion one could not find in the columns of The Republican where we had suffered a "face about" on being critical of the WPA.

The Republican has always been critical of WPA spending and all Federal Government relief spending. We have always been critical of the WPA loafers and those in charge will admit that there are plenty of them on the rolls, notwithstanding the fact that thehre are some real workers.

The building of better roads in the county only indirectly brings in the WPA. We do favor better roads, and since there are over 700 men available under WPA they might as well be doing something as long as the Federal Government continues to give them financial aid.

But here again the Democrat veers from the subject. There was nothing said directly that The Republican favored the purchase of road machinery by the Commissioners. We did say that they ought to have a fair chance to carry out their plans, and that there were many people in the county who wanted better roads.

So we favor better roads. We also favor better and more adequate public schools, a community building, a better public spirit on the part of those who are extremely selfish and other things that will make the county a nicer community in which to live. We favored a golf course for Oakland.

We are not in favor of a few self-chosen politicians who have selfish motives trying to run the county and its officials the way they want it and them run. The election last November was supposedly for the purpose of settling that question.

PARAGRAPH OPINIONS

The New Dealers say that trimming the relief budget will cause some people to go hungry in the United States. If the appropriation is reduced why not take it out of the politicians rather than the unfortunates?

* * *

More and more talk of a sales tax keeps coming to the front. In our opinion, the sales tax is a fair one, providing there is a subsequent reduction in the property tax.

With all the talk of taxes, it seems that those in charge of the various governments are always seeking ways to get more taxes. They never seem to plan for ways to reduce existing taxes.

A sales tax is one that tends to make people more tax-conscious. Every time one buys an article the clerk will announce that it costs so much—and so much tax. This should be good for the people.

* * *

Congressman W. P. Lambertson, when he heard of Tom Mooney's pardon out in California, said: "I am glad there are no more vacancies in the Cabinet."

* * *

It is our opinion that there should be a distinction in the WPA—to separate the WPA workers from the WPA loafers. The latter group has given the whole organization a bad reputation. The latter group is living better today than they ever lived. Members of that group never did work, never will work, and have no right to a Government handout unless they earn it and are worthy of it.

When the pruning of the relief rolls begins, there ought to be a way of rewarding the deserving and dropping the undeserving, and it appears that this will be the case—once politics is removed.

Two Armed Bandits Rob Service Station

State police and county authorities have been asked to aid in the search for two armed handits who robbed a service station attendant at Mt. Storm, W. Va., and fled in a car carrying Pennsylvania tags.

Howard Schell, attendant at the Elrick Station, said two unmasked men, both armed with pistols, entered the place at 4 a. m., Tuesday, took $25 in money and departed, traveling westward on route 50. Radio bulletins were sent to police in nearby states.

She's in Good Hands

PULL YOUR TOWN TOGETHER—

(From the Rotarian Magazine)

This is true about neighbors the world around: you get along with them or you don't get along with them. Sometimes the fact that they are new to the community or that they are of a different race or nationality rears an invisible barrier between you which seems insurmountable. Yet this great wall—since it is one we ourselves build— is one which we can break through.

Look at your neighbor—even if he lives on the other side of town. Perhaps his name is unpronounceable, his language incomprehensible, his customs inexplicable, yet he is more like you than he is unlike you. If you hear him sing, or see him dance, or watch him work at his hobby, you will find he has something to contribute to the enrichment of community life. By sharing your cultural heritages, you and he—despite different social or racial backgrounds—can learn to live happily and harmoniously together, eventually helping to develop new and outstanding centers of thought and art.

Civic-minded bodies, as Louis Adamic says, have done and can do much to bring together different national or racial groups in any community—in the New World or Old World. Members of these groups can become good neighbors, cross each other's threshholds, enjoy each other's fellowship at festivals, programs, exhibits, and other activities in which all can take part. They can help each other to adjust to social or economic changes effecting them. Differences which once loomed large disappear when people of different backgrounds discover how much they have in common. What they need is a chance to discover this fact for themselves.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The town of Kingwood installed an electric light plant and celebrated with fire works and a brass band.

Farmers reported the condition of the growing wheat crop was promising.

The contract for the erection of the poles and wires for the telephone line from Accident and Friendsville to Oakland had been awarded to Charles F. White, of Hutton.

Many of the B. and O. employes had made over 10 days during the previous month. Sleep was at a premium with some on account of the heavy business, as men were called to go out again right after they had come in from a day's work.

A telegram was received by Mayor Jamison asking for the fire department to be sent to Deer Park as a fire was in progress there. The alarm was given, the chemical engine was loaded in a box car, and the run was made to Deer Park in 12 minutes. The Methodist church was already in ashes and a portion of Mrs. Chidester's residence destroyed and considerable damage done to the residence of William Thrasher.

Howard Smouse, who had been engaged with Messrs. Dixon and Kelso and also J. M. Davis and Son, prepared to leave for Fairmont for a position with a large hardware dealer there.

Patrick H. Rodeheaver, Hooppole road, altho ill of grip, walked into town for medicine for his family, all of whom had been ill for several days of the same disease. He was quite sick when he arrived.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Food prices were beginning to slump, as a result of the end of the war in November.

Ratification of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution was proclaimed formally, although it had become effective January 16.

A few warm days had started the maple sap to flowing and producers were preparing for the largest crop in several years.

Ernest Liller, in the air service of the Army returned to his home and prepared to engage in the tailoring business. Bernard Faherty also returned home from the service. Wellington Yutzy also had returned. He landed in France just one hour after the armistice was signed, and after about a month he was returned to this side.

Political aspirants were George W. Legge, Jr., for State's Attorney; Andrew Shartzer, for Sheriff; and Franklin H. Harvey, for County Treasurer.

Farmers in the Short Run section were taking advantage of the favorable weather and were doing their spring plowing.

The Thimble club (still active) members were entertained at the home of Mrs. F. E. Rathbun.

H. Creutzhurg sold his stock of merchandise to Louis Crane Luber, of Philadelphia, who began operating the store in his own name.

Average Forest Fire in 1938 Confined to 11 1-4 Acres in State

The State Forestry Department broke all previous records for fire protection last year by holding the average area burned per fire to eleven and a quarter acres, Walter J. Quick, Jr., assistant forester, has reported.

This is the first improvement made in regard to the size of the average fire in any calendar years since 1932, in which year the best former record of thirteen and one-half acres was established.

A total of 1,314 fires caused $62,901 in damages to 15,100 acres, the report showed. False alarms totaled 166. Forty-five percent of fires were caused by persons carelessly discarding lighted cigarets or cigars. Incendiary blazes accounted for fourteen percent of the damage to timber and Garrett county was listed in the report as having 83 incendiary fires.

Joseph I. France, former United States Senator from Maryland, was found dead in bed last Thursday night.

The Maryland House of Delegates voted themselves nifty, special-issue license plates to impress "commoner mortals" last Thursday.

The Senate rebelled at President Roosevelt's spending policies and joined the House in ordering a $150,000,000 cut in the work-relief appropriations in Washington on Friday by the margin of a single vote, 47 to 43. It voted to provide $750,000,000, for a five-months period.

WPA CUT AND THE FIGURES

It is and always has been very difficult indeed for the person trained in the old fashioned school of mathematics, accounting, bookkeeping, to follow the gyrations of the New Deal system dealing with these subjects. Somehow, it can make a deficit appear as a surplus; a debt appear to be a gain in net assets, and take trust funds, use them, and still list them on the government books as cash in hand. We don't know; we admit inability to understand such financial magic and defy any good auditor to do so. But there they are. A new era in figuring has come in, and all the sound bookkeepers of old are out the federal window.

Just now, the administration is loudly proclaiming that if the cut in relief funds demanded by the House of Representatives * * * a reduction of $150,000,000 from the requested $875,000,000 is made, then there must be 1,000,000 WPA workers cut from the lists. The request was only for the period up to July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year, and the present fund wasted during the hot months of election and now depleted due to this subversive political usage, is only scheduled by the President and his yes-men of relief to be depleted as of February 7. Actually it will not be depleted wholly then; it probably will run until March 1, competent observers say.

Nobody wants to cut down on those who really are entitled to relief. But it might be possible to save a little money by trimming the number of relief distributors who furnish the politics and the overhead.

The cut in the fund demanded amounted to only about 17 per cent, yet the threatened reductino in WPA workers would amount practically to one-third. In Oklahoma, Ron Stephens, director, claims 26,000 men will lose their jobs as a result of the 17 per cent reduction, but 26,000 men is about a third or more of the number on WPA work in this state!

How can these figures be reconciled? How can a reduction of 17 per cent in funds cause a reduction of practically twice that in the number of beneficiaries? We profess not to know. Maybe the New Deal statisticians have an answer. The Democratic chairman of the Senate sub-committee in charge of the relief appropriation, Adams, of Colorado, asserts the cut could not mean more than a reduction of 600,000 workers on the present top basis of WPA wages (and these are higher than Oklahoma WPA wages). The difference between 1,000,000 and 600,000 is 400,000, which may seem a small figure to the administration billion wizards; but still, it is a sizeable number of people, and even the President should be advised of the difference.—Enid, Okla., News.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, February 1, 1939.

The budget is the thing! Aside from discussion on the proposed new budget and various committee meetings, this past week has been one of little activity at Annapolis. A strong conviction that the State budget should be balanced by a sound tax program, and not by the diversion of gasoline revenues, was expressed this week by county members of the Legislature, who thus found themselves in agreement with members of the city delegation. In his budget message last week Gov. O'Conor said: "Maryland will balance its budget, not by diverting gasoline taxes, but by meeting squarely the issue and adopting an adequate tax program which will yield the required revenue."

Each member of the Garrett county delegation was asked whether he agreed with this principal. Senator Friend who has always pledged himself to economy in State government said: "I have always opposed diversions. But while I favor making up the difference by taxes, I think that we could reduce the amount of the difference by economies. I think the Governor has started in the right direction, but his economies haven't gone far enough."

County chairman Martin Groves declared: "I'm with the Governor one hundred per cent". Nelson Brenneman was less emphatic but said: "Road money should be used for that purpose. I approve the idea of new taxes so long as too much of a tax burden does not result." Delegate Darwin Martin made his statement with reservations when he said: "I favor the principal, yes." And so after the above brief statements we find that the Garrett county group will do their bit to balance the budget and to keep taxes and the cost of government as low as possible.

Beneath the criss-cross of opinion on the tax problems was a general undercurrent of feeling that the State Administration is in a position to get pretty much what it wants. With this in mind we wonder if Dr. "Curly" Byrd, president of the University of Maryland and up to now master politician, will have his usual influence over the Legislature when he begins his biannual lobby in behalf of his College Park institution. In the proposed budget submitted by the Governor the University received a drastic cut and it is our guess that "Curly" will be tossed out at first if and when he takes the issue further.

Bills sent to the General Assembly from the office of the Governor today included:

A bill merging the offices of budget director and State purchasing agent, to effect a saving in administrative costs and to afford the Governor a continuing check on the financial condition of departments, bureaus and institutions.

The $95,000,000 budget bill, of which the principal features had already been announced in the Governor's message a week ago.

Another measure to provide the Board of Mental Hygiene with a long needed direct control over the insane institutions of the State.

The bill merging the Budget Bureau and Central Purchasing Agency provided for a permanent director of the new department to be removed only for cause. The merged offices would be known as the Department of Budget and procurement.

A strong lobby in behalf of legalized pinball machines was understood to be forming. The Rawls report recommended that these be eliminated. They were legalized and licensed during the last two years as part of the emergency relief fund. They are such prolific sources of revenue for their operators that pressure "back home" has already begun to make its impression on legislators. Pinball machines are "one armed bandits" in disguise, don't be fooled---you can't win—write your representatives.

Back to Garrett county and then we must say thirty for another week. The Bloomington school bill was the first Garrett county bill to be passed and so the town of Bloomington will now have a much needed "little red school house" in the modern trend. The bounty bill will apparently be amended in committee and we will advise on this subject at a later date. Senator Friend's bill which makes the office of Clerk to the County Commissioners appointive instead of elective has been introduced.

NEW MOVE MADE FOR THE BUILDING OF SAVAGE DAM

Allegany County Commissioners Importuned To Sponsor Project

Giving further attention to pending important works projects in the community of Cumberland, chamber of commerce directors on Thursday evening at a meeting in Cumberland, made a new move toward the Savage River dam project. Flood control and airport projects were also discussed by the body.

The Upper Potomac River Commission was asked in a resolution to contact the Allegany County Commissioners and urge them to become sponsors of a renewed Savage River dam project. The object would be to obtain authority from Congress for construction of the dam as a Federal project.

Heretofoer the project has been considered under the river and harbors enterprises of the War Department, but that has apparently fallen through and new Congressional authority must be obtained in order to revive it.

Plan For Mass Meeting

Following a report in detail by Harold W. Smith, secretary, of a conference held January 23 in Washington with Col. R. S. Thomas, of the United States Army engineers, by representatives of the chamber, plans were furthered for a mass meeting to be held the evening of February 13 in Cumberland at which Col. Thomas will explain his flood control plan.

The Thomas plan is based largely on the Kimball plan drawn up a decade ago, and is designed to cope with flood conditions approximating the stage of the 1936 flood in Wills Creek.

When asked at the conference what type of plan he would propose if he were starting from scratch without restrictions, Col. Thomas declared that he would offer the exact plan he is now recommending. After a careful review of all plans and suggestions, he said he considered his plan the best that could be worked out and come within economic justification.

The project is based on the $743,000 already appropriated under an act of Congress.

Will Use Lantern Slides

At the mass meeting February 13, which will follow a dinner, Colonel Thomas will present his plan in detail, using lantern slides and drawings to illustrate the various factors involved.

COMMISSIONERS ANNOUNCE TAX RATE OF $1.15 FOR '39

turned this job back to the County Welfare Board.

Roads and Equipment

County roads and equipment were given $45,000. Last year $20,000 was levied for oiling and screening of the roads. This year's figures evidently includes the payment for machinery purchased in December, over which there were objections raised by a committee of taxpayers who demanded that the machinery be returned or legal proceedings would be instituted.

The assessable basis for the county in real and tangible personal property was placed at $18,442,711. This figure, added to amounts for household goods of $300,160; automobile, estimated, of $325,000, and returns from the State Tax Commission, estimated, $750,000, makes a total of $19,817,871. This is about $400,000 less than the assessable basis for the county last year, but is expected to bring in at $1.15 per $100, a total of $227,905.52. The estimated revenue from the beer tax was put at $20,000, and intangible personal property was expected to bring $2,263.37. Bank shares are estimated to add $2,000 to the revenue of the county.

One Member Disagrees

The levy, as transmitted to The Republican for publication, will be found on page six of today's edition.

The levy is published by order of the Board of County Commissioners, although Paul M. Friend, one of the members of the Board, said he agreed on the rate of taxation as set by the Board, but refused to sign the levy because of the manner particular items appearing in the levy had been listed, which the other members of the Board refused to change. Mr. Friend mentioned specifically a suggested item for the Bloomington fire department of $400 and actual overdrafts of approximately $9,000.

Items Are Omitted

A comparison of this year's levy with that of last year's, shows there is no levy made for any debt service. At a meeting in November following the election, it was understood that the Commissioners had agreed to furnish necessary funds, amounting to about $12,000, so that the work on the Oakland Elementary and Kitzmilleer High school additions could be approved by the Public Works Administration, and construction work started. No levy is made to take care of this item.

It is also reported that a bill was passed by the Legislature directing the Commissioners to levy $12,000 for for the erection of a school building at Bloomington. It was stated at the Commissioners' office that no official notice of such a bill passing had ever been received by them. There is no provision in the levy for this item.

Join Army Reserves; No K. P. Duty, $24 a Year Is Uncle Sam's Latest Offer to Former Soldiers

If you're a former soldier, you're tossing away $24 a year by not enlisting in the regular Army reserves.

All you've got to do is go through the formality of enlisting and reporting any changes in your residance and the $24 a year is yours.

That's the news Sergeant Clarence Biehn in charge of the Army Recruiting Station, Post Office Building, Cumberland, handed out Monday.

Provisions have been made by Congress to maintain a regular reserve of 75,000 men, composed of former soldiers who have been discharged honorably and are physically fit.

All you have to do is enlist and report your moving days, if any, and it's $96 to you for four year enlistment. No duties are required of a reservist, Sergeant Biehn says, and there are no camps or formation to attend. There are also plenty of vacancies for other former service Army men who are not more than 36 years of age. Sergeant Biehn said that a penny post card will bring full information on the Regular Army Reserve Corps. Call or write the United States Army Recruiting Station, Cumberland.

Miss Margaret Kahl, Cumberland, is here for a few days' visit with relatives.

LEGISLATORS ASSEMBLING MATERIAL ON SALES TAX

Maryland Solons Look To Washington State For Information

Maryland legislators are looking across the continent in hope of finding in Washington State the answer to one of their own fiscal problems.

In that cross-country look was the gleam of a sales tax—a revenue raising measure rejected in past sessions but already brought back to this one as a possible boulevard to a balanced budget.

Backers of a retail sales tax have estimated a one per cent levy would produce $5,000,000 annually.

Data Being Assembled

Data from the west-coast state, which has a 2 per cent sales tax, has been sought and more Maryland legislators have written the secretary of state there for further information. Washington's real property tax is 40 mills and this, coupled with favorable reports on the sales tax, has been advanced in support of a similar pattern for Maryland.

Favor of the sales tax has sprung mainly from solons opposed to the classified income tax, core of the broad tax program advocated by Governor O'Conor.

Deny Border Argument

The argument that a sales tax drives trade in border counties into nearby states where no tax is levied, has been countered, some legislators say, with reports from Washington that border counties have suffered no such loss of business because of the tax.

Support for the tax in Maryland has not crystalized into the drafting of a bill. But debate on the income tax is expected to unite the sales tax supporters.

Is Favored By Garrett Countian

An opponent of high real estate taxes is a member of the Garrett delegation in the Lower House who has said that the sales tax will, in his opinion, be the solution of financial problems in the State of Maryland.

Two Oakland Boys Playing Good Ball With Frostburg

Two Garrett County boys attending Frostburg State Teachers college figured prominently in that school's basketball victory over the quint from Potomac State School, Keyser, last Friday evening, at Frostburg. The score was 56 to 50.

It was Frostburg's first victory in history over a team from Potomac State.

Frostburg used only five men in turning the trick with Pat Rice, Oakland, scoring the most hits with ten baskets and three fouls for 23 points. Max Nordeck, Oakland, Frostburg guard, failed to register from the field but stood out with a sensational defensive and passing game. The smallest man on the floor, he nevertheless broke up many Potomac State plays.

FINLAND'S PROMOTION OF HEALTH TOLD IN POSTERS

A recent visitor from Finland to the State Department of Health, Dr. Severi Savonen, Secretary of the Finnish Anti-Tuberculosis Association, in acknowledgement of courtesies extended to him during his stay in Maryland, on his return to Helsingsfors, sent to the Department a set of the posters used in the campaign for the promotion of health and the prevention of tuberculosis in Finland. They are as applicable to Maryland as to Finland and are described by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Department, as follows:

"The posters are done in color, in soft pastel shades, and each tells its own human interest story. Number one shows a mother getting ready to serve a meal, and in an adoining room a boy and girl washing their hands in preparation for it. The inscription is: 'Before eating and on coming in doors I wash my hands.'

"Next comes a picture of the family group at the table and the title signifies that 'Suitable food gives health and strength.' Decorations at the bottom of the page indicate that 'suitable food' includes a generous supply of milk, green leafy vegetables, other vegetables, bread, butter, cheese, eggs and meat.

"Gaily colored vegetables and fruits are shown in the next pictures and a spirited drawing of a tooth invaded by decay, gives point to the warning as to what may happen from too great indulgence in sweets. The title of this is: 'I eat fruit, vegetables and berries. Sweets spoil the appetite and the teeth.'

"Next come two out-of-door pictures. One, of a school playground with a baseball 'eleven', not a 'nine', engaged in the counterpart of the American game, is labeled: 'An outdoor life gives health and strength.' The second, showing a number of boys plunging into a stream for a cool-off swim after a turn in the steam bath glimpsed through an open door near the shore, is inscribed: 'By hardening myself, I avoid many diseases.'

"'During sleep the body is recuperated. Fresh air is essential during hours of sleep, too', is illustrated in the next poster which shows one of the potential athletes asleep in his bed near an open window. The next, labeled: 'Cleanliness and sunshine are our best allies against tuberculosis', shows a mother and little daughter engaged in household tasks. There is an interesting picture of a living room, with a porcelain stove at one end of the room, windows wide open to the sun and wind and a lovely view beyond.

"A 'do' and 'don't' poster and one listing the early symptoms of tuberculosis—persistent cough, fatigue slight fever, poor appetite and loss of weight—complete the set. The 'don't' picture shows a man in a crowded thoroughfare, coughing in another man's face. 'Do', shows a young woman at a table with a family group. She is coughing, too, but is covering her mouth, carefully, with her handkerchief. 'Don't' is labeled: 'A dangerous way of coughing.' 'Do' says: 'When coughing always put your handkerchief before your mouth.'"

DR. M'COMAS CARRIED TO BANQUET HONORING HIM FOR FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE IN GARRETT COUNTY

Physician Taken From Cumberland Hospital To Take Part In Annual Meeting Of Medical Society At Hotel

IS GIVEN SILVER PLATE

The same indomitable spirit which for half a century carried him from sickbed to sickbed over the mountains of Western Maryland last Friday night took Dr. Henry W. McComas to the annual banquet of the physicians of Allegany and Garrett counties at the Fort Cumberland Hotel in Cumberland.

Willing nurses helped the doctor from his bed at Memorial hospital and dressed him up in his tux for the grand occasion.

For it was a grand occasion, as Dr. McComas' colleagues paid tribute to him on the anniversary of his 50th year in the medical profession in Garrett county.

Praise Skill And Courage

And not only for the length of his service did they praise him, but also for the skill and courage which saved the lives of many a man, woman and child on prosperous farms or in mountain cabins.

Leaders of the profession told how the little doctor pioneered in kitchen-table surgery when there was no hospital in Oakland, no hope for the dying except in this country doctor's kit.

They told how he performed Caesarean sections to save the life of a mother and baby; or operated for appendicitis or rupture when there was not a minute to spare.

All this on a table top, with only the prayers of frightened relatives and the knowledge of his own skill to help him.

Platter Presented

Dr. McComas just blew his nose when they talked of his achievements. He blew his nose again when Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins presented him with a big silver platter with the names of all the members of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Association inscribed on it.

The doctor struggled to his feet after the presentation talk. Tears glistened beneath his spectacles. But he smiled—proud to know in what esteem he was held by his fellows.

And then, in a firm voice, he thanked them for the honor they had paid him—and dismissed lightly the feats they had attributed to him.

He concluded in his typical way with a joke—a good Irish joke which he told in a good Irish brogue. Its point was that a person should not take himself too seriously.

Same Old Doc

He was still the same old doc last Friday night, "It's just hunky-dory", he told the nurses as he was taken into the Fort Cumberland Hotel on a chair from his ambulance.

He laughed at his own frailty and told of the days when he rode as many as seven hours on horseback through a blizzard, for it was in blizzard weather that children sickened and that babies came.

Asked how many babies he had delivered in Garrett county, he chuckled and said, "all old doctors like to talk about that, but I won't.

"I've kept a record, but since I more or less had to specialize in that, you can be sure there were a lot of them."

Graduated in '88

It was on April 17, 1888, that young Dr. McComas came home to Oakland from the University of Maryland proudly bearing his doctor's degree.

Once at home, and he announced with fierce pride that he had always lived in Oakland, he stepped into the shoes of his father, J. Lee McComas, who was a physician before the Civil War and who also served 50 years in the profession.

The homage of his associates Friday night marked the culmination of his long career.

Asked if he expected to retire now, he answered, "I'll never be well again." On February 12 he will celebrate his seventy-third birthday.

Officers Elected

Officers of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Association were elected as follows: Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, Cumberland, president; Dr. W. C. Nedrow, Friendsville, vice-president; Dr. Knight Reynolds, Cumberland, secretary; Dr. Howard L. Tolson, Cumberland, treasurer; Dr. Frank M. Wilson, Cumberland, delegate to State convention; Dr. Thomas W. Koon, of Cumberland, censor. Dr. Frank M. Wilson was the retiring president of the association.

Dr. Thomas C. Cullen, professor of gynecology at Johns-Hopkins University, and a member of the Board of Trustees of the American Medical Association, was the principal speaker at the meeting. He advocated a mild form of socialized medicine but strongly opposed any interference by Federal or State governments. He proposed that the doctors share with the county the cost of medical service for those unable to pay for it. He pointed out that economic conditions in the past decade had made it increasingly difficult for men to earn their livelihood and that the medical profession had been forced to take cognizance of this situation in providing free treatment for previously paying patients. Any arrangement or system he left to county medical societies and county governing bodies to decide. Under any system worked out the patients must be able to be treated by a physician of his own choosing, he concluded.

Dr. Cullen paid tribute to Dr. McComas, who was also eulogized by Dr. A. H. Hawkins, Dr. Franklin and Dr. Wilson.

Described as a man of "magnificent attainments," Dr. McComas was praised for his "pioneer accomplishments in surgery" and his untiring devotion to his tasks.

BITTINGER

Life's so choked up with busy living,
Kindness so hid by fussy giving,
That Love slips by unseen.
I need a garden in my heart
Where Faith and I may go apart
To pause and be serene.

This week began with mild temperature and rain, making travel by any means very unpleasant.

The citizens of this community are very grateful to those in charge of the road system, for the attention they have given the roads in this section during the recent heavy snow fall. The main road was kept well open by the use of snow plows.

Miss Ruth Beitzell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Beitzell, of this village, is a patient at Memorial Hospital, in Cumberland, where she is recovering nicely from a recent operation performed in that institution.

Harvey Knox, who was injured some weeks ago by a falling tree limb, while engnged in cutting timber on the Ashby place, is recovering slowly from his injuries.

Mrs. Ira Durst, who has been ill for some months, is reported as being in a critical condition at this time.

Ralph Detrick, of Uniontown, spent the week-end at his home here.

MT. LAKE PARK

Anyone who has a "hankering" for real old-fashioned winter weather, could be satisfied in the last week. It's all very lovely except for two or three small matters, such as—that wind which howls so mockingly and those breath-taking blasts of icy air which insist upon crawling beneath our door.

We have named our neighborhood "Little America," and we even have a real crew on deck who have been doing their best to look after poor windows and orphans. They have dug and tunneled paths, carried coal and used small snow plows to help us all get around. In case you are interested, we and many others want to thank Jerry and "Dutch" Turney, Harold Johnson, Forrest Welling and his father, Wiley Welling and Bill Wilson. All of these have helped greatly during this snow siege. Two of the biggest words in the dictionary are "friends" and "neighbors." What do you think?

The Young Sportsmen's club members are busy people these winter days. Plowing through drifts to get to the game shelter and never missing a feed day. It has been a difficult time for the game. But in this community, at least, they are being well taken care of.

We are beginning to hear rumors of a coming town election—just little bubbles and sizzles, as it were. Might prove interesting, at that.

Well, if this sort of weather keeps up, we will just have to stop trying to round up news. No one seems to be doing anything or going anywhere—they just sit around and play the radio and Chinese checkers, which doesn't help much.

Personals

Mrs. Frank Murphy, who has been seriously ill for several days, is showing some improvement, though not able to leave her room.

Mrs. Will Dancer, of Piedmont, W. Va., who was the guest of Miss Helen Schooley for several days, returned to her home on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Schaefer entertained at a dinner party on Sunday evening at their home here Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Bosley, Edward and Kenneth Bosley, Lois and Shirley Bosley and Miss Anna Dilgard, all of Gormania, West Va.; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brown, Anne and Mary Brown.

Junior Bittinger continues to improve at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Bittinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brewer, Loch Lynn, are the parents of a son, born on Monday night.

Loraine Weeks, who is a student at the University of Maryland, is here to spend the mid-winter semester with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Weeks.

Mrs. A. E. Anderson, who has been on an extended visit with her son in McKeesport, Pa., has returned to her home here.

The new band room in the Mount Airy building is nearing completion, and the organization with its equipment expects to move shortly to its new quarters.

On Tuesday evening, February 7th, the regular monthly meeting of the W. O. W. organization will be held in the lodge room. This will be an unusually important meeting, inasmuch as a delegate will be named to attend the convention to be held in Elkins the latter part of April.

Mrs. Harry Mickey will be the hostess on Friday afternoon at the Ladies' Aid Hall, of the U. B. church, of that organization. It is hoped that a large number will attend.

Mrs. Harry Searls, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Turney, having arrived Wednesday afternoon.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

A Queer Way To Encourage

Washington, Jan. 26.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt purposely misleads the few conservative aides in his Administration and enjoys making them look foolish, or whether he means what he says at the time he says it and later yields to the pressure of the Left-Wing Liberals and his own inclinations, is a matter of opinion.

* * *

It is not possible to be certain about that but it is possible to be certain that once more he has followed definitely reassuring statements with an act completely upsetting to those who, apparently inspired by him, had forecast a White House policy of tolerance and encouragement toward business. From that standpoint his appointment of former Congressman Thomas R. Amlie, of Wisconsin, as Interstate Commerce Commissioner is indefensible and unexplainable.

* * *

Less than ten days ago Under Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes, supposed to know what he is talking about and believed by some in business circles to reflect White House views, publicly proclaimed the President's desire to encourage business and enthusiastically declared that from now on "the full energies of the Government will be applied to the invigoration of the processes of recovery." And then Mr. Roosevelt appoints to a great commission which deals with a sick industry whose rehabilitation is more vital to recovery than any other, as weird a radical as ever sat in the House of Representatives, a man who makes the La Follettes appear conservative and John L. Lewis look like a Tory, one against whom the Legislature of his State now makes formal protest on the ground that he is a "Red."

* * *

Though he comes from Wisconsin Senator La Follette not only did not indorse him, but says he was not consulted about his selection which, considering his long support of Mr. Roosevelt, is strange indeed. Last year Mr. Amlie, a candidate for the Senate, was defeated in the Wisconsin primaries, which makes him a "lame duck," but not a La Follette man. If there is anything in his whole career to qualify him for so important a post as Interstate Commerce Commissioner it has not been alvanced even by his friends. On Tuesday when at his press conference Mr. Roosevelt was asked what were his qualifications he became greatly irritated and denounced the question as "silly."

* * *

The best idea of Mr. Amlie's mind can be had from the extraordinary bill he introduced in the House proposing a constitutional amendment to be known as the "human rights" amendment. It would give Congress power to pass laws providing for Government ownership, management and operation of industry, business, manufacturing, commerce and banking. It also authorizel a direct capital levy, and provided for condemnation proceedings by the Government against manufacturing and industrial plants for the purpose of acquiring them. He is the proud author of other bills along similar lines and in the 1936 campaign was one of the leading advocates of the Tugwellian plan of a great political alliance between labor and the farmer with a view of putting business in its place.

* * *

Altogether he is the most extreme Left Winger Washington has seen in a long time and his selection as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission with its life and death power over the railroads, is so bad as to leave those with any trace of a sense of fitness genuinely aghast. Various reasons for his appointment are given. One is that Mr. Roosevelt personally likes him and is more or less in sympathy with the view embodied in the Amlie bills. Another is that, appreciative of Mr. Amlie's labor-farmer political efforts in his behalf, he feels that he is one of the lame ducks who must be cared for.

* * *

The one reason not advanced in any quarter is that by training, temperament, experience or ability he has any real qualifications for this position. A selection better calculated to convince business of continued Presidential hostility and general Administration unfriendliness could hardly have been made. It makes Mr. Hanes' eloquent statements about the "full energies" of the Government seem childishly naive and absurd. It makes the pleas of Mr. Averill Harriman and others of the Roper Advisory Business Men's Council for "cooperation" and "understanding" between business and the President appear feeble-minded.

* * *

How is business to cooperate with a President capable of making an appointment of this sort at this time to this commission? How can anyone understand a President who will inspire the Under Secretary of the Treasury to glowingly reassure business of his friendliness one week and the next week make an appointment so completely contradictory as to cause even his friends to shake their heads? This would seem nearly enough to dry up Mr. Hanes' optimism. While it goes beyond anything else, this is about the seventh time in six years that this type of Presidential action has followed the Hanes type of talk. Certainly any business man who hereafter takes seriously this balderdash about "cooperation" is too boobish to be at large.

PEANUTS

"LOOK, Fran — look at this!" And Nora Ramsey pointed to a column in the daily paper of a neighboring city.

The two girls were on the train, returning to college after a vacation, and the column referred to, edited by one "Mavis Beaumont," offered advice to all unfortunate wives whose husbands had some habit which was most distressing to their fair helpmeets.

Frances Clarke read the column, Nora reread it, and the two girls laughed at the letters, especially one which asked what to do with a husband who WOULD chew tobacco.

"Fran," said Nora, "do you suppose real people write those silly letters? Surely 'Mavis' herself must fill out the column. I say, Fran, let's write one and see if they'll print it, and what the fair Mavis advises."

"Let's!"—this from Fran; "and I know what'll be the matter with 'cur' husband. He'll have your trouble, Nora—an over-fondness for peanuts."

And the two girls, enjoying themselves immensely, set to work. Their letter, completed, read like this:

"My dear Miss Beaumont—I should be so glad of your advice, for my husband has a habit for which there seems no remedy. It is—peanuts! He eats them ALL the time—is never without a bag full (and in the shell, too). He embarrasses me dreadfully by offering them to all our guests—he eats them, anyway, even if they refuse—and he crunches the shells and nibbles away on the train, in stores or in the theater.

"If you could suggest some remedy, I should be everlastingly grateful."

"What shall we sign it?" asked Fran. "See, it says, 'No anonymous letters printed or answered.'"

The girls thought. "I know," said Fran. "'Mrs. George Wright,' and we'll put the address as 'General Delivery, Hopkinton.'" This was the name of the town next the college town to which the girls were going.

"And if there is a Mrs. George Wright in Hopkinton?" said Nora, and answered her own question: "What difference will it make? She'll know she didn't write it, and treat it as a joke."

The train neared the college station.

"Come on, we'll hop over to the post office now and mail it before going to campus," said Frances.

Two days later their letter appeared in the column, and after it Miss Beaumont's advice:

"My dear Mrs. G. W.—I am so sorry your husband has such an annoying habit. Have you ever tried filling the bag with bad peanuts?

"Let me know if this works, and believe me to be most sympathetic.

"Sincerely,

"M. B."

The printing of this letter, plus Miss Beaumont's answer, tickled the girls' sense of humor.

"You know, though," said Nora, "it's true—there's nothing worse than a bad peanut."

They thought themselves quite clever and told all their friends what they had done.

But three days later, imagine the dismay of Nora and Fran when in the "Matrimonial Difficulties" column appeared the following:

"Will the 'Mrs. G. W.' whose letter appeared in this column on Monday communicate with Miss Beaumont at once?"

But on looking at the Monday paper, which they had saved, they found theirs was the only letter signed "Mrs. G. W." The girls looked at each other. Why hadn't Miss Beaumont written to Hopkinton—or had she? What could she want? After debating these questions, they decided to wait a day and see if the request would be repeated.

Sure enough! The next day appeared the following: "Will the 'Mrs. G. W.,' whose letter appeared in this column on Monday, communicate in person with Miss Beaumont at once? Very urgent."

"Ye gods!" groaned Fran, "what shall we do? We'll have to go and 'fess up,' Nora."

"All right," said Nora. "I'm consumed with curiosity anyway.

So the next day, Nora and Fran stood outside the office of the Daily, trying to screw up their courage to go in.

"Come on," said Nora, finally.

"We who are about to die—" murmured Fran—and they walked in.

"Miss Beaumont," said Nora to the office boy.

"This way," said he, and led the girls to the far side of the large, busy room, where at a desk sat an attractive young woman of about 28.

"Two ladies to see you," announced the boy.

"How-do-you-do," said Miss Beaumont. "Two chairs, Jimmie, please." And when he had brought them: "Now, what can I do for you?"

"You are Miss Beaumont, who edits the Matrimonial Difficulties column?" asked Nora.

Miss Beaumont looked slightly embarrassed. "Yes, I am," she said.

"Well, Miss Beaumont, the truth is that we have a confession to make. We—"

"We are—" said Fran.

"Mrs. George Wright!" they finished together.

"What!" said Miss Beaumont. "You, Mrs. George Wright? You wrote that letter!" And she laughed and laughed. "Why, you monkeys, you. How did you happen to do that?" And when they had told her, she laughed again and said, "Now, listen to what you've got yourselves into." And she proceeded to tell them there did live in Hopkinton a Mrs. George Wright. Mrs. Wright's husband did not have the peanut habit, but her neighbor's husband, Mr. Reynolds, did. Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Reynolds had always been the best of friends, but Mrs. Reynolds had seen this letter and had jumped to the conclusions that Mrs. Wright had played a mean joke on her. Mrs. Reynolds was hurt and insulted and up in arms in defense of her husband. Mrs. Wright had come to the Daily office to find out who had used her name.

Fran and Nora were aghast. "Why, we never dreamed there was such a person. Never thought there was anybody with such a craving for peanuts, except Nora."

"I know," said Miss Beaumont. "Tom," she called to a man who was passing, chewing thoughtfully on the end of a pencil. She introduced him to the girls. "Tom," she said, "these are 'Mrs. G. W.'"

"What! Honest! How rich!" And Tom roared.

"Go along, Tom," said Miss Beaumont, and as he went off chuckling: "Tom and I are engaged," she explained, "and you girls helped in a way, for I couldn't make up my mind to marry a man who was forever chewing a pencil or a match or something, but after hearing of the peanut habit, I've decided to risk Tom."

"And now," she went on, "I think you'll have to go to Hopkinton and explain to those two women. Yes, really," as the two girls seemed about to protest. "It will convince them of your innocence and will be good for you, for you might have got into serious trouble."

She gave the girls the addresses of the two women and they resolved to go directly to Hopkinton.

Going out on the train, they decided that Nora, who had the love of peanuts, should go to see Mrs. Reynolds, while Frances went to see Mrs. Wright.

Fortunately, it worked out beautifully. Both women were eager for a reconciliation, and Mrs. Reynolds' sensitiveness for her husband's habit was appeased by Nora's admission of the same habit. "Only mine's worse, Mrs. Reynolds," she said. "I eat peanuts in bed!"

Fran and Nora had a good yarn to tell when they got back to their dormitory. When they were alone again, Fran said:

"What didy ou think of 'Tom,' Nora?"

"Oh, pretty good," yawned Nora. "Say, Fran, do you suppose Miss Beaumont will try putting pepper on his pencils?" And she laughed.

Psychologists Say Need For Pain Common Trait

Citing the story of the little Negro boy who said he liked to have his shins kicked because it felt so good when it stopped, Dr. Tracy J. Putnam considers pain in its psychologic and physiologic aspects in an article entitled "Pain," in Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

The need for pain is a common human trait. Psychologists point out that it has three main sources, probably not entirely distinct. One is that pain and pleasure are so closely mingled that one may be confused with the other, or they may even be indistinguishable.

The second source of a need for pain is a penance for misdeeds, real or fancied. A feeling of guilt or anxiety may be one of the heaviest burdens that life can inflict, and sometimes physical anguish is felt to mitigate it.

Finally, one person may use his own pain, consciously or unconsciously, to inflict remorse on or exact sympathy from another. As blindness or deformity is an asset to some beggars, so may suffering be pursued as a livelihood or an adjunct to one or as a means of power.

It is obvious to everyone, certainly to every doctor, that there are great differences between individuals in their susceptibility to pain. One man will complain more bitterly of a stone in his shoe than another will of a harrowing physical experience.

The capacity to endure pain also varies with attendant circumstances. The soldier in battle or the football player in a scrimmage may be unaware of a serious injury, while the same man may dread to have a tooth filled. It is also possible for some persons to train themselves not to notice pain.

From a biologic point of view, pain is essential to the conduct of the world as we know it. It is doubtful whether any species of animal could long survive unless each of its members was equipped with a mechanism to give a signal sufficiently distressing to mobilize all reserves to remove or escape from any danger threatening the integrity of the body.

DIED

MRS. CATHERINE YODER

Mrs. Catherine (Miller) Yoder, of Grantsville, died at the Hazel McGilbery hospital, Meyersdale, Pa., on Friday morning, January 27, at 4 o'clock. She had been in failing health for some time and on January 17 she suffered a stroke of paralysis. Her condition became critical and she was removed to Meyersdale.

Mrs. Yoder was born October 15, 1878, a daughter of Joel J. and Savilla (Beachy) Miller, natives of the Grantsville section. On October 6, 1898 she married Simon Yoder, who, with his son, Alva Yoder, operates a farm about one mile north of Grantsville.

In addition to her husband Mrs. Yoder is survived by eight children, Earl Yoder, Norfolk, Va.; Owen Yoder, Berlin, Pa.; Mrs. Enos Maust, of Salisbury, Pa.; Homer and Ivan Yoder, Springs, Pa.; Mark Yoder, Bittinger; Mrs. Simon Tice, near Grantsville; and Alva Yoder, at home; also three brothers, Jonas and Milton B. Miller, of Grantsville; and Alvin J. Miller, professor at Kenty State College, Kent, O.; and two sisters, Mrs. L. J. Schrock, Farmington, Del., and Mrs. H. F. Yoder, Grantsville.

At an early age Mrs. Yoder became a member of the Amish Mennonite church of Maple Glenn and was always a faithful and devout worker.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon from the Maple Glenn Amish church by Rev. Samuel Shetler, Johnstown, Pa., and Rev. Shem Peachy, Grantsville.

ALBERT "BERT" BARKER

Albert "Bert" Barker, 70, died suddenly about noon Wednesday, January 25, at the home of Julius Wilhelm, near Avilton. He had been working outside and as he came to the house he dropped dead upon the porch.

He had no permanent home but presumably came to that section from Berkeley Springs, W. Va. He worked as a carpenter at various places and for the past year had resided with the Wilhelms. It was thought the deceased had a brother residing near Berkeley Springs.

His remains were laid to rest in the Robeson cemetery with Rev. D. R. Carder, Grantsville, officiating. A brother, of Brunswick, Md., survives. He was in attendance at the funeral.

MRS. EZRA STVAGE

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church at Corinth for Mrs. Bertha Friend Savage, 56, who died Sunday at Hutton. She was the daughter of the late John W. and Mary E. Friend and her survivors are her husband, Ezra Savage, three daughters, Mrs. Loretta Carskadon, Cumberland; Mrs. Emaline Teets, Hutton; and Miss Cora Mae Savage and one son, Reuben Savage, at home; three sisters, Mrs. Zella Mellott, Hutton; Mrs. Daisy Savage, of McHenry; Mrs. Amanda Savage, of Friendsville; four brothers, Jerry and James Friend, Hutton; and George and Henry Friend, of Friendsville. Rev. J. F. Hockenberry conducted the services and interment was made in the William Ashby cemetery near The Pines.

THOSE TWO MEN AGAIN—

(From the Rotary Magazine)

The optimist and the pessimist, for all their anonymity, get together frequently—in anecdotes. The managing director of the stock exchange of Stockholm, Sweden, put them side by side recently in a story he credits to the English. "The optimist," he said, "sees a light where there isn't any, and the pessimist comes along and blows it out."

William Lyon Phelps, distinguished book critic, knows the strange pair, too. The pessimist, he explains, looks at a bottle of whatever you please and wails, "O, woe, it's half gone." The optimist, eying the same container, exults, "Great, it's still half full!"

Humorist Billy Van has been the "spark plug" at many a sales meeting. Sometimes, in such groups, he holds up a large map of the United States. On it, somewhere, is a black patch, small as a thumb nail. "Now, gentlemen," he asks, "what do you see on the map?" Almost to a man the answer is, "A black spot." But he counts the day saved when one or two of the salesmen reply instead, "A lot of clean white territory which is wide open for our product."

Currently popular and worth a wide audience is the story, its origin unknown, about two little girls who were frisking about in a strange garden. Soon one of them ran to her mother and said, "This garden's a bad place, Mother. I've been all around and every rosebush has sharp, long thorns on it."

Presently her small sister came skipping up the path and cried, "Mother, I love this place. I've been all around and every thorn tree has such pretty roses growing on it."

To try to add anything to these parables would be to risk seeming pompous—so these lines shall leave the reader—perhaps where they found him—picking as pleasant a path as possible between indefensible optimism and debilitating pessimism.

I SEE BY THE DAILIES THAT

Former Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland, was found dead in his bed Wednesday night at his home in Port Deposit, by his will leaves an estate of approximately $400,000. In his will he provides that his estranged wife, the former Princess Tatiana V. Dectereva, of Russia, should be paid the sum of $150 per month.

Governor O'Conor's power in the Maryland Legislature seems to be in danger, as the Senate Finance Committee may ditch part of program.

Felix Frankfurther, who came to this country from Austria when 12 years old, was sworn in as a member of the Supreme Court on Monday.

United States Senator William E. Borah, taken suddenly ill yesterday in the Capitol building, is in a critical condition in a Washington hospital.

Homemakers' Column

Edited by Miss Mildred Barton, Home Demonstration Agent, Oakland

MEAT INSPECTION

For almost 33 years the homemaker has been able to go to a butcher and ask for a cut of meat with a round purple stamp on it saying "U. S. Ins'd & P'S'D"—which simply means U. S. inspected and passed by the Department of Agriculture. This Federal meat inspection is required by law in every establishment that slaughters animals or processes meats and ships any part of its output across State lines. But there is no Federal supervision for farmers who slaughter their own animals on their own farms, nor for meat plants that sell all they produce "locally," that is, inside the boundaries of the same State. However, several states and many cities have their own inspection systems. If the homemaker asks her butcher for meat with this label and finds that the meat does not have it she may know that the meat was butchered locally—or within state boundaries.

Through 33 years the same little stamp has stood for exactly the same thing—a clean, and wholesome meat supply. But the methods of securing this "clean and wholesome" meat supply have changed to keep up with the times.

From the start a working place that was clean and easily kept clean, was regarded as one of the essentials. The requirements specify such necessities as generous quantities of hot water under pressure, plenty of well-located places to sterilize instruments, good drainage, efficient lighting, good ventilation and adequate facilities for conducting inspection and disposing of condemned products. These requirements are being changed constantly to keep pace with new developments. The requirements provide that certain machinery move only so fast and no faster. This restriction on speed is necessary to give inspectors sufficient time to examine each carcass thoroughly as it passes before them.

In the interest of greater cleanliness, stainless steel hooks, blades and other equipment are gradually replacing the older types of equipment, all of which require constant polishing to keep down the rust.

Thoroughness is the motto for every step of the inspection service. Experienced graduate veterinarians supervise examinations from the time the live animals are checked over before the slaughter. Any animal that is affected with any disease or condition which might cause condemnation in whole or in part is tagged with the words "U. S. Suspect" and held for separate slaughtering. At the time of and after the slaughter, qualified inspectors scrutinize all parts of the carcass and give special attention to parts in which the disease is most likely to make its first appearance. If there are any indications of disease or any objectionable conditions, the carcass is marked with a tag "U. S. Retained," and held for a more intensive study. In this, as in all examinations, the public gets the benefit of any doubt, and only meat that is "clean, wholesome and fit for human food" wins the purple stamp of approval. All condemned meat, parts as well as whole carcasses, are kept "under lock and key" until destroyed or made inedible.

Federal inspection of meats continues after slaughter, thru curing or processing, pickling or smoking, canning and processing, and even to the manner of shipping.

Everything that goes into canned or processed meat or meat food products—or into cans of food made up partly of meat, such as scrapple or chili con carne with beans—must be approved. The curing ingredients must be harmless; "smoke" must come from burning wood; spices must be pure; and all water used in the plant must pass a bacteriological test.

The meat-inspection service passes on labels as well as what goes into the package—the design as well as the wording. Misleading statements and pictures, as well as false claims, are ruled out. The label must tell exactly what is in the can or package. "Pure pork," for instance, must be nothing else, and if sausage contains the cereal or dried milk permitted by law, the label must tell this plainly.

The use of the round purple stamp is confined to such products as sausages, fresh, frozen and some cured meats. Sometimes the stamp design is burned into smoked meats. For products packed in boxes or in cans, the words of the stamp appear in full on the label "U. S. Inspected and Passed, by Department of Agriculture."

VOLUME 62. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, FEBRUARY 9, 1939. NUMBER 50.

RETURN OF SUPERVISION OF COUNTY ROADS SOUGHT

Bill Is Introduced In Legislature —Reapportionment Of Lateral Road Gas Tax Also Asked

SHARE BASED ON MILEAGE

Return of county road supervision to the counties and reapportionment of the one and one-half cent lateral road gasoline tax fund was proposed in the Legislature at Annapolis on Tuesday.

The measure, introduced by Senator J. Wilmer Cronin (D., Harford) would split the remaining balance of the lateral gas tax fund—after Baltimore City and state aviation tolls are paid —between the State Roads Commission and the counties.

Each county's share would be based on the ratio chare of the mileage of the county's road system to the entire State road system.

The State Road Commission's half of the fund would be used for new construction of farm-to-market and lateral highways on recommendations of the County Commissioners.

Each county's fund would be used for maintenance and reconstruction of existing roads, the bill proposed.

Cronin's measure recites that during the depression, counties were empowered by the 1933 Legislature to turn their road systems over to the State for maintenance and construction. Of the twenty-three counties, twenty of them availed themselves of the privilege, and today the State continues to maintain the county systems there.

Maintenance of county roads by the State has entailed excessive overhead costs and employes of the State roads system have been compelled to devote time to county road systems which should go to State highway work, Cronin said.

Claims Tax Diverted

It was also claimed that approximately one-half of the lateral gasoline tax fund has been diverted to State purposes other than highways under prior Administrations, so that the half-and-half apportionment under the proposed law will work no hardship now that the Administration has promised no further diversions of gas tax funds.

Bridges are defined as part of the lateral roads system under the Cronin proposal. The Roads Commission would be empowered to construct lateral road bridges from the half of the lateral gas fund which would be allotted to the Commission.

Governor O'Conor's revenue proposals has run into a flurry of criticism and Leon Abramson (D.-4th Baltimore) announced he would propose amendments to give added exemptions to small investors dependent on investment incomes for livelihood.

Abramson said "a group" of delegates felt the O'Conor budget-balancing proposals worked an unfair hardship on widows and elderly folk whose sole support is a small income from investments.

Earned incomes of single persons are exempt up to $1,000, but a $1,000 income from investments would be taxed two and one-half per cent under the Administration income tax proposal. Over $1,000, two and one-half per cent.

Abramson pointed to a concrete example. A widow with $1,200 income would pay $37 tax, while a young man, making $1,200 would pay only $5.00.

"This seems manifestly unfair to me," Abramson said, "it costs just as much for one to live as the other, and I feel that the revenue plan should be amended to exempt up to the first $1,000 of investment income where it is the sole income of the individual."

In an effort to side-track bitter controversy on the floor State Senator Dudly G. Roe, administration leader in the upper House, has called upon all groups interested in conservation measures to attempt to arrive at a "meeting of minds". There are three conservation bills now before the legislators, and Senator Roe asserted that each contained "some good".

FARMERS GETTING CHECKS FOR CONSERVATION WORK

First Lot of Vouchers Received by County Agent Yesterday

The payments representing the government's share in carrying out conservation practices on farms in Garrett County are now being distributed to farmers. The first lot of checks were received at the County Agent's office Wednesday and personal notices have been mailed to parties to whom the checks are issued. This lot of checks is the first to be received of the 1200 applicants who will receive some payment. From $50,000 to $60,000 will come to Garrett County for payment to farmers in carrying out conservation practices recognized by the state and federal government.

It is important that farmers who have made application for payment not call at the office until they are notified by card or letter that their check has been received, John H. Carter, County agent, stated. All farmers are notified immediately upon receipt of his or her check at the County agent's office.

Checks are coming in a month or so earlier than last year. A total of 412 checks have been received to date amounting to $16,345.33.

CITIZENS OF ACCIDENT SEEK ADDITION TO SCHOOL

83 Persons Appear Before County Commissioners; Attorney Renninger Resigns

One of the largest delegations appearing before the County Commissioners in many months, was one from Accident this week, when 83 individuals met the Board in the courtroom on Tuesday evening and requested funds for the construction of an addition to the Accident school building.

The needs of that community for this additional space to the High school were outlined by several of the members of the delegation hut no decision was made by the Commissioners intimating that any funds would be provided. It was asserted that the only way adequate schools could be provided would be by means of a bond issue.

At the regular meeting of the Board this week there were also several delegations wanting repairs to various roads.

Attorney Resigns

Julius C. Renninger, Jr., appointed recently as attorney to the Board, tendered his resignation on Tuesday afternoon. The Commissioners did not announce any new appointment to fill the vacancy.

W. G. Meyers, clerk to the Board, announced that no bills had been paid at this session and no orders drawn except one for $3,700 to the Welfare Board to care for various agencies during February.

Before the Welfare Board can dispense any State funds for relief work, Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary, stated that the county had to furnish one-sixth of the funds for old age pensions, $168 monthly for aid to dependent children, one-half of the funds for the blind and 20 percent of the administration costs, all of which amounted to about $3,700 monthly.

Miss Miller stated this morning she had received the county order, drawn on the 1939 levy, but stated, it was improbable that she would be able to cash the order as there was no money available yet on 1939 taxes.

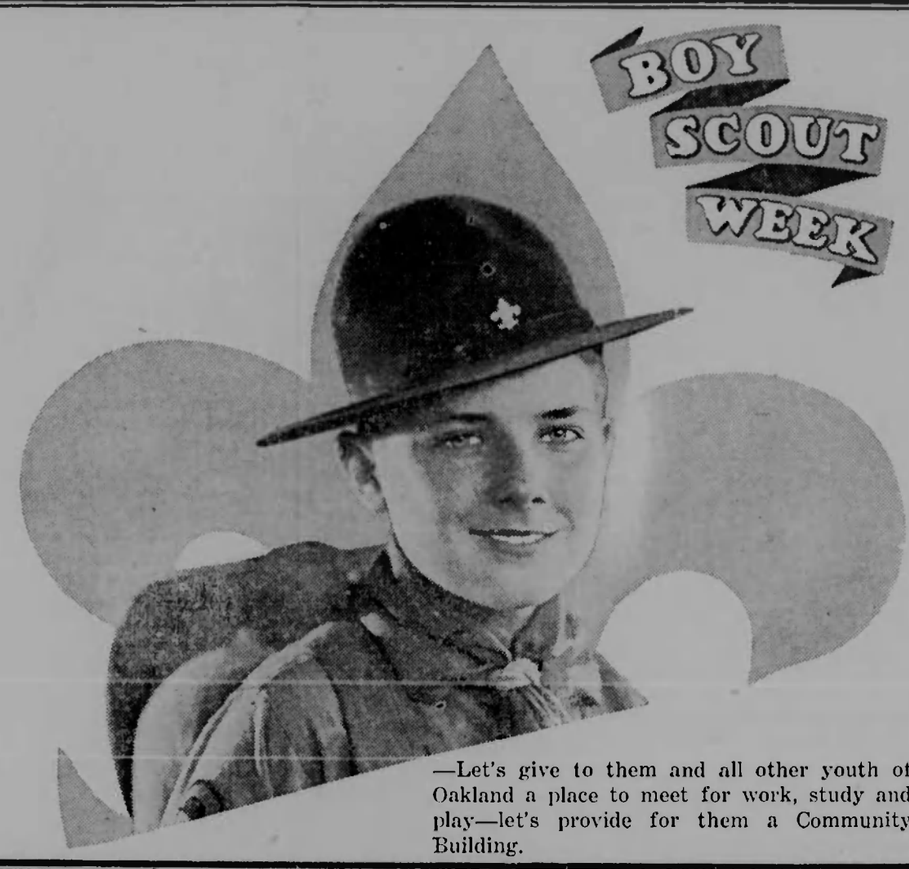
Until the actual money is available the welfare board will be unable to issue any checks, according to state and federal laws.

The Past Week Has Given Mild Weather

Garrett county people were awaiting calmly today the arrival of below-zero weather which is said to be sweeping eastward from the northwest. With weather the way it has been the past week, some were finding it hard to realize that any such sudden change would come today or even tomorrow.

Although it snowed occasionally during the past week, for the most part the thermometer has been standing above the freezing mark, with much rain, except on Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday, which were clear and warm. The danger of flood last Friday was averted when it became colder toward evening and snowed during Friday night.

The predicted cold wave, said to be enroute here brought sub-zero weather to nine states with an official low of 38 below zero in North Dakota.



—Let's give to them and all other youth of Oakland a place to meet for work, study and play—let's provide for them a Community Building.

SCOUT ANNIVERSARY WEEK IS BEING OBSERVED HERE

Oakland Troop No. 1 To Have Father And Son Dinner On Friday

Responding to the theme" Scouting Carries on American Ideals" more than a million and a quarter Scouts and Scouters (adult leaders) yesterday began a series of activities in celebration of Boy Scout Week, February 8 to 14, marking the 29th birthday of the Boy Scouts of American, first incorporated in the District of Columbia on February 9, 1910, and later granted a Federal Charter by Congress. Since the earliest Scouts were enrolled a total of 8,400,000 boys and men have been members of the Boy Scout Movement in this country and have participated in its constructive program of participating citizenship activities, of which the current plans are typical. Oakland troop No. 1, has been active since October, 1924; and Oakland troop No. 2, was organized about two years ago.

The Scout birthday yesterday, according to Scout tradition, was the time when former and active Scouts and Scoutmasters were expected to re-pledge themselves to the Scout promise, in their own homes or in their troops and patrols, as a demonstration of the way Scouting and Cubbing both seek to supplement and support the influence of the American home.

Each day throughout anniversary week is a special day. Today emphasizes citizenship; Friday is Scout Brotherhood day. On Saturday, various troops will carry out useful projects illustrating that "a Scout is helpful." Sunday is church day, with Monday, Scout dedication day, and Tuesday, the final days, being devoted to events showing scouting's contributions to American life as a leisure-time program.

Father-Son Dinner

Oakland Troop No. 1 has planned a father and son dinner for Friday evening, February 10, which will be held at 6:30 in the Lutheran church basement. All dads of scouts are expected to accompany their boy to this meeting. Members of the troop committee will be present, and H. C. Riggs, the scoutmaster, and Bernard I. Gonder, Jr., assistant scoutmaster, have arranged a program of first aid, knot tying and signaling demonstrations.

The troop will also worship in a body on Sunday at the Episcopal Parish House when Rev. D. C. Trimble will preach. The scouts are expected to assemble at the scout hall at 10:30 o'clock.

School Child Swallows Pin

James Towler, Jr., aged eight years, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Towler, Sr., upon his arrival home yesterday from school told his mother that he had swallowed a straight pin while seated at his derk in the school room. He apparently was none the worse as a result, but Mrs. Towler had an ex-ray picture made which disclosed nothing as to the whereabouts of the pin, and James is in school today as usual, with no complaints.

MORE FALSE CLAIMS IN TAX REFUND DISCOVERED

At Least Fifteen Additional Claims Uncovered This Week In Office Of State Comptroller

STATE'S LOSS ABOUT $1100

At least fifteen additional false claims by which refunds from the tax on motor vehicle fuel were received by three Garrett county youths, were discovered this week, Neil C. Fraley, Garrett county State's Attorney, said yesterday, which adds another $500 to the loss which the State of Maryland has sustained through various payments to these young men within the past eight months.

Mr. Fraley said these additional false claims were uncovered in the office of the Comptroller, following a search of the records in that office and that Dael Harding, Blaine Miller and Robert Rush had not denied their guilt in regard to them.

Last Wednesday Mr. Fraley said that Rush had confessed to participating in at least fifteen instances of filing claims against the State for tax refunds and that Harding and Miller had admitted "knowing about them."

The disclosure at this time brings the total to about thirty false claims, involving practically $1100. The Maryland law authorizes a refund of four cents per gallon on gasoline used for airplanes, farm machinery, etc.

Some of the claims were filed as far back as May, 1938, and since that time checks for these claims had been sent to the three persons alleged to be involved in the offense, and to fictitious persons at McHenry, Accident, Grantsville and Friendsville. Mail for these fictitious individuals, carrying the checks from the Comptroller's office was obtained from the postoffices as set out above from time to time.

Mr. Fraley stated that although there are other persons suspected as being connected with the "racket", an entirely new one there had been no additional arrests made.

Knights Of Pythias Celebration To Mark 50th Anniversary

At a meeting of a special committee Tuesday night plans were completed for a luncheon commemorating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the local Knights of Pythias lodge. The celebration will be held on Friday evening, February 17, in Castle Hall, Third street. Upwards of 300 persons are expected to be present.

Members of the lodge, their wives and widows of deceased members are invited to attend.

E. Ray Jones will be the principal speaker. There will be presentations of jewels to 25-year members, group singing, an orchestra, vocal selections by Arthur Martini, and other features on the program. The committee is planning to award a door prize and favors to the ladies.

MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL HAVE TWO-NIGHT SESSION

Proposed Legislation Approved; Surplus In Treasury Reported

Several more proposed Legislative measures affecting the town of Oakland were approved at a meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and these were ordered put in shape for presenting to the Legislature at Annapolis for possible enactment. The measures have to do with the following:

Providing for a registration of voters for city elections;

Providing for the filing as a candidate for a city office, thus eliminating the present method of holding a citizens' meeting or "primary";

Giving the Town Council the right of naming city appointees and also giving the mayor of the town the right to vote on matters brought before Council;

Directing that the County Commissioners levy one per cent of the taxable basis of Oakland property owners for maintenance of the streets and alleys of the town.

Current Bills Paid

Bills amounting to $1,260 for January were ordered paid. Arthur Lawton, city clerk, made a report to Council showing that $3,446.52 had been collected during the month, which is a slow month, usually, for collections, and that after paying all monthly bills there was a balance of more than $1,400 in the bank.

Sources of Revenue

Water collections for the month totaled $1,579.62; 1936 taxes $250.60; 1937 taxes $549.45; 1938 taxes $871.87.

Z. M. Huitt, certified public accountant, of Cumberland, who was engaged to make an audit of the books prior to the annual financial statement, submitted a preliminary report to Council. His completed report will be made and published prior to the annual municipal election.

Clerks and judges for the special and regular election were named as follows: Miss Margaret Lawton and Miss Mary Emily Butt, clerks; George D. White, Percy Frantz and Ernest Townshend, Sr., judges.

Council was in session both Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Welfare Board Grants Aid To Children and Pensioners

Nine old age assistance applications and six aid to dependent children applications were granted at the regular meeting of the Garrett County Welfare Board, held Monday exening, according to Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary.

Miss Miller also reported that during January 371 old age assistance cases had received $6,300.99; 317 children had received $3,308.80, and nine blind persons had received $169.80. Seventy-four general public assistance cases received $816.70.

Surplus commodities, including food and clothing, were distributed to 678 families. The distribution of these commodities, Miss Miller stated, had increased greatly the work of the local office during the past month.

CITIZENS TAKING SIDES ON BOND ISSUE ELECTION

Some Fear Tax Rise, Although Mayor And Council Members Say It Won't Be Necessary

ELECTION IS TOMORROW

As the town of Oakland prepared for the special municipal election tomorrow, Friday, February 10, on the question of whether or not the municipality would be empowered to issue bonds for funds to be used in the construction of a Community building, its citizens began to awaken to the seriousness of the occasion and opinion seemed to be divided as to just what the outcome would be.

The only serious objection raised, according to a number of citizens who were interviewed, was that of an increase in taxes, while Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley and several members of the council who were also seen, stated that there would be no cause for tax increase and that the building could be obtained at no extra expense to the taxpayers of the town.

Emroy Bolden, member of both the town council and the Fire department, stated: "The Council has done all in its power to attempt to give the people a Community building, but it is not a project for the council alone, it is a community project. There is no doubt but that the firemen will be glad to help in obtaining funds to pay off the indebtedness of the bonds."

Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley said, "By pursuing an economical course, which the town is doing, there will be no need for an increase in the taxes. Edwin Frye, owner of a limestone quarry at Deep Creek, told me today that he would be glad to donate all the stone needed for the construction. This building is something the town needs and should have."

Said Edward Shaffer: "We are going to need a fire house anyway before long which would cost the town something like $10,000 to $12,000, and this is our opportunity to secure a community building which would not only take care of the fire company but furnish suitable quarters for local organizations and provide a gymnasium for the young people, a place for conventions, dinners, dances, etc."

Although there were a number who were skeptical of the statements that the bond issue would not raise the tax rate, they were unwilling to be quoted as being actually against the community building. It was their opinion it was not necessary.

Irvin R. Rudy and Delbert M. Davis stated they were heartily in favor of having the community building.

The special election is to decide whether the town is empowered to issue bonds amounting to $25,000 to obtain funds to pay their share of a WPA project for a community building, costing $75,000. The WPA project has already been approved whereby the federal government will provide $51,000, leaving $23,200 for the town.

The bill providing for the bond issue, with referendum, was introduced in the House of Delegates, passed, and last Thursday passed the Senate under a suspension of rules.

Governor O'Conor announced he had signed the bill yesterday.

Frank Westlake Dies In Hospital Of Pneumonia

Frank Westlake, 77, who was taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, on January 27, suffering from an attack of pneumonia, died in the institution at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

His body was brought to the Bolden Funeral home here this morning. Funeral arrangements are incomplete, pending word from a sister, who resides in New Philadelphia, Ohio.

At the time Westlake was taken ill he was being held in the Garrett County Jail on a charge of arson in connection with the burning of his home in East Oakland on September 24, 1937. He had denied having had any connection with the perpetration of the crime.

Sugar Producers Are Tapping Their Maple Trees

Due to the seasonal weather of the past week, farmers coming to Oakland yesterday said that maple sugar trees were already being tapped in some areas of the county, thus getting a good start on the maple syrup and sugar season.

Many of the producers, however, will not do any work toward tapping their trees or opening their camps for one or two weeks hence.

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

PETER HEALS A LAME MAN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3:1 10; 4:8 12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I to thee.—Acts 3:6.

Is Christianity on trial? Answers would differ, depending on varying points of view. Assuredly Christ is not on trial. He is the Son of God and the only Saviour of men, and we are "on trial" as to our attitude toward Him. It is also certain that the true Christian faith is not on trial. Even the liberal and so-called modernistic leaders confess that it is the only faith that has proved itself in the crucible of daily experience.

There is a sense, however, in which Christianity as a whole is on trial. The Church which professes to represent Christ on earth has failed most miserably at so many points that the world is looking at it with the same cold suspicion with which the Church was viewed in the time of Peter. The question which one can feel on every hand even though it is not asked in words, is, "What have you that will meet the unprecedented need of the individual—the social order—the whole of humanity?" There is a sufficient and a satisfying answer, but it is not found so much in the temporal realm as in the spiritual. We have something to offer that is better than silver or gold—the salvation which is found in none other than Jesus Christ, our Lord.

I. Better Than Silver and Gold (3: 1-8).

The lame man had long since abandoned hope of anything more than the coins that he could beg as he sat at the temple gate. He is typical of our hardened and cynical age which is interested only in what it can get in cash, and in what that money will buy. Even Christian people seem to have forgotten that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (Luke 12:15).

God has for us things far better than silver and gold—deliverance from the power and penalty of sin, glad liberation from the limitations of spirit which hold us down and make us content with the paltry alms of men. Where are these things to be found? In Christ. How are they ministered? Through His faithful servants. Peter and John were the kind of men who, though busy, had time to pray (v. 1). If you know men or women like that, cultivate their friendship, look intently to them in faith (vv. 4, 5), receive their help (v. 7), and above all, believe in their Christ (v. 6), and you will receive that which is better than silver and gold.

God healed this man's body, but what is more important, He healed his spirit (v. 8). We need that kind of healing for the spiritual cripples of our day. The weak-kneed, lame-ankled, and spirit-darkened individuals in our churches and communities need the touch of God. Perhaps you may be used to bring them His message of deliverance and power.

II. Wonder and Amazement (3: 9, 10).

It has been suggested that one of the weak points in the ministry of the modern church is the lack of such miraculous deliverances from sin as those which caused the unbelievers of a generation or two ago to look with wonder on the ministry of the Word. After all there is no testimony just like that of a redeemed and transformed life. Men may argue with our philosophy, question our theology, but a redeemed life is a walking testimony in a community that no scoffer can refute.

There are two reactions recorded in the context of our lesson which reveal the possible attitudes of men toward such experiences. Some were amazed and believed in Christ. (4:4). Others hated the cause of Christ (4:16, 17) and they cast the preachers into prison (4:1-3). Did this discourage them? No, indeed. They knew that they owed allegiance to God rather than man (4:19, 20), and consequently used their very trial as an opportunity to proclaim

III. The Pre-eminent Saviour (4: 8-12).

Note here again that the speaker was a Spirit-filled man. That is the absolute prerequisite to effective proclamation of the truth. Observe also the care with which Peter makes known that he and John are to have no personal credit or glory. They "have something there" that might well be applied to present-day religious activity when many men must either have all the glory, or go off and start a new work where they can have it.

Let us make much of the clear teaching concerning the person and work of Christ which is found in these verses, particularly stressing His place of absolute pre-eminence as the one and only, and, at the same time, the all-sufficient Saviour of mankind. Let us not forget that "there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (v. 12).

DRIED FRUITS

At this time of year dried fruits can and usually do play an important part in the diet. They are excellent foods containing many of the necessary minerals and vitamins for growth and development of the body. Apricots, dates and prunes are very rich in iron; figs in calcium, and figs and dates in vitamin A.

Dried fruits offer a great many possibilities other than just cooking.

Norwegian Prune Pudding

One-half pound prunes (22 prunes), 2 cups cold water, 1 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 inch piece stick cinnamon, 1 1-3 cups boiling water, 1-3 cup cornstarch, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Pick over and wash prunes, then soak one hour in cold water and boil until soft in same water, or use 1 cup stewed prunes, pitted, and 1-4 cup juice. Obtain meat from stnoes and add to prunes and juice. Dilute cornstareh with enough cold water to pour easily, add to prune mixture and stir constantly while cooking 5 minutes. Remove cinnamon, add lemon juice, mold, chill and serve with cream.

Date And Nut Torte

Four egg yolks, beaten slightly; cup sugar, 1-4 cup cracker crumbs, teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 cup walnuts, cut in small pieces; 1 cup pitted dates, 4 egg white, beaten stiff.

Mix in order given. Blend thoroughly, folding in egg whites last. Bake 30 minutes in slow oven of 300 degrees F.

Apricot Scrolls

To prepare, wash 1-2 pound of dried apricots and soak them in 1-4 to 1-2 cup of warm water, depending on the dryness of the fruit. Stir freqently until the water is absorbed and the fruit somewhat soft. Press the apricots through a colander or course sieve. Add a little salt to the pulp and then spread with a spatula into a thin sheet on wax paper. Make square corners if possible and spread very thin.

MT. LAKE PARK

"For tho' from out our bourne of time and place
The flood may bear me far—
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have cross'd the bar."
—Tennyson.

On Tuesday afternoon another of Mountain Lake Park's "old guard" was laid to rest—Mrs. Rachel Laughlin. Having known and been friends for many years with her we have no doubt but that she did meet her Pilot "face to face," and that the meeting was a joyous one.

It seems to us a most futile thing that all we can do is to write of the deaths of those who have meant so much to the community, and that we cannot say all the beautiful thoughts we have for them, but we do know that there will be a great many in the Park thinking of and missing her presence. She was so much a part of our life here. To the young folks who were fond of Mrs. Laughlin, and there were many, her passing will fade, but to the older generation and those of her own age it brings sadness and a realization that their time will soon come to cross that bar. We think that she would wish that there be no sadness of farewell when she embarked for that distant land.

Mickey's Band In New Quarters

The new quarters being made for the Mickey Band will be ready by Friday night. The patrons and parents and all interested wish to thank all those who have helped to make this move possible. They are very proud of the new hall and an invitation is extended to any persons who care to visit them on Tuesday and Friday nights. If you go and hear and see the splendid things they are accomplishing you will be as enthusiastic as Mountain Lake and Loch Lynn are. Besides their band they now rate a number one orchestra. Don't forget they are in the Rathbun building, second floor.

Long about this time of the year the Park seethes with ideas and plans. Must be spring coming on. Anyhow, it is noticeable about this time. We hear all sorts of things from all sorts of places. But we did hear some really good things last Sunday. Just now we are not at liberty to say what. But maybe that jinx we spoke of can be gotten rid of. There is so much that could be done here to help if only the people would waken up. Why blame your town officials when the people do not try to cooperate? If you do not want to do that, then for goodnesssake do some constructive criticism and if you cannot do that then do a little "cussin' ". Anything is better than this "apathy" we are in. If you do not like the way things are run then stop talking it on the corners and in the stores. Go to a council meeting and tell your grievances, but quit growling if you aren't going to do anythings else.

COMMUNITY BUILDING IS MUCH NEEDED—

An adequate community building is within reach of the citizens of Oakland, if they so wish it. They may have it by voting favorably at the special election tomorrow, which will authorize the town to issue bonds to obtain the money for its share of the expense of such building.

If the citizens permit this opportunity to slip by, there will not be a like opportunity to have a community building again for many years, perhaps never, and many people fully realize that such a building is needed.

Parents should realize what a community building will do for the youth of the community.

Those connected with civic organizations should realize what a community building would do for them.

Other citizens should realize what benefit it would bring the town.

A community building would make available many forms of recreation for the youth: basketball, roller skating, ping pong and many other indoor games. It would be available for many, not just a few.

It would afford civic organizations a place to meet and conduct civic affairs, plays, mass meetings, etc. It would have given the Knights of Pythias ample space for their anniversary celebration.

For the community it would give an appropriate meeting place for conventions that would be glad to come to Oakland, if there was an auditorium large enough to accommodate the delegates in their business sessions. This would also add to Oakland's popularity as a place for summer gatherings.

It would properly house the Fire Department, which is so vital in affecting insurance rates on all property in Oakland.

A community building could be of good to every person in the town who wants to receive any benefit from it.

Every individual knows of other things for which a community building would be of inestimable value.

Every voter should realize what it is going to cost each individual taxpayer. The building will cost about $75,000, of which the Federal Government will furnish $51,000, according to a WPA project, already approved. This leaves about $23,000 for the town to furnish.

Some members of the Fire Department have stated they will help to raise money to pay such bonds as would be issued, so that in the event the voters are favorable in tomorrow's balloting, the result is not anticipated to cost the local taxpayers anything additional.

The Fire Department receives annually $1,500 from the town treasury and $800 from the county, and it is planned to use these amounts in repaying the debt. The present community building, it is thought, could be sold for at least $5,000, thus reducing the indebtedness 20 per cent.

Therefore, from the appearance of present plans, and there is no reason to believe that present plans will be altered, a community building is available at no increase in municipal taxes.

Here is one instance of a large Federal grant that does not bog down the sponsor with additional debt, and it is the belief of The Republican that we should take advantage of it while the offer is available.

It is the town's one chance in a hundred to get a community center which is so greatly needed for public purposes.

The public should not let this opportunity slip through their fingers.

BOY SCOUT WEEK—

This, as many informed folk know already, is Boy Scout Week, celebrating the 29th birthday of the Boy Scouts of America, a movement that has already appealed to 8,400,000 American men and boys.

Such success as the Boy Scout scheme has had is due chiefly, aside from its inherent imaginative appeal for boys, to the fact that thousands of devoted men have given time and money—but chiefly time—quite unselfishly in order that the boys who became Scouts might have the advantage of their counsel and experience. No similar social agency in the history of the world has ever engaged so many men as volunteers and their willingness and desire to be of some use is a tribute to the sort of unselfishness which is a component of the essential American character.

These Scout leaders have not given in vain, for there is ample evidence that the Boy Scouts of America have become among those consistently active in carrying out the service motive in our national life. This has always been amply demonstrated in times of emergency and is likewise to be discovered in ordinary days by many signs. Not the least of them is the fact that many, in fact, most of those becoming Boy Scout leaders in the past several years have previously been Scouts and are seizing upon that way of repaying the debt due their own scoutmasters. This is significant evidence that the Scout creed of helpfulness to others is a working doctrine.

Sign Your Name

Frequently we get communications from people requesting us to print them in the columns of The Republican.

It has been a rule for years that communications must be signed. The signature is not used when the writer does not desire it, but it is a safeguard to The Republican, to show the sincerity of the writer, and to guard against false information getting into the paper through anonymous sources.

Such a letter came last Saturday about the CCC, requesting that a poem be published. The letter was signed a taxpayer and a good American citizen. If he is a good American citizen he will write The Republican and give us his name, and from what newspaper he obtained the poem.

Auto Deaths

The first month of the year showed ten less deaths from traffic accidents than the corresponding period of 1938. There were twenty-six deaths during January this year.

Figuratively speaking this is encouraging. During 1938 there was a decrease over the previous year, so that it looks like motorists are becoming more conscious of the danger in driving and are really becoming more careful and considerate of others on the highways.

Garrett County Submerged?

As the result of some long range planning by the Federal Government, United States army engineers were in this county this week making numerous surveys of the terrain along the Youghiogheny and Potomac Rivers.

Although their exact purpose is not announced, it is common talk where these engineers come in contact with local people, that they are making surveys for a giant flood control project of the Government.

It is said that the plan at Kitzmiller calls for cutting off a portion of the town, including twenty homes, the school building, bank building and the town's theatre. Along the Youghiogheny River they would eliminate the town of Friendsville altogether, and carry over into Pennsylvania, putting Somerfield and Confluence under water, the latter, by some sixty feet. They have also surveyed along the Casselman River, and there's no telling what might be eliminated in that particular section of the county.

If such plans ever come to pass, more of Garrett county would be under water than would be out of it, and in our opinion the longer this long-range planning takes, the better it will be for Garrett county. We will admit that floods are a menace to thousands of people along the Ohio and Potomac basins.

But why dosen't somebody start long-range planning for reforestation along the river drainage basins? Plant enough trees and they will stop these devastating floods.

A Correspondent Registers His Protest Against Further Indebtedness Incurred By The Town of Oakland.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Sir: On Friday, February 10, the voters of this town will have the opportunity to register their approval or disapproval of a proposal to increase the town's indebtedness, and consequently, to increase our taxes. Taxpayers certainly should give this matter mature consideration before consenting to increase our financial burden at this time to the proposed extent.

At present we are endeavoring to pay off a bond bill, and when the recent payment on the same fell due, it became necessary for the Council to go out and borrow the money to pay this bond and interest.

If we cannot take care of our present indebtedness with our current revenue, how can we take care of $40,000 additional? The interest alone on this proposed bond issue would, at 4%, amount to $1200, to say nothing of the additional expense of upkeep.

The only way to meet this, of course, is by additional taxation, and heavy taxation at that. Don't you think we are paying all the taxes we can afford? For a town of this size, we have a City Hall which is entirely adequate. The Fire Department is well housed in a central location. I am informed that the floor needs additional support to bear the weight of the trucks, but that would entail little expense.

The Mayor and Council have ample and comfortable quarters for the transaction of all necessary business of the town, and there is a large assembly room on the second floor. Why, then, go to useless expense at this time?

TAXPAYER.

Doesn't Want Bounty

To the Editor of The Republican:—Dear Sir:

It is a question of who wants a bounty on fur-bearing animals? It seems to me any man who takes time to think would not want to pay to destroy the fur that helps to clothe our children. It may be O.K. to place a bounty on snakes that destroy our fish, but how foolish to pay to destroy things that are useful, things that are a big asset to our county. Would it not be more wise to have a closed season on fur-bearing animals, get away from the destroying spirit, and get back to the protecting spirit. Then our county will grow and not decay.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, Feb. 8. 1939.

With one-third of the legislative session gone, and all major legislation still pending, members of the General Assembly are back in Annapolis where they have adopted a five-day-week schedule.

Object of this schedule—unprecedented, if actually adhered to—is the passage of some major bills before the closing days of the session. Heretofore the Assembly has always dallied until the last few days, so that much important legislation was caught in the traditional closing jam.

Still pending before the Assembly are:—

The Administration reorganization measures;

The special taxation pragrom designed to raise $17,000,000 during the biennium;

The budget;

Conservation.

The only bill affecting Garrett county directly is the new tax bill which has been introduced by Senator Clifford Friend. The bill requires the County Commissioners to fix the rate of county taxation on or before the fifteenth day of January, instead of the first day of February as in the present law. It also makes all county taxes due and payable on the first day of February, instead of April, and taxes shall be overdue and in arrears on the first day of the succeeding November instead of October. A discount of three per cent will be allowed on all taxes paid during the months of February and March and on all taxes paid before May 31st a discount of two per cent, while those paid during June and July will receive a discount of one per cent. This bill is apparently favored by all members of the county delegation and the prediction is made that it will pass after several minor changes all of which will give the taxpayer a break, have been made.

Several bills concerning the town of Oakland will be introduced in the near future and the bill dealing with local elections will be passed at an early date.

I understand that Governor O'Conor has taken an interest in the affairs of the office of the County Commissioners of Garrett county.

Don't be surprised if the Governor takes an active interest in the affairs of the county. Failure to provide funds for schools under construction and a definite amount for debt service might be more serious than most Garrett countians think. The political front in Oakland will probably be more interesting during the next few weeks than the scene at Annapolis, but we will stick to our guns and let Scoop cover the home battles.

During the week-end recess of the Legislature, Governor O'Conor announced three important appointments. John E. Semmes succeeds Chas. Delmar on the board of regents of the University of Maryland, while Dr. M. C. Pincoffs takes the place of the late Dr. Joseph I. France on the State Board of Health. Joseph Sherbow, a close adviser to the Governor during his campaign and one of his strategists, was selected to be People's Counsel to the Public Service Commission.

Last minute flashes from the Senate:

Favorable action was recorded today by the State Senate on a proposal to amend the Constitution and eliminate the Clerk of the Court of Appeals from the list of elective offices of the State.

A resolution urging an additional budget appropriation of $15,000 to provide representation for Maryland at the New York World Fair was also adopted by the Senate.

Let's get in on the ground floor, Garrett county, and those of you who are interested in advertising our beautiful domain. What section of Maryland could be better publicized than ours?

ROAD DEFICIT IN TEN COUNTIES IS REVEALED

Garrett Has Shortage In Lateral Road Fund of $9,586

Ten of Maryland's twenty-three counties, including Garrett county, ended the year with deficits in their lateral road fund accounts, according to a statment issued by William A. Codd, auditor of the State Roads Commission.

The entire deficit was $149,111 for the ten counties, and $9,586 was charged against Garrett county. Baltimore City had a credit balance of $70,091 in its account, which is used for maintenance and debt service. The other thirteen counties' total credit balance was $255,051.

The counties had a total of $515,000 in their construction fund accounts as of December 31. Contracts already awarded in the counties but for which no funds have been allocated will require the expenditure of $296,345.

On the assumption the counties would spend this year the same amount of money they did last year for maintenance and debt service, these incumbrances on the lateral road funds would total $1,486,790, leaving a total deficit of $1,381,178. However, after anticipated revenues of $1,491,679 are added to the accounts, seven of the counties would be left with deficits totaling $173,764 at the end of the fiscal year. On this basis Garrett county would have a surplus of $778 on September 30, 1939.

To Attend Conference

County Agent John H. Carter will go to Hagerstown next Wednesday to attend a regional meeting of county agents of the western section of the State. He will be accompanied by D. L. Reed, Mountain Lake Park; Mrs. Guy Stanton, Grantsville, chairman and vice-chairman of the county land use planning committee, and William Wildesen, Farm Bureau representative. Representatives of land use planning committees of other counties will also be present.

The conference will last for three days and take the place of the annual county agents' conference held at College Park each year. Two other regioual meetings in other parts of the State have already been held.

FIRE ESCAPES AT GRADE SCHOOL ARE INSPECTED

Board Of Education Agrees To Recommendation of Committee

Fire escapes at the Oakland Elementary school were inspected last Friday morning by a committee appointed by the Oakland Fire company, and recommendations were accepted by the Board of Education.

The committee was composed of L. M. Fraley, Emroy Bolden, Grover C. Stemple, James Lewis and Robert Stanton, and following the inspection Mr. Fraley made a report to the Board.

The committee recommended a boardwalk be built from the bottom of the fire escape to the sidewalk and a platform and walkway from the rear door on the first floor to the sidewalk. This was thought to be necessary as an addition is now being built to the building, and the steps were torn away from the rear and excavations being made for a foundation wall, which had interfered with the fire escape.

W. W. Dawson and W. W. Savage, members of the Board of Education, and F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, agreed that this should be done at once. Mr. Rathbun notified the contractor of their decision.

The Firemen's committee also advised that the local department would be glad to inspect school houses in this vicinity for fire hazards and would also inaugurate fire drills. Mr. Fraley said Mr. Rathbun announced he would be pleased to hear recommendations at any time.

The matter was first brought to the attention of the fire company by a group representing the Parent-Teachers' association.

GIVE ATTENTION TO DIET TO AVOID TIRED FEELING

Should Be Well-Balanced; Have Variety and Contain Necessary Elements

To keep fit and to avoid that tired feeling that comes at this time of the year, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health, advises that you give special attention to your diet to be sure it is well-balanced, has sufficient variety, contains the food elements necessary to keep the body in good condition and that will strengthen the power of resistance to disease.

Ways of warding off the need for spring tonics and of carrying out Dr. Riley's suggestions are indicated in the following bulletin from the Department:

Tales or sulphur and molasses as a spring tonic are still heard, though its use has long been abandoned. Nevertheless a spring tonic often seems desirable after a long,, cold winter. If you are on the tentative spring tonic list check your diet now. Such a need may often be attributed in part, at least, to a lack of variety in the foods you eat during the winter months.

A large part of the minerals and vitamins we need to keep the human machine in good condition, comes from the fruit and vegetables we eat. In the summer when fresh fruits and vegetables are available in abundance, they are likely to be used freely. In the winter though we have a wide range to choose from, we are inclined to depend upon two or three favorites. In order that we have the food elements the body requires it is important that the winter diet include one green, leafy vegetable and one other vegetable, besides potatoes, daily, as well as one serving of orange or tomato, and one serving of fruit.

Just by way of reminder, here is a partial list of vegetables available for daily use in the winter: Cabbage, turnips, turnip-tops, kale, sweet and white potatoes, parsnips, salsify, onions, squash, pumpkins, beets, rutabagas, and carrots. There are appetizing ways of serving cabbage, turnips, and carrots, raw, as well as cooked.

Canned tomatoes may be used regularly and dried prunes, apricots, peaches, and raisins may supplement fresh apples and bananas as sources of fruit.

If these foods are included in the adult's daily meal plan, together with one pint of milk, a serving of whole grain bread or cereal, butter, an egg, and a serving of meat or fish, there will be little or no necessity for a spring tonic, when the sulphur and molasses season comes.

House Warming Held In Florida For Garrett County Couple

Last Thursday evening, February 2, members of the Baptist church at Lynn Haven, Florida, and other friends, gathered at "Bonnie Doon," the new home of Veteran and Mrs. George Brown, for a house warming social. The purpose of the meeting, according to Rev. W. 1. Coburn, was the dedication of another Christian home in Lynn Haven and a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who had recently arrived there from Mountain Lake Park.

There was group singing of hymns. Mrs. Mary A. Bucklin, a 90-year-old pioneer of Lynn Haven, and Veteran Brown gave a duet and Mr. Brown also participated in a trio in giving a number of selections. There were also short talks. Mr. Brown voiced his appreciation of the welcome and the friendships formed. Seven States were represented in the group.

Lynn Haven is a town founded by Civil War veterans as a retreat during old age. It is now populated by a number of Spanish-American War and World War veterans. A number of winter homes have been built there by former soldiers of Northern States.

BEALL ANNOUNCES PLANS TO EXPAND STATE ROADS

Commission Chairman Lists Over Two Million Dollars To Be Spent In Garrett County

50 AND 219 IN PROGRAM

The State Roads Commission has proposed a five-year highway and bridge program designed to "restore and expand" the primary roads system at a cost of approximately $46,824,000.

The Commission used its own studies and those of the Maryland Highway Planning Survey in drafting the program, which includes construction of new dual highways, bridges, multiple lane roads and viaducts.

J. Glenn Beall, Commission chairman, said: "No attempt has been made to establish priority for the projects." He pointed out the Federal Bureau of Roads would continue to furnish funds for highway planning and construction.

Cost of improvements recommended in the various counties included: Garrett, $2,039,000; Allegany, $1,305,000; Washington, $2,726,000.

Garrett County Plans

Reconstruction and relocating U. S. Route No. 50 from Gorman to the West Virginia line and reconstructing and relocating sections of U. S. Route No. 219 from Oakland to Keyser's Ridge and from Oakland to Red House.

Improvements on many of the roads not included in the program will have to be made from year to year. In this category fall surface-treated gravel roads in Southern Maryland, stabilized roads on both the Eastern and Western Shores and hundreds of miles of unpaved country roads. These improvements will be made through the surface-treatment contracts and secondary highway programs in which the Federal Government participates.

Printed copies of the program including road maps of each county showing traffic flow, will be given to Governor O'Conor and distributed to members of the General Assembly, it was said Monday.

PRODUCERS PREPARE FOR SUGAR MAKING SEASON

Busy Weeks Ahead For Owners Of Maple Sugar Groves

Farmers in the Grantsville, Bittinger and Ryan's Glade sections of Garrett county, where maple sugar orchards are located, are making ready for the 1939 season for the "tapping for sap," and because of the comparatively warm weather of the past week o rmore, some farmers have already hung their "keelers" to the trees and the hauling sugar water to the evaporating houses.

More than 125 farmers of the county engage in this occupation each year at about this time, which provides a good source of revenue for them at a season when other farm work is at a minimum and money scarce. It also makes much hard work for the producers. It is estimated that the industry in the county amounts to around $75,000 annually and that this figure has been maintained for half a century or even more.

Variation of temperature between day and night is mainly responsible for the flow of suger water and it appears that this kind of weather has begun.

To make eight pounds of sugar or one gallon of syrup, approximately thirty-three gallons of sap are required. The season's average flow is 25 gallons to the tap. Many producers of the county put out over a thousand sap buckets or "keelers" each to catch the flow from the trees. The season usually lasts six weeks.

Sudden Drop In Temperature Caused By Northern Storm

A sudden turn in the weather following heavy rains on Wednesday, brought a surprise cold snap to this area, with the thermometer this morning reading 5 above zero.

The storm was preceded by heavy rain and even thunder on Tuesday night. By Wednesday noon there was snow falling and the snow continued to fall until Wednesday night. The near zero reading was caused by a cold wind which swept out of the north.

The week's weather had included three cloudless but cool days.

BETTER USE OF LAND IS PLANNED BY FARM GROUP

Western Maryland Agriculturalists Meet With Extensioners

Western Maryland farmers met with extension leaders and federal farm officials at Hagerstown yesterday to plan better use of land resources and one suggestion raised was that part of the territory should be dedicated to scenic park development.

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Agricultural Extension Service, initiated the proposal that a campaign be started to convert part of Western Maryland's acres into vacation playgrounds.

Such an idea would serve a two-fold purpose. he pointed out. It would make the land more productive of income in the long run and it would keep less valuable land from producing crops which are already so overabundant as to glut the markets.

"I wish," Dr. Symons said, "that the scenic and natural beauty of Western Maryland could be appreciated so as to regain for this region the popularity as a vacation area that it once enjoyed."

Would Light Highways

He suggested that illumination of highways in the area would be one way to attract tourists.

"This would be helpful to agriculture and all kinds of business," he said.

Dr. Symons suggested to the Western Maryland farmers that they undertake a "vigorous" reforestation policy, not only in forest areas, but in farm areas as well.

Offers Suggestions

Outlining how the extension service and the many Federal farm agencies are working together, he asked the farmers to help study the program and offer suggestions as to how it may be improved and better coordinated.

Farm representatives were on hand with suggestions and they laid them before the conference at the first afternoon session of the three-day meeting.

John H. Carter, County Agent, Miss Mildred Barton, Home Demonstration Agent, and others are attending the meeting from Garrett county. .

Cottontail Rabbits From Kansas and Missouri Released in Maryland

Approximately 6,000 cottontail rabbits, brought from Kansas and Missouri, are now running wild in Maryland fields and woods. The animals were liberated last week by game wardens and game associations after having been purchased by the State Game Department in an effort to replenish the supply in this State.

The number released this year is about half of what it was last year, when about 12,000 were purchased for State-wide distribution.

The rabbits and their offspring will live unmolested until the opening of the gunning season next fall. Garrett county received 288; Washington, 408; Allegany, 504. The rabbits were distributed according to the number of hunting licenses taken out in the counties last season, the department officials said.

SENATE COMMITTEE HEARS OF STATE LABOR BOARDS

U. S. Cooperation With State Labor Department Is Withheld Because Of Inefficiency

CORONERS ARE FLAYED

A member of Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor's Reorganization Commission told the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday at Annapolis that the Federal Government could not cooperare with Maryland's Labor and Statistics Department because of the department's inefficiency and lack of organization.

Testifying in favor of the commission's recommendation that the Labor Department be consolidated with the Industrial Accident Commission, Willis Jones, commission member who authorized the proposal, told the senators:

"The Federal Government is glad to cooperate with efficient state labor departments, but it has not found ours sufficiently organized. As a result, Federal labor conciliators have operated independently in the State."

Jones, a former deputy State attorney general, said his investigations incidental to the reorganization report, indicated that agents of the Federal labor department had conciliated a large number of Maryland's strikes in recent years without the aid of State agents.

Needed For Efficiency

He asserted he felt the recommended consolidation would make for greater efficiency in the accident commission as well, contending two commissioners could hear and settle possibly twice as many compensation cases a year as are now handled by five industrial accident commissioners.

Jones and Dr. Isaiah Bowman, chairman of the reorganization commission, testified three hours before the judicial proceedings members, principally on the administration measure creating a new department of labor and industrial relations.

Under the bill, a commission of three members would take over all the duties now performed by the accident commission and the labor disputes, and the two commissioners handling industrial compensation cases.

Jones said the two departments now are performing many overlapping functions which could easily be consolidated. In addition, he criticized "so much lost motion" he said existed under the present setup.

Coroners Flayed

A committee the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland appointed to draw up legislation for an overhaul of the State system of coroners told the House Ways and Means Committee that its bill would end all "opportunity for racketeering" now possible.

None of the doctors composing the three-man committee charged definite instances of racketeering by coroners, but one of the speakers they brought to Annapolis did. He was E. Paul Mason, former president of the Bar Association of Baltimore City, and he said he knew of cases in which attorneys were forced to pay from $10 to $25 for a death certificate that legally should cost only 50 cents.

In such instances, he said, coroners withheld death certificates, necessary in liability cases resulting from deaths, from the Health Department, where they would be obtainable for half a dollar. Because the lawyers needed the certificates immediately in court they were forced to "pay the coroner's own price."

Oakland High Boys Win And Lose During Week

Oakland High school basketball team won a fast game from Bayard High, on the latter's court last Friday night. The final score was 35 to 27, although at one time in the final quarter Bayard was leading 23 to 22. Kley made 19 of Oakland's points. Score at the end of the half was 15-14. The Bayard girls defeated the Oakland girls 31-15.

Oakland was defeated Tuesday night by the Frostburg junior varsity, 36 to 24. Connor and Shockley for Frostburg, led the scoring with 12 and 10 points respectively. Kley and Wolfe led the Oakland attack with 8 and 7 points. Sharps scored 5 and Fazzalari 4.

The Oakland girls' team defeated the Oakland High teachers 26 to 8. These two teams will meet again on March 4, and the teachers plan to get in a little more practice to improve their game.

OAKLAND CITIZENS PASS BOND ISSUE 318 TO 113

Balloting Is Heavy On Proposal To Erect Community Building; Adopted Almost Three To One

WORK WILL START SOON

Oakland citizens voted almost three to one last Friday to issue $25,000 in municipal bonds for financing the town's share in a new $75,000 community building to house the fire department, city offices, a gymnasium and quarters for various organizations now active in town affairs.

The final count on the vote was 318 to 113.

The balloting was heavy during the afternoon despite a downpour of rain, and election officials estimated about 65 per cent of the electorate turned out and voted.

The $25,000 in municipal bonds will be coupled with $51,800 from the WPA to build the proposed two-story structure on a site yet to be selected and purchased. Besides the gymnasium, fire house and city rooms, there will also be a stage and a kitchen. WPA participation in the project has already been approved by that organization.

The General Assembly of Maryland approved the bond issue and Governor O'Conor signed the measure Wednesday which authorized the obligations and referendum.

The election created quite a bit of interest among the voters and several citizens announced they were opposed to the project on the ground it was unnecessary and would cause an increase in the city tax rate. A quiet fight was waged all day Friday, but the outcome was a foregone conclusion shortly after the judges of election began to count the ballots. That the bond issue would carry by such a substantial majority, however, was not anticipated, even by those most heartily in favor of the measure.

Henry Tarring, Jr., WPA resident engineer for Garrett and Allegany counties, said that work could begin almost immediately in preparing the material for the building and that actual construction would start when the ground was workable and the site selected.

No definite site has been selected by the Mayor and Council yet, although it is certain to be in the downtown section for convenience of the fire equipment.

Officers Fail To Find Negro Who Entered House

County officers were called last Thursday evening to come to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cogley to search for a colored man whom Mrs. Cogley had reported seeing in the house.

The man was evidently ransacking the house when discovered by Mrs. Cogley who fled to a neighbor's house to summon help.

A search of the vicinity failed to find any trace of the man. Lately there have been a number of "knights of the road" in this section.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ARE READY FOR CELEBRATION

Will Observe 50th Anniversary Tomorrow Evening—Akers To Speak

Distinguished visitors will participate in the 50th anniversary celebration of the Knights of Pythias lodge here tomorrow evening, February 17, it was announced this morning. Edward M. Akers, grand chancellor of Maryland, and C. Thomas Summers, supreme representative, will both be in Oakland to take part in the program that has now been completed.

The celebration is to observe in a fitting manner the silver anniversary of the founding of the local lodge, and also the 75th anniversary of the founding of the parent order. It will be held in Castle Hall, Third street. Three hundred persons are expected. Members of the lodge, their wives and widows of deceased members are invited.

E. Ray Jones will be the principal speaker. Grover C. Stemple will present 25-year jewels to three members and there will be other features on the program. A luncheon will be prepared and served by members of the Pythian Sisters.

The entertainment committee has obtained favors for ladies and commemorative coins for the members.

CITY ELECTION WILL BE HELD MONDAY, MARCH 13

Three Councilmen and Treasurer To Be Selected By Voters

With the special election now past history, citizens of Oakland are now turning their thoughts to the annual municipal election which will be held on Monday, March 13.

Three members of Council and the Town Treasurer are to be chosen.

Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley was elected last year for a two-year term with no opposition at the polls.

Hold-over members of the Council are Henry W. McComas, Jr., Earl Shartzer and Raymond Houck, while Richard L. Davis is the present Town Treasurer.

Retiring Councilmen are Edward A. Shaffer, Emroy Bolden and I. R. Rudy. It may be that the retiring members of Council will seek re-election on account of their previous interest in the Community Building, which will be constructed here within the next year, and their interest in the municipal golf links, which are now completed and open to the playing public.

Others, however, may be nominated at a citizens meeting or at party meetings, usually held Thursday or Friday before the day of election. A measure has been introduced in the General Assembly providing for a filing system for candidates for city offices, but if it is passed at this session it will not effect this year's election.

The same judges and clerks acting at the special election last Friday will serve in the same capacities at the regular annual election.

Scouts Celebrate Anniversary With Father-Son Dinner

Thirty scouts and their dads of Oakland Troop, No. 1, observed Scout anniversary week with a father-son dinner in the Lutheran church basement last Friday evening.

Patrols presented a first aid demonstration and explained in detail the use of knots. Scouts rededicated themselves to the scout oath and laws, an annual event during anniversary week.

On Sunday, February 12, the boys attended the Episcopal church service when they listened to a message from Rev. David C. Trimble, rector.

Oakland Troop, No. 1, has been organized since October, 1924. Howard C. Riggs is scoutmaster and Bernard I. Gonder, Jr., Eagle scout, assistant scoutmaster of the troop.

To Hold Examination For Postmaster Position

A Civil Service examination for the position of postmaster of the Oakland office has been scheduled for Saturday, February 25.

Officials here have been notified to prepare for twelve candidates. The examination will be conducted in the Oakland High School building.

RELIEF CRISIS IS EASED WITH A PARTIAL PAYMENT

Funds For Dependent Children Released—County Order Is Drawn On Contingent Fund

OUTLOOK STILL UNCERTAIN

With a picture of "real suffering" in the offing because Garrett county relief functions were at a standstill when it was found that a $3,700 county order couldn't be cashed because there were no funds collected on the 1939 levy, this situation became partially eased early this week when the County Commissioners issued a cashable order of $310.55, which was enough to release funds for aid to dependent children, pay drayage for surplus commodities, and pay two weeks of administration costs.

Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the Welfare Board, had stated that there would be "real suffering" this week when clients on the relief rolls began to run out of food and fuel. Up to Saturday some of the grocery stores had been extending credit, she stated, but some of the managers called to tell her that they had gone the limit on relief clients.

The situation was precipitated, she said, by the lack of Garrett county funds to match State outlays for old-age pension receipts, dependent children, the blind, and those entitled to general public assistance.

Other Funds Held Up

Even with the amount forthcoming from the Commissioners on Monday, funds for 370 old age pensioners, 9 blind persons, and about 130 cases on general public assistance, were being held up, but Miss Miller expressed hope that something might be done this week. Old age pension checks were due on Wednesday.

Outlook Is Unchanged

But the outlook remained unchanged up to last evening, as far as any payments of old age pensions were concerned, but several issues were cleared and an announcement made for a proposed bill in the legislature that might eventually correct the situation.

The County Commissioners asked bank officials to meet with them yesterday at 11 o'clock to discuss the matter. Blaine Giessman, president of the Commissioners, said the meeting was being held "to get together with the banks to solve the problem." Attorneys for some of the banks of the county met in the office of E. R. Jones, with Horace P. Whitworth and Walter C. Capper, Allegany county attorneys and counsel for the County Commissioners, included, but the meeting with bank officials did not materialize. Whitworth announced later that he would draw up a bill for possible passage through the legislature, to allow the County Commissioners to borrow money from time to time at a rate of interest not to exceed 3 percent, instead of 6 percent. This, it was pointed out, would enable the Commissioners to borrow money up to about one-fourth of the taxes, approximately $60,000, in the early months of the year when no tax money is coming in, which would be paid back later in the year, and would relieve situations such as had come up in regard to relief.

Levied For Relief

The County Commissioners included in the recent levy an amount calculated to take care of its share of the relief burden, but the 1939 tax bills were just printed this week, and payments are not due until April 1. Taxpayers get a two percent discount if they pay by June 1, and they don't have to pay penalties until October.

Funds for the county order of $310.55 were available from the 1939 Contingent fund, because money had been forthcoming from beer tax receipts, according to Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., county treasurer.

Cheston H. Browning, County Commissioner, said he didn't know when other funds could be raised but hoped a settlement could be reached with bank officials soon. "Banks, which had been cashing county orders, had stopped doing so when the Commissioners announced that their attorney had advised them not to pay interest on them," Mr. Browning said.

Bankers Commeat

Miss Miller announced yesterday evening that she still had the $3,700 county order but no money, which meant there were no funds for old age pensions or general public assistance.

BEVERAGE ALCOHOL AND ITS SOCIAL PERILS

LESSON TEXT—Amos 6:1 6; I Peter 2:11, 12, 4:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth.—Romans 14:21.

"Hazards in the use of alcohol in a machine age"—this is the topic assigned for our lesson today. It is a good one and worthy of the careful thought of every intelligent citizen. With automobiles alone killing over a hundred persons a day, and the obvious connection between alcohol and death on the highway, we might say much about the folly of trying to cut down traffic accidents while we are licensing more and more "taverns" along the road to fill the drivers with the destructive stuff.

There is much that might be said about the social havoc that is being wrought by alcohol. It is bad enough that a man pays 25 cents for a drink, but even worse, that he gives 25 minutes of his life for each indulgence. But the liquor industry covers that up under a mask of festivity, making booze look like a desirable adjunct to congenial and successful living. It does not picture the bleary eye and the babbling tongue of the drinker, nor does it present the broken-hearted mother, the devastated home, the ragged children, and the empty cupboard. Liquor is one of America's major problems. Let us face it.

The Scripture portions assigned for our lesson rightly emphasize fundamentals, the first being a call to awake from a false sense of security, the second emphasizing that this is a spiritual battle, and the third pointing the way of victory as being in holy living.

I. Foolish Security When Surrounded by Danger (Amos 6:1-6).

Surprise attack is always effective. Satan would lull us all to sleep in the assurance that "God's in his heaven—all's well with the world." God is in heaven and it is certain that ultimately He will reign over all, but just now the world is in the hands of the Wicked One (I. John 5:19).

The people of Amos' day, to whom the message was addressed, had come to the point where prosperity had made them at ease when they should have been active, foolishly secure when they should have been sacrificially serving their fellow men who were in need. The picture is astonishingly up-to-date. Today in our own land the Gold Coast and the slums rub elbows, but few of those who have plenty are concerned about those who have not. In the eyes of most people the purpose of gaining possessions is to relieve one from the necessity of work and to enable one to evade life's responsibilities.

America needs to awaken to its dangers, and we repeat that not the least of these is the liquor question. We must either win a victory over it, or it will destroy our people.

II. Spiritual Warfare—While at Peace with God (I. Pet. 2:11, 12).

"Fleshly lusts, which war against the soul" (v. 11) are the object of serious concern on the part of every sincere Christian. There is a battle on, and the enemy of our soul knows how to make the abuse of the normal impulses and appetites of man his strong ally. The rush of modern life, the increasing use of stimulants, both natural and artificial, the very luxury in which many live, these things tend to give the flesh and its desires undue prominence, and not infrequently cause even God's children to fall into sin.

We are called to a holy warfare, but that does not mean that we live in a constant turmoil. We are, after all, pilgrims and strangers in this world. Our citizenship is in heaven (Phil. 3:20) though we live on earth. In the heart we have peace, and that enables us to fight a good fight against the world, the flesh, and the devil.

III. Doing the Will of God in a Self-willed World (I. Pet. 4:1-5).

Essentially there are two opposing principles operative in the lives of men—we either are controlled by God's will, or by self-will. The flesh is really man's personality controlled by his own self-will. It results in the kind of life described in verses 2 and 3. When a man becomes a Christian he should move over into the will of God.

Such a man may be regarded as strange, but as a matter of fact, men will recognize his godliness (see I. Pet. 2:12). Dr. Will H. Houghton tells of "a soldier who ultimately was made a Christian believer through seeing his companions make fun of another soldier, who was a believer in Christ. The thing that impressed him was the fact that though they made fun of this man, they left their money in his possession for safekeeping!" Do we have that kind of a testimony?

When He Doesn't Worry

His Satanic majesty never worries about the man who has come to the conclusion that there is no devil.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

The Republican heard from a former resident this week, who was just paying his subscription with his own money, and not, as he stated, with any of F. D. R's millions.

He added: "I can't for the life of me understand what is wrong with people. As long as I lived in West Virginia I was able to keep her Republican. Thinking Maryland needed me I moved over and gave my valuable service and brought her out of the red. Then thinking Pennsylvania needed me I came here and you can readily see what I did over here. But here's the rub. Maryland and West Virginia both fell by the wayside. Sorry there isn't time to come back and straighten things out again. Signed, E. M. Stallings, New Paris, Pa.

Another Contribution

Little boy blue come blow your horn,
There's a government agent counting your corn;
Another one lecturing to the old red sow,
On the number of pigs she can have, and how.
Pa's gone to town to find out what
He can do next year with that old meadow lot;
Aunt Minnie's in Washington dragging down pay
From the old age pension or the AAA;
The hired man quit when the work didn't please
And got him a job trimming Government trees;
They will be telling you soon, if you don't take care,
Where you can live, and just what you can wear;
How much you must pay for your pants and your shoes,
So this is no time to be taking a snooze.
Little boy blue may be buried deep, under red tape,
But he's not asleep.

The Whole Works

We were informed this week of an undertaker, who doesn't even live in the county, who conducted a funeral service the other day in the county, and when we say conducted, that is what we really mean.

He did the preaching, he did the praying, he led the singing, and was the soloist; he was one of the members of the quartet, and even committed the body to the ground. He may have had other accomplishments which our informer forgot to mention, but he appears to be an exceedingly valuable man for any community.

Isn't He Cute?

Russell Brown's face may not still be red, but it probably will get that way if you ask him about the following incident:

Down in a hospital in Baltimore where his wife and infant son are residing for the time being, Russell was pointing through the window into the babies' room for the benefit of some visiting friends just to show them which one had the name of Brown. "That little fellow over there with the LIGHT hair," he grinned, and added, just as any proud father might, "Isn't he cute?" "Why he looks just like you," said one of the friends.

At this point a nurse came along. "Are you looking for your baby? I moved him about ten minutes ago over into that other corner."

Going Back Fifty Years

A visitor at The Republican office on Tuesday asked to see the files of the paper of fifty years ago. In going over an issue dated in October, 1889, his attention was attracted to a letter appearing therein, which reads as follows and is reproduced in this column with the thought that human nature was the same half a century ago as it is today:

Oakland, Md., Oct. 23, 1889.

To the People of Garrett County:

The undersigned County Commissioners of Garrett county desire to say that they are not infallable and do not pretend to say that they have not made some mistakes in the performance of their duty, but all the charges made against us by the Democrat in its editorial columns concerning the contingent fund, Selbysport bridge, Selbysport road, alleged illegal levies to the Clerk, physician and other persons, and for other purposes, and all charges, imputations and insinuations of official misconduct, corrupt jobbery, extravagance, squandering public funds, violation of law and disregard of our official oath, are malicious, unqualified and unmitigated lies, conceived, written and published in malice, to misrepresent and damage us, to deceive and mislead the people for political purposes and influence their action in the pending campaign, as was well known to the person making those charges, at the time he made them. Whatever has been done by us in the discharge of our duties has been done conscientiously, of our own volition, uninfluenced by any person or anything other than a due regard for the best interests and welfare of the county and its people, in observance of the law and our oaths.

CEREALS

Often we think of cereals as a breakfast food only. Try the following cereal main dish and dessert recipes:

Savory Cheese Corn

Two cups cornmeal, 2 tablespoons bacon, 1 cup stewed tomatoes, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups soup stock, 1 large whole onion, 5 cloves, ½ cup grated cheese.

Soak the cornmeal over night. Cook in boiling water for four hours the next morning, adding more water as it boils away. When the cereal is quite tender, add the other ingredients, except the cheese, and simmer gently until the liquid is almost entirely absorbed. Remove the onion and stir in the grated cheese. Fried salt pork, bacon or cooked salt codfish may he used as a garnish, when cheese is omitted.

Pineapple and Rice Custard Loaf

Two cups boiled rice, 2 cups crushed pineapple, ¾ cup sugar, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 cup sifted dry bread crumbs, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups milk, 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon almond extract.

Drain pineapple. Mix together sugar, flour and salt in top of double boiler. Add ½ cup milk and egg yolks, beat well, add remaining one cup milk. Cook in double boiler about 20 minutes until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add flavoring and fold in rice. Cover bottom of greased loaf pan with one-half of the bread crumbs; pour in one-third of rice custard, then cover with a layer of one-half of the pineapple. Repeat layer of custard, remaining pineapple and remaining one-third of custard. Sprinkle with remaining bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees F. about 20 minutes before unmolding. Slice and serve with pineapple sauce.

Pineapple Sauce

Four tablespoons brown sugar, 4 tablespoons butter, ¾ teaspoon almond extract, 1 egg, 1 cup pineapple juice.

Cream butter and sugar in top of double boiler; add egg; beat well; cook over boiling water, adding pineapple juice slowly while stirring. Add flavoring. Take from heat; beat well with rotary beater.

Custard Cruneh

Four tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon mace, 2 cups milk, 3 tablespoons butter, 1-8 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 eggs, 3 cups puffed cereal.

Mix first six ingredients; add to milk and slightly beaten eggs. Melt fat and add before stirring in cereal. Pour at once into a greased baking dish, set in a pan of lukewarm water and bake in a moderate over 325 degrees F. for one hour.

TYPHOID AND DIPHTHERIA FATALITIES GOING DOWN

Several Counties On 1938 Honor Roll, Health Department Advises

Counties on the honor roll for low scores in typhoid fever and diphtheria in 1938 have been announced by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health.

No section of the State was entirely free from typhoid fever, Dr. Riley said, but ten of the twenty-three counties came through 1938 without having any deaths from the disease charged against them; fifteen had no deaths from diphtheria, and four of the fifteen had neither sickness nor deaths from the disease.

The counties with no deaths from typhoid were Anne Arundel, Carroll, Cecil, Garrett, Harford, Kent, Prince George's, Queen Anne's, Saint Mary's and Washington. Queen Anne's' has the distinction of having had no deaths from typhoid during tho five-year period from 1934-1938, inclusive.

There were 283 cases of typhoid and 33 deaths from the disease reported during the year in comparison with 327 cases and 33 deaths in 1937. Of the cases and deaths reported in 1938, 229 cases and 24 deaths were charged against the counties and 54 cases and 9 deaths against Baltimore City.

Allegany, Kent, Queen Anne's and Talbot counties were the four that had neither sickness nor deaths from diphtheria during the year. The other eleven counties without any deaths from diphtheria were Calvert, Caroline, Carroll, Charles, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, Prince George's, Saint Mary's, Somerset and Wicomico. There were 353 cases of diphtheria and 18 deaths reported in 1938 in comparison with 513 cases and 23 deaths in 1937. Of the totals in 1938, 125 cases and 3 deaths were reported from Baltimore City and 228 cases and 15 deaths from the counties.

Of the fifteen counties with no deaths from diphtheria last year, four have special distinction. Howard had no deaths from diphtheria charged against it during the seven-year period from 1932-1938, inclusive; Kent and Saint Mary's have had none in the last six years and Carroll none in the last five years.

Opportunities for protection against both typhoid and diphtheria are readily available, Dr. Riley said. He advised those who had not been protected against typhoid within the last two years to go to their family physicians for the three necessary inoculations. He urged mothers to have their babies protected against diphtheria before they are a year old, if possible, and certainly before the children enter school.

HOOVER FLAYS NEW DEAL WASTE IN LINCOLN TALK

Former President Refers to 'Hallucinations' of Administration

Former President Herbert Hoover Monday night declared that "hallucination" spending was the obstacle to prosperity and proclaimed a rejuvenated, resurgent Republican party dedicated to averting "a rendezvous with inflation and a full-sized dictator."

In the keynote speech of the party's Lincoln Day celebration, prepared for the main dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York and a nationwide broadcast, the last Republican President asserted:

"To restore jobs and agriculture, the fear of men of their government and the shackles and taxes upon their energies must be removed, in order that free men may have hope and confidence in the future."

Hoover ascribed to "a high school of economic romance . . . a school of budgetary magic . . . economic make-believe" the ideas that government loans and public works are a monetary asset, and that the nation's combined public and private debt is no larger than in 1929.

Jobs Principal Need

The country's "greatest humanitarian task," he said, "is to restore 10,000,000 to jobs, revive a paralyzed agriculture, and thereby relieve 20,000,000 destitute.

"The President's solution of this problem is that the Government spend on a still larger scale . . . that inasmuch as our present income is only 60 billions, we only have to spend as if we had 80 billions in order to lift ourselves up to the Republican level.

"As the ancient prospector said, 'there ain't no gold in them rainbows.'

"That 80 billion dollar national income under Republican administration was due to the people spending their own money, not in taxes but on reproductive enterprises, creating new jobs for new men.

"Public works and public buildings have social value. But as assets with which to relieve taxpayers they are about as useful as liabilities on a balance sheet. On the basis of this hallucination, my administration would have shown a surplus of two billion.

"And I trust," Mr. Hoover added sarcastically, "that the time off for precinct work by the WPA is not included as an offset to the national debt."

Scores New Deal

Under the New Deal, he said, "extravaganee with other people's money is shifted from a sin to a virtue . . .

"Mr. Roosevelt says 'this generation has a rendezvous with destiny'. The most probable spot for that rendezvous today is inflation.

"When this generation has gone up that alley, it will find freedom has gone and our rendezvous will be with a full-sized dictator."

Forest Green To Replace Khaki As Official Uniform of CCC

By fall the several hundred enrollees of the Civilian Conservation Corps in this county and hundreds of thousands all over the country will be attired in new uniforms. The uniforms will be of "forest" or "spruce" green.

The change from olive drab will necessitate the issuance of new shoes, too. Black footwear will replace tan. The same style overseas cap will be issued. A new type coat, the outstanding feature of which will be a pleated back designed to give greater freedom of motion, will be a part of the new regulation uniform.

The present supply of clothing is believed to be sufficient to last until fall, and the changeover will take place at that time.

LENT——

The Lenten Season, which begins with Ash Wednesday, the 22nd of February of this year, is the season that is set apart by the Christian Church as an inventory time, and one in which all Christians should take stock of their spiritual assets and liabilities and thus evaluate their lives in the light of the life and sufferings and sacrifice of the Lord who was here in the world that He might show us how to live and make an atonement for our sins that God might look upon us with Divine favor and bind us back again to Himself and make of us new creatures in Christ Jesus, thus fitting us for heirship in His kingdom so that we might live with Him in that kingdom that He is now preparing for us.

This is the time when we come apart from the general routine of life, eliminate all worldly pleasures and deny ourselves of many things that we are wont to do so that we may give time and thought to Him and thus prepare ourselves the better to appreciate all that He has done for us. In this way we will find ourselves ready to enter into the joyous Easter Festival with its resurrection of the Saviour, and rejoice in the assurance of the new life brought to the world through this resurrection fact.

To this purpose the Church opens its door wide to all, inviting them to come and participate in this most vital act in all history.

The Church of Christ urges your attendance to all of her services.

PARAGRAPH OPINIONS

Good Men and Good Pay—

A bill calling for a change in the magistrate system has been introduced in the legislature, which is more fully explained by our Annapolis writer.

It appears to us that the change won't be conducive to obtaining efficient workers for the county. It provides for a chief magistrate who would get $900 annually. A constable assigned to his office would get $600. The magistrate would have to hold court in Oakland five days and sit in Grantsville one day.

Unless there are other fees connected with the job, and we understand there is not, the pay isn't worth the effort. Any man of the type who would make a good magistrate would be earning more than twice that much in private life and couldn't afford to quit. And anyone who thinks a constable can run around this county and pick up law violators on $600 a year and still get enough to live on, is sadly mistaken.

By having inadequate pay for workers is one sure way of getting inferior men, with exceptions of course.

It has always been our contention that our legislators are not sufficiently paid to support themselves at Annapolis. Unless the honor of the office can be measured in money, and I'll bet the Annapolis hotels don't take honor for rent payments.

Until we get sufficient pay in all offices to attract high type men, we'll never get them consistently. At present a legislator, as a general rule, must be independent of the remuneration or else he needs it to exist because he has no other means of support. This of course is not meant as a reflection on present legislators or past legislators, or anybody who runs for office, but it is a fact. If he is a high type man of only moderate income, his term at Annapolis is a financial loss.

Good men in public office, at sufficient pay, will in the long run save the taxpayers money.

Holding the Bag—

It looks like the old-age pensioners and direct relief people are holding the bag, while the argument over the purchase of road machinery, the levy, county orders and interest on them continues.

There was never any contention before about the lean months and interest on county orders, but now that the question is made public and the commissioners are advised that it is illegal, they dare not do anything illegal or that taxpayers' committee, self-constituted and composed of Democrats et al. who desire to step into the commissioners' shoes, would no doubt make an effort to impeach them. In the meanwhile there is no money and won't be for awhile, except from beer tax, and the situation is not pleasant.

Majority Pleasing—

It was pleasing to see the majority rolled up by those favoring the Community Building. This was done in spite of the few who had opposed it for selfish motives, such as mortgages on properties they wished to interest Council in and try to sell, instead of a community building.

The result was decisive enough to leave no doubt.

WHO OWNS A COMPANY?—

A typical American company recently set about finding out who its owners are. It had known, of course, that the company president was no more the sole owner than is the President of the United States the sole owner of the country he administers. The company learned it is owned by average citizens, living average lives, investing their money in average companies because they have faith in American industry and the American plan of producing wages and dividends from honest work and honest products.

Many persons might be called indirect shareholders. They enjoy returns without actually owning stock of the company. It comes about, for example, through them having insurance policies on their lives, or homes, or places of business issued by insurance companies that are part owners through shareholdings in the average company. Such investments of paid insurance premiums safeguard the ultimate payment of an insurance policy. Thus each policy holder benefits directly by the advance of the companies in which the insurance company has its investments. The same is true of those holding shares in investment trusts. Likewise, this may be said of those using the faculties of universities, hospitals, and clinical foundations. These institutions keep going on the earnings of their endowments, realized from holdings in stocks of average American companies. Partnerships in estates are another example.

A breakdown of stockholders of this average company showed that 4,300 of them are men. Some are wealthy. More are not. Then, there are 4,084 women—mothers, wives, sisters, daughters, sweethearts, widows, women who are in business for themselves, teachers, secretaries, clerks, office managers, doctors.

Thus an average American company is owned mostly by ordinary citizens engaged in the regular pursuits of life. But as the result of the ownership being shared by such institutions as universities, hospitals and charitable organizations, the benefits are passed on to those of the general public who enjoy their facilities and services. This indirectly shares with non-stockholders the fruits of ownership. The public in this way is better off when the average company progresses.

The World's Day of Prayer will be observed in Oakland next Friday afternoon, February 24, at 3 o'clock. A meeting is to be held in the Lutheran church and communities near Oakland are being asked to participate.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, February 15, 1939.

As we predicted in an earlier column the present Legislature, like all its predecessors, is headed for a hectic, unwholesome jam in the last few days of its session. Politicians are too much interested in possible patronage and the coming city election in Baltimore to settle down and do the job that they have been elected to do and the duties of which should be paramount at this time.

While on the subject of Baltimore and the election we might add in passing that the new protege of Curran and Bruce—Businessman Buck— will be much harder to shove across the pay off marker ahead of Politician Howard Jackson than Herbert O'Conor was in the recent state election.

We understand that all the resources of the powerful machine now controlled by O'Conor, Curran and Bruce will be used against Mayor Jackson in an attempt to bring an end to his political career. Incidentally—if any Garrett county Democrats are interested in state political appointments Howard Bruce is the gentleman to whom they should be referred—we understand that he is handling this particular part of the Annapolis merry-go-round.

Although the majority of the Legislators are wasting time, the Garrett county delegation realizing that there is no patronage for them and having no interest in the Baltimore political mess have been doing quite a bit more for the people back home than the other members of the House and Senate.

On the recommendation of the Deep Creek Lake association, Darwin Martin introduced a bill which liberalizes to a marked degree the short term fishing licenses in Deep Creek Lake. For $2.00 out of state devotees of Isaac Walton may fish in the big pond for seven days instead of three as under the old law, a license for one day will also be available at $1.00. Certain safety measures are also provided in the bill and they require that passenger boats carry life preservers for each passenger and commercially operated beaches must have in easy access six grappling hooks. Surf riders must also wear life belts.

The county election bill, dealing with overtime pay for election officials, has been amended so that overtime pay will be calculated according to the number of votes cast. The tax bill is also in process of amendment and the amendment will provide a higher discount for those who pay their taxes within the specified period.

Bills providing a permanent registration law for the town of Oakland and a bill which requires all candidates for office in Oakland to file before elections have been introduced as delegation measures. Both will pass when brought to a vote.

It is being rumored here and there that certain officials of Garrett county are interested in a bond issue for the county and we are also happy to say that these officials will not get to first base because your representatives and your Senator will neither introduce nor vote for a bond issue of any amount under present circumstances.

A bill calling for a drastic change in the magistrate system of the State has been introduced and is gaining much favor. The proposed change would give Garrett county one magistrate who would handle all the work now being done by magistrates in each election district of the county. This chief and only magistrate, would receive $900 per year and would have a constable assigned to his office who would receive $600 a year. Status of present magistrates, or rather the new district magistrates, who will be appointed by the Governor, will be that of a notary public—the proposal calls for the magistrate to hold court in Oakland all except one day each week and on that day he shall sit in Gramsville.

Governor O'Conor is now going over the list of applicants for jobs with his advisers and in the next few days he will submit to the Senate for approval his "green bag" appointments.

Delegate White, of Prince George's county, has introduced a bill which is typical of the stupidity of some of Maryland's legislators. He proposes that the office of the State Employment Commissioner be eliminated and in his place to substitute a three-man political board. Mr. Harry C. Jones, who holds this office, has worked hard and faithfully in the public interest. He has done everything in his power to maintain the standards of the State's civil service and his is one of the departments which has aroused relatively little criticism. The net effect of Mr. White's phony scheme would be to put the State's civil service neck deep in politics. Yes, Mr. Jones is a Republican. The Evening Sun says: "This is a bad bill."

Through the political grapevine we learned late tonight that the entire Garrett county delegation will be in Oakland this week-end where they will discuss the financial situation of the county with various county officials. Let's hope that this confab will be more on a business basis than those of recent weeks.

National Bank, stated Wednesday morning that "no 1939 county orders had ever been presented or refused here." Later on Wednesday Miss Miller asked him if he would handle the order and he replied that he "couldn't discount it because it hasn't any definite maturity and until the question of interest is settled it is not a negotiable instrument."

Delbert Davis, cashier of the First National Bank, said that they weren't handling any county orders because "the County Commissioners announced they would refuse to pay any interest." The County Commissioners' attorney, Mr. Whitworth, had advised them, Mr. Browning said, that any payment of interest on county orders was illegal.

In former years county orders constituted a tax anticipation note and their issuance had been a regular procedure when the county treasury was low during the first few months of the year because tax payments had not started rolling in.

Status of Treasurer's Office

According to law the county treasurer is authorized to pay county orders only when the fund against which they are levied has some collected taxes to its credit, and is not authorized to pay a 1939 order from money received from 1938 taxes. Neither is he allowed to pay an order drawn on the contingent fund, from the gas levy fund, or from the County Commissioners' salary levy. When funds are not available in the various levies, the orders have been "peddled" to banks or individuals, as third parties in the transaction. Taking care of county orders in the early part of the year had been a custom for a number of years. These would be redeemed when the money was available. It was always assumed that the interest on county orders was balanced by the interest that the treasurer would collect on delinquent taxes, causing no extra expense to the taxpayers. Several banks and individuals are now holding county orders on former levies.

The question of the possibility of discounting county orders which might make the $3,700 available to the welfare board, minus the discount of 6 percent, was advanced, but it was Mr. Davis' opinion that the Welfare Board could not legally discount a county order. Mr. Davis is former chairman of the Welfare Board. Miss Miller was uncertain about that part of the law, and Joseph Fahey, of Grantsville, present chairman, was not available for comment.

300 Cases Are Assisted

Miss Miller said that checks to more than three hundred cases coming under Aid to Dependent Children had been mailed on Monday. Only $168 was necessary from the county to release approximately $3,300 under this division. The county must furnish one-sixth of funds for old age pensions. Last month $6,300 was expended for pensions. The county must furnish all funds for general public assistance, of which there are 130 or more cases.

The county order issued last week for $3,700 was to take care of all needs for February, but on account of the condition of the county treasury this order could not be turned into cash. Until actual money is available the Welfare Board is prohibited by law from issuing any checks from state and federal funds.

In announcing that no old age pension checks had been mailed yesterday, Miss Miller stated that although it was highly improbable that anybody would be falling dead in the streets from starvation, yet there would be many who would suffer from malnutrition if the situation was not remedied before long. "Many of the old age pensioners live alone, and need the money badly," she said.

Glotfelty, whose home is located a short distance south of the Oakland-Crellin highway, and about midway between the two towns, returned from an enforced stay in a Baltimore hospital where he was a medical patient and later in the surgical ward where he submitted to the amputation of his leg made necessary by the formation of a clot which could not be dissipated. Mr. Glotfelty is now in good physical condition. His many friends will be pleased to learn that he is again at his home.

Cause Of Explosion In 1935 Is Still Undetermined

On January 6, 1935, an explosion, which wrecked an automobile on the highway near Hopemont Sanitarium, ten miles west of Oakland, causing the death of Carl Trickett, Oakland, and Mrs. Martha Davis, of Shallmar, and endangering the lives of Trickett's two children, was the topic of interest and conversation for days, but the cause of that explosion has never been determined.

The incident was called to the memory of people of Oakland and Terra Alta several days ago when H. Foster Hartman, of Kingwood, coroner in the case, sent final papers to Terra Alta for the signatures of the jurymen who investigated the matter, thus closing the case with a verdict that "Carl Trickett came to his death in the explosion in an antomobile, the cause of which could not be determined."

The jury was composed of Hugh Whitehair, John Hartman, T. B. Root, D. A. Carruthers, George Forman and Donald Hartman, all of Preston county, West Va.

Authorities worked for some time on the theory that some foe of Trickett had secreted a charge of dynamite in his automobile, and Mrs. Davis' husband was questioned concerning the matter, but he denied any knowledge of the occurrence or its cause and was later released.

Trickett's two children, William, 12, and Margaret, 13, escaped serious injury. They were riding in the rear seat of the automobile. Following the explosion the gas tank caught fire and enveloped the machine in flames. The two children dragged their father and Mrs. Davis from the front seat. Trickett died while being taken to Hopemont and Mrs. Davis died a short time after being admitted to the hospital at Hopemont.

Worse Than Packing

Washington, Feb. 2.

In the shocking case of the New York judge who resigned under charges of having taken money from interests and individuals involved in the litigation before him, it is extraordinary that so much is said about the judge and so little about the people who gave the money.

* * *

Yet, if the investigation substantiates the facts as alleged by District Attorney Dewey, then, to the ordinary man, the individuals and corporations who bribed the judge would appear equally guilty and should be prosecuted with equal vigor. If there is a more deadly way of affecting the public interest than the corruption of the judiciary, it is not easy to specify what it is.

* * *

If there is no other way of punishing them, the individuals and corporations which attempt that sort of thing at least should be made to feel the lash of public scorn. Mr. Dewey asserts that Judge Manton received from agents of one firm—the Dictograph Products Corporation—$52,000 while its appeal was pending in Judge Manton's court; that he received $232,000 from agents of the American Tobacco Company while a suit in which it was involved was being heard by Judge Manton; that he received $57,500 from a Brooklyn banker, John L. Lotsch, prior to a favorable verdict for Mr. Lotsch on an extortion charge; that he received $50,000 from Harry M. Warner, of Warner Bros. Pictures before a decision favorable to them in Judge Manton's court in a patent case.

* * *

It is said that Judge Manton's resignation, which was announced by the Department of Justice and accelerated by the President, will not shut off the investigation. Apparently he cannot now be impeached and there is doubt whether by reason of the time limitations, he can be proceeded against criminally. Perhaps the same thing applies to those who did the bribing. But at least in so serious an offense all the facts should be brought out and, if the evidence proves the charges, the country is entitled to know beyond doubt not only that the judge was bribed but who did the bribing. There should be no such thing as closing up this case until the whole business has been completely sifted.

* * *

It is certainly vital that no judge whose personal integrity is seriously questioned should remain on the bench, but it is equally vital that those who conspired to corrupt him—however willing he may have been to be corrupted—should be so arraigned, exposed and condemned as to make such things so painfully unprofitable that they will not occur again. In other words, no matter what happens to the judge in question, the companies, lawyers, agents and representatives who connived in what, if Mr. Dewey's charges are proved, is a particularly sinister business, in that it strikes at the basic belief of the people in the justice and probity of their courts—these should not be permitted to escape unscathed.

* * *

Two years ago the people of the country generally were deeply stirred and profoundly resentful of the effort of the President of the United States to dominate the Supreme Court by packing that body with creatures of his own selection. They were right to be stirred and completely justified in their resentment. However, there seems every reason why the same people should feel the same way about men and corporations charged with giving large sums of money to a judge before whom their case was being tried.

* * *

Bad as packing a court may be, buying a judge is considerably worse. There is no excuse for those who became excited about the first remaining calm about the second. That it is a lower court and a single judge does not affect the essential facts. At least there was no question of financial crookedness about the packing. In the light of the Dewey charges, one would think that if there is an explanation or defense, the individuals and corporations mentioned by the District Attorney in this case would be anxious to present it fully to the public. They would not want to rest under this kind of a charge a minute.

HOLDING THE RUNAWAY

LOOKING FORWARD

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Publicity Director, Republican National Committee

In the month which has elapsed since Congress convened it has become crystal clear that President Roosevelt has no intention of abandoning any of the New Deal policies or tendencies which the voters of this country found objectionable last November. On the contrary, Mr. Roosevelt appears determined to ignore the public sentiment registered in the November election and to continue resolutely on the course he has been pursuing.

First and foremost, of course, is the New Deal spending policy. In both his message to Congress and in his budget message, Mr. Roosevelt plainly indicated he has no desire to curb spending. Indeed, for the first time, he abandoned in those two documents all pretense of even seeking a balanced budget. On similar occasions previously Mr. Roosevelt at least has given lip service to the necessity of a balanced budget.

Just Economic Eye-Wash

But now he jeers at "a few million dollars saved here or there." He sends to Congress a budget demanding appropriation of almost 10 billion dollars, a sum larger than has ever been requested on any occasion in our peacetime history. The fact that we are getting deeper and deeper into debt is glossed over with talk about such indebtedness being a "Federal investment" and with similar economic eye-wash coined by the group of little thinkers now directing the Washington Administration.

When Congress, led by seriously-disturbed members of the President's own party, undertook to do a little judicious paring of appropriations, commencing with the deficiency relief bill, Mr. Roosevelt set out to obstruct such action. Not only did he seek to marshall public opinion against the movement, but he acquiesced in efforts to "put the heat on Senators" made by persons in his Administration and through WPA.

Appointments Show Attitude

As significant of the President's attitude as his view toward spending are the appointments he has made during the last month. If anything can be said with certainty about the November election, it is that the outcome represented a stunning rebuke to the New Deal for its administration of relief, particularly for the flagrant playing of politics with relief funds.

Irrespective of the goodness of his heart or his subsequent repentance, the fact remains that Harry Hopkins, as its administrative head, was responsible for WPA. Either he was ignorant of what was happening or he condoned it. Actually, not only did Mr. Hopkins know what was happening but he encouraged, by word and deed, playing politics with relief. He set the example. So in some twenty states the people last November repudiated Mr. Hopkins' administration of Federal relief.

Does Mr. Roosevelt bow to the mandate of the people and retire Mr. Hopkins to private life? He does not. He places the laurel wreath of approval on him by promoting him into the Cabinet. He makes him Secretary of Commerce, the man whose function it is to encourage business. Thus a premium is placed on actions abhorrent to millions of Americans as politically immoral. Thus a man discredit in one field of endeavor is honored in another.

Hopkins Symbolizes New Deal

This much at least has been gained: we shall have no more of Mr. Hopkins in relief. What a price is being paid for that bit of progress! If Mr. Roosevelt had set out to do the thing which would do most to discourage and dishearten business, he could not have done better than name Mr. Hopkins Secretary of Commerce. This is true because Mr. Hopkins symbolizes in his personality and his past record all that is objectionable in the New Deal, even down to the fact that at one time he was a registered member of the Socialist Party in New York City. A former Socialist, a visionary whose entire life has been spent in social work, the greatest spender of all time, guiding American business back to recovery! It would be highly humorous if it were not so tragic.

And then Frank Murphy as Attorney General! The people of Michigan voted Mr. Murphy out of their Governor's chair because they believed he had condoned lawlessness on the occasion of sit-down strikes. At least that was the major issue in his campaign. So Mr. Murphy is named the chief law officer of the Federal Government, despite the fact that his experience as a practicing lawyer would not qualify him to represent a third-rate corporation. How encouraging that appointment must have been to the young men throughout the nation now preparing for careers as lawyers!

Yet in the face of a subsequent appointment by President Roosevelt, the naming of Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Murphy shine with virtue. But as they are, they cannot be compared with the nomination of the left-wing Wisconsin Progressive, Thomas R. Amlie, as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. In making that appointment Mr. Roosevelt demonstrated he has no regard whatever for the preservation of our basic economic system or the American way of life.

Too Radical For LaFollettes

Mr. Amlie is too radical for the LaFollettes. They and their followers rejected his candidacy for the Senate last summer. And no wonder! For Mr. Amlie is not only an advocaet of public ownership of railroads, he is an avowed advocate of the overthrow of the American economic system. He does not believe in trying to make it work—he does not think it is worth making work.

"Under the course that we must follow capitalism cannot be saved," he declared to a Farmer-Labor Political Federation Convention, and then added: "Whether capitailism could be kept going for another period of years or not, is not worth saving."

Such is the man Mr. Roosevelt has named to have a hand in the regulation of the railroads. If he is sincere—and none disputes that—he will undertake from the influential post to which he has been named to do everything within his power to prevent rehabilitation of the railroads under private ownership. He will strive to bring about public ownership as quickly as possible. He will do more. He will seek to destroy the present capitalistic system in America—because, as he says, "it is not worth saving."

MT. LAKE PARK

Homemakers' Club

The Mountain Lake Homemakers' club met last Thursday afternoon in the U. B. Aid hall. Fourteen members were present. The roll call was "A business practice used." A demonstration presented by Miss Mildred Barton, followed. This demonstration was called "Business Center in the Home." At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

A few days previous to the meeting the club lost one of its most loved members—Mrs. Blanche Moon, wife of Mr. Mark Moon. She will be greatly missed in this community group.

Keep Your Doors Locked

It would not be a bad idea to keep your doors locked these days. Mountain Lake Park has suddenly become most popular as a "stop-over" for the "gents" who ride the rods, or freight trains. Some are deserving, while others may prove to be bad customers. An investigation is being made to see just where and how near their "jungle" may be. If it is anywhere near here they are due for a surprise party from local officials.

Self-Help School To Reopen

With a splendid group of business men taking charge, the Self-Help University begins to shape up pretty well. Several of the former students are back and plans are being formulated to open the school on March 6. Mountain Lake and Loch Lynn are responsible for four of this group of business men. They are Mayor H. M. Weeks, D. M. Reed and W. Blair Simmons, of Loch Lynn, and C. G. Gnegy, of the Park. Once again the people are gathering their hopes up and wishing that it may be a success. We really believe it will be. After all, Rome was not built in a day.

Frostburg State Quint Boasts Pair of Topnotch Scholars

Patrick Rice and Max Nordeck, members of Frostburg State's current basketball team, are two current outstanding local contributions of the old adage that thick skulls and exceptional sports ability are synonymous.

Both Rice and Nordeck are juniors at the "Mountain City" college and are participating in basketball for their third consecutive year. Both have seen regular service for three years, Rice at forward, and Nordeck at one of the guard posts.

At the present time Rice is the leading scorer of the team with an average closely approximating twenty points per game. He is not a large boy, this Rice, standing about 5 feet 11 inches and weighing approximately 150 pounds, but enthusiastic followers of the Statesmen will talk for a long time of his fighting spirit and peculiarly outstanding in both Potomac State games. He scored over twenty points against the Catamounts at Frostburg when the invaders fell before the Statesmen "oratory" and repeated his splendid exhibition at Keyser.

Nordeck has much in common with Rice. Like the latter he hails from Oakland, having played with Rice on the Oakland High school team for several years. Maxie, as he is better known to fans, is recognized as being the "fightinest" little ball player ever to appear on the Frostburg court. Standing only five feet six or seven inches and weighing approximately 140 pounds, he has nevertheless brought spectators to their feet time and time again with his inspirational playing.

The all-around ability of these two was recognized early in their freshman year by members of Iota Alpha Sigma Fraternity, and accordingly they were initiated into the Brotherhood during their first year at State. They have maintained and exceeded the standards requisite to continued membership each year and at the present time are officers of the organization, which is the only State Teachers College Fraternity in Maryland. Both have held responsible positions as student leaders, Nordeck, for example, having served as president of his class.

COUNTY-WIDE SPORTSMEN COMPLETE ORGANIZATION

Form A Garrett County Sportsmen's Association To Promote Conservation With High Ideals

OPEN MEETING IS CALLED

With the object in view of promoting conservation in this county by having a strong organization with high ideals, about twenty-five sportsmen from all sections of the county, representing approximately 500 interested individuals, met Monday evening in the City Hall, Oakland, and completed the formation of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association.

Objects Outlined

As outlined in the constitution, the objects of the Association are: to help create a more sportsmanlike attitude toward our wildlife; to promote a more friendly relationship between land owners and sportsmen; to procure the enactment of suitable laws for protection of game and fish and the preservation of natural resources; to promote the vigorous enforcement of fish and game laws; and to encourage and assist in the restocking program of the Commission.

Membership

Membership in the organization is to be limited to true sportsmen, either residents of the county or those eligible to procure non-resident land owners' hunting licenes in this county, and to the youth of the various clubs through their regularly elected representatives.

All who desire to become members will be required to sign an application in which they agree to abide by all laws and regulations of the State and Commission and to see that every other person does the same; they also agree to consider themselves as honorary game wardens to the extent that they will assist in making arrests and in prosecution of offenders of the game and fish laws; they agree to respect the rights of land owners and farmers and to procure permission before hunting or fishing on posted lands; and finally to cooperate with the officers and executive committee of the organization in carrying out the program of the association.

Officers Elected

Officers chosen included H. C. Riggs, Oakland, president; Earl Guard, Friendsville, vice-president; L. W. Cook, Loch Lynu Heights, recording sec'y; W. E. Tarbell, Grantsville, financial secretary; Logan Weber, of Oakland, treasurer.

The governing body is to be an executive committee of ten members, composed of the following in addition to the president and vice-president: Edgar Smith, Loch Lynn; Josiah G. Friend, Swanton; William R. Browning, Oakland; W. W. Welling, Mountain Lake Park; William Winterberg, Grantsville; Lester Yutzy, Crellin; R. D. Houck, Oakland; Richard Ryan, Kempton; Jesse Walker, Kitzmiller, and Earl Harvey, of Green Glade.

The executive committee will meet as often as deemed desirable or upon petition of fifteen members. The association will meet annually the last Monday in August, at which time officers and the committee will be elected. The present officers will serve until August 28, 1939.

Provides For Branches

The constitution of the association provides that whenever twenty-five or more members, residing in a community decide to form a more compact group they may petition the executive committee to be constituted a branch of the parent organization.

Mr. Riggs said it was not the thought of the organizers to supplant any existing clubs or organizations, and that it was believed there would be the fullest cooperation and friendship with such other groups. "It is hoped, however," he said, that such clubs or groups which have similar objectives and ideals may eventually be merged into the one association. It is felt that this organization will fill a long-felt want in the county and may be instrumental in making Garrett county a future sportsmen's paradise."

Dues Outlined

Annual dues are to be one dollar, except for representatives of the youth organizations, who are not required to pay dues. They will, however, enjoy the full privilege of membership.

Dues up to August 28 are to be 50 cents, amount to accompany application. The sponsors pointed out that it was not a money-making scheme, but that there were small items of expense which must be met through joint contributions.

Open Meeting Called

An open meeting will be held next Monday evening in the City Hall, Oakland, to discuss legislation, and all interested sportsmen are invited to attend.

More Farmers Get Checks For Conservation Practices

Payments to Garrett county farmers carrying out conservation practices on their farms in the county have increased this week to $33,935.39. This sum has been distributed to 845 farmers. The first lot of checks were received on February 8, and since that time more have been coming in each week.

County Agent John H. Carter said that about 300 more checks, amounting to approximately $15,000, were still to be received. The payments are for farmers who signed up last year in the Federal and State conservation program.

Another group of checks was received at the office of the county agent yesterday. There were 64 checks received totaling $1,383.72.

O. H. S. PARENT-TEACHERS' MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Robert W. Sheckells Wins Question Bee Among Fathers-Mothers

Approximately one hundred twenty-five persons attended the Parent-Teachers' Association meeting Tuesday evening in the High school auditorium and heard questions and answers concerning the life of George Washington. Some of the questions were answered correctly and some were unanswerel as four fathers and four mothers vied for honors in a question bee.

The meeting was held in observance of George Washington's birthday and the entire program was concerning the life and history of the first President.

Fathers and mothers participating in the question bee were Dr. W. W. Grant, Robert W. Sheckells, Frank Kley and Scott W. Shirer; Mrs. W. B. Brock, Mrs. Arthur Naylor, Mrs. DeWitt, of Sunnyside, and Mrs. Joseph Sweitzer, of Loch Lynn, a grandmother.

Forty questions were propounded by Grover C. Stemple, acting as "Professor Quiz," and the prize went to Mr. Sheckells with a perfect score of 500. The association presented as a prize a popular and well-known picture of George Washington (a dollar bill) which Mr. Sheckells accepted and then turned it over to the High school athletic department. A prize of some George Washington coffee was presented to Mrs. Mary Crowe, of near Oakland, for submitting the best set of questions.

Discuss Bond Issue

Following the question bee there was a discussion on the probability of a bond issue for schools in various parts of the county, the places mentioned as needing school buildings badly being Accident, Bloomington, Oakland. It was also stated that the Grantsville school was already becoming overcrowded. Officers of the association stated a meeting would be called in the near future to further discuss this question, when speakers both for and against the proposition would be present. Parents were urged to attend. It is planned to hold the meeting soon so that a suitable bill could be prepared and introduced at the present session of the General Assembly if the concensus of opinion as expressed at the meeting favored such legislation.

Members of the High school glee club presented a skit, "The Spirit of '76", with Sue Sweitzer, Donald Chisholm, James Bell, James Darby and Harry Sanders participating. The orchestra of the school played and the glee club sang several selections.

Sufficient coffee for one hundred persons, donated to the association by the George Washington Coffee Company, was served by the girls of the Home Economics department of the school, along with cookies to each of the guests.

TWO YOUTHS OF ACCIDENT CAUGHT ROBBING GARAGE

Were Seen Taking Money From Cash Register at Frostburg

An attempted robbery at James Morton's garage in Frostburg was frustrated on Tuesday when Robert Clayton Rush, Frostburg, caught Robert Rush and Hubert Sebold, of Accident, Garrett county, in the act of removing the money from the cash register, according to information of the Frostburg police.

According to Mr. Morton, the young men, 19 and 21, had brought a car in the garage for repairs about noon. Mrs. John Barry, employed in the office, left for lunch, when the pair, it is alleged, entered the office and rang up two large sales to open the register. Rush, an employe in the garage, saw the men taking the money from the cash register and called Chief of Police Benjamin H. Thomas, who made the arrests.

According to evidence, the youths, when they heard Rush coming, attempted to replace the currency but did not have time to get the silver back. They had about $8 in silver from the register.

They were given a hearing before Magistrate Anthony Harvey in the Peoples court and sentenced to three months in the Maryland House of Correction, but sentence was suspended.

A Robert Rush is one of those being held on bond for his appearanee before the March Term of court on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses from the Comptroller of Maryland, on fake claims for gas tax refunds. Whether or not this is the same Robert Rush is not known, but the Robert Rush under bond from this county, is from Accident also.

SELF-HELP SCHOOL WILL OPEN MONDAY, MARCH 6TH

Students Notified To Report At That Time; Meeting Feb. 28

Students of the Self Help school at Mt. Lake Park have been notified that the school will reopen for the spring term on March 6.

The executive committee has been meeting weekly to discuss problems, plan a budget and ways of meeting the budget. The committee reported that the business interests of the school were to be managed carefully and efficiently.

It was announced that efforts were being made to revive and enlarge the Gideon band, which now numbers about 140 members who pledge one dollar each month to provide a substantial item toward the expenses. At the next Patron's Association meeting on February 28, there will be a number of five-minute topics given, including "Farm and Garden Possibilities," by D. L. Reed; "Poultry Possibilities," by Blair Simmons, and "Entertainment Possibilities," by Rev. Harold Gamblin. Dean Webster will explain the contract with the mission board, and C. C. Gnegy will give a summary of the first Self Help school and outline a friend to friend plan. KNIGHTS' SILVER JUBILEE ATTRACTS THREE HUNDRED

Distinguished Visitors Attend; Local Historical Data Is Given

A review of local Pythianism thru a half century was recalled to more than 300 persons last Friday night when members of the local lodge, Garrett, No. 113, and their wives assembled in Castle Hall for the silver anniversary of the founding of the organization in Garrett county and the diamond anniversary of the founding of the parent order.

Distinguished visitors were present from the Grand Lodge of Maryland, including Edward M. Akers, grand chancellor; C. Thomas Summers, supreme representative, of Frederick, and Julius Schindler, grand vice-chancellor, of Cumberland.

The principal address of the evening was made by E. Ray Jones, who imparted much historical data in connection with the progress of the local organization since its inception in 1889. A huge basket of flowers was sent from the lodge room that evening to Dr. Henry W. McComas, the only surviving charter member of Garrett lodge, who is critically ill at his home at the north edge of town.

Grover C. Stemple presented 25-year jewels to Melvin E. Lee and R. R. Gilbert. Mr. Gilbert responded for the veterans. Jacob S. Meyers, another 25-year voteran, was not present but will receive his jewel at Columbus, Ohio, where he now resides.

Walter W. Dawson was in charge of the program, which included also vocal selections by Arthur Martini and music and specialty numbers by the Kerins orchestra. Favors, of bookends, were presented to all ladies present and commemorative coins were given to members of the lodge. As a door prize, Paul DeWitt was presented with a counterpane.

Refreshments of ice cream, containing the Pythian emblem, and cake cut from a huge birthday cake baked for the occasion, were served by members of the Pythian Sisters.

School Officials To Attend National Convention

Walter W. Dawson, president of the Board of Education of this county, and F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools, will leave this week-end for Cleveland, Ohio, to attend the 69th annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators, which will be held in that city. This association is a department of the National Education Association of the United States and will be in session from February 25 to March 2. The theme of the convention will be "The Foundations of American Education", and the program will center around the development of that phase of the public school system of the nation. Many of the most prominent leaders in education of the country and leaders also in the current political thought, will be present and address the convention. Quite a number of round tables and panel discussions will be conducted, in which ample opportunity is given for free and open expressions of opinions from different sections of the country. The textbook written for the convention, as a contribution to the educational literature of 1939, is entitled "Schools in Small Communities", this publication being the yearbook of the association. Many features of the convention will be broadcast over the three principal networks.

Farmers May Make Application For 1939 Crop Loan Now

Applications for emergency crop and feed loans for 1939 are now available. The loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain credit from any other source, according to G. T. Umbarger, field supervisor. The money loaned will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1939 crops or for the purchase of feed for livestock.

Mr. Umbarger will be in the office of the County Agent ,Court House, on Thursday, March 2, and Thursday, March 16, from 9 to 4, when farmers who desire to make application for the loans should arrange to meet him.

Union Lenten Service

Union Lenten Services will be held next Wednesday evening, March 1, in St. Paul's Methodist church, Oakland. Rev. David C. Trimble will preach upon the second sentence of the Lord's Prayer, "Hallowed Be Thy Name."

Prominent Clubwoman To Visit With Civic Club Next Week

A visit from Mrs. Harry L. Harcum ,president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, will feature the next regular meeting of the Oakland Civic Club, which will be held on Wednesday, March 1, in the home economics building of the High school, and will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Harcum, of Salisbury, is making a visit to a number of the clubs in Western Maryland during that week.

A program on legislation has been arranged by the local committee, which will be presented in connection with a tea, to be served by the home economics girls. The executive committee of the club will entertain at dinner for Mrs. Harcum previous to the meeting.

Members of the Civic Club and their friends or anyone interested in the club's activities are being requested to attend.

WANTS MAPLE SYRUP AND SUGAR INDUSTRY BOOSTED

Federal Representative Coming Early in March for Conferences

Plans are being made to stimulate the maple syrup and sugar industry in the Youghiogheny watershed, according to John H. Carter, county agent, who received a letter from M. T. Augustine, of the Department of Agriculture Flood Control Survey.

Mr. Augustine will be in Garrett county during the early part of March to talk over the problem with Mr. Carter and also to hold conferences with the producers themselves.

Data will be collected concerning the general condition of the sugar trees and the cost of production from which plans may be developed to inject new life into the industry.

Mr. Augustine reported the outlook was hopeful for the establishment of the area as a leader in maple syrup production, especially in view of reports that a substantial part of New England's sugar orchards had been damaged by last fall's destructive hurricane.

This area through Garrett county, and in Somerset county, Pa., long famous for its maple syrup and sugar, now sold in many parts of the United States, provides an annual income amply justifying continuation of the industry, Mr. Augustine said. In this area the sale of sugar and syrup yielded approximately $200,000, or an average of $250 per farm producer.

Since 1930, however, the output is said to be decreasing due to decadency of the present stand and to the cutting of the maple trees for lumber. Grazing has, in most cases, prevented natural regeneration and made transplanting impracticable. Thus most of the sugar trees are old ones and in many cases are "stag-headed," which indicates that they will soon die.

Patriotic Sing Being Held This Evening At Mt. Lake Park

A patriotic sing is being held this evening, from 7:30 to 9 o'clock at the Mt. Lake Park Methodist church. The program is being presented by children of the Mt. Lake Park school under the sponsorship of the Women's Bible Class, and is being directed by Miss Sara B. Huff. Forty-five flags which led to the making of the American flag of today will be displayed in pageantry.

This program is a presentation study in civics, history and music worked out as a school study by Mason Callis, teacher in the Mt. Lake Park school, and Miss Huff, and is given by the students of the upper grades. "George and Martha Washington" will participate.

A silver offering will be taken.

Local A. & P. Employes Receive $204 In Bonuses Today

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company clerks in Oakland today were being distributed bonus checks totaling $204.

V. B. Kelley, local manager, who was disbursing the reward for services rendered to the company during 1938, said that the checks mark the first time local employes have received a direct yearly bonus.

All employes who worked more than four weeks during the year were recipients of the money. Maximum given out was $52. The checks were received this morning from office headquarters in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Recipients were Minnie Sisk, Fred Helbig, Leroy Stewart, Harry Stemple, Jr., and Roger Maroney.

PUBLIC AID CLIENTS ARE STILL WITHOUT FUNDS

Old Age Pensioners and GPA Cases Who Seek Their Checks Are Turned Away By Board

COMMODITIES GIVEN OUT

A steady stream of old-age pensioners and general public assistant clients have been turned away daily from the Garrett County Welfare Board's office during the past week as funds for distribution to them are still tied up.

Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the board, said there had been no change in the situation since last week, which tied up Garrett county's share of relief funds and automatically kept her from disbursing available State money.

No Funds Available

No money is available in the county treasury to pay the local share of relief costs and Miss Miller has been unable to get a $3,700 county order cashed.

Bill Ready For Introduction

County Commissioners G. Blaine Giessman and Cheston H. Browning said yesterday that a bill had been prepared and was ready for introduction in the Legislature which would authorize the County Commissioners to borrow money for county purposes on the 1939 levy, which, if passed, would remedy the situation now existing.

The bill would authorize them to borrow a sum not exceeding one-third of the total amount of taxes levied to enable them to take care of all proper expenses until funds collected by the County Treasurer from the tax levy of that year shall be sufficient in amount for that purpose.

The bill allows an interest rate not exceeding 3 per cent, except should it ever become necessary to pay a higher rate that the Commissioners obtain the written consent of the Circuit Court to pay such higher rate.

All sums borrowed would be turned over to the County Treasurer, and would be released by warrants of the County Commissioners.

Heretofore the County Commissioners have never had authority to pay interest on county orders, although it had been the custom for a number of years, and since their attorney declared it illegal for them to do so, banks and individuals who formerly accepted county orders have refused to accept more of them.

Taxes on the 1939 levy will not be paid in any great amounts before June 1.

Commodities Distributed

In the meantime the old-age pensioners and general public assistance cases are without funds.

Miss Miller stated that surplus food commodities were still being distributed and that these had helped to allay any suffering that might result from the lack of funds.

Appoint Attorney

The County Commissioners, at their meeting this week, appointed Benny F. Epstein, of Grantsville, as their attorney. Julius Renninger, Jr., former attorney, resigned his position two weeks ago.

A delegation from Barnum appeared before the Commissioners on Tuesday about opening the bridge across the Potomac which had been condemned by the State Roads Commission. There was also a road delegation from Cove.

County Man Killed When Struck By Engine Near Shaw, W. Va.

Harold T. Watts, 29, residing on the Garrett county side of the Potomac river, near Shaw, W. Va., was instantly killed Saturday night at 8:30, when struck by a Western Maryland Railway eastbound engine.

Watts, a Western Maryland trackman, was walking along the right-of-way when struck. His body was badly mangled.

The engineer reported the engine was traveling at a moderate speed and he did not see Watts. It was not known what Watts was doing on the tracks at that time of the night.

Legion Favors Irvin Rudy

A resolution setting forth the qualifications of Irvin R. Rudy as postmaster for Oakland and urging Congressman William D. Byron, U. S. Senator Millard E. Tydings, and U. S. Senator George Radcliffe to favor Mr. Rudy's appointment to that office, was unanimously adopted at a meeting of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion last night.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

Did you ever wonder why there were stars in the American flag? There is a star for every state in the union and there are forty-eight states, of course, but that doesn't explain why those who made the flag decided to use stars to represent each state.

The answer is given in a story in "This Week Magazine," and coming as it does around the celebration of the birth of George Washington a symbol of American ideals, it is of unusual interest at the moment.

The explanation was found in a book on "The Flag of the United States, its History and Symbolism," by Col. James A. Moss.

"The reason why our forefathers placed stars in our National Emblem is given in the Congressional Act of June 14, 1777, which adopted the Flag and which prescribed, 'that the Union be thirteen stars in a blue field representing a new constellation' symbolizing stars in the heavens—signaling to mankind the birth of the first nation on earth dedicated to personal and religious liberty; a sanctuary to which men and women the world over, oppressed because of religious and other beliefs, might take refuge and enjoy Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

Tibetan Salute

In Tibet, when one man greets another, it goes beyond the mere shaking of hands, we are told in a little pamphlet, Silver Lining, coming to this office.

A Tibetan bows, extends both hands palms open and sticks out his tongue! This means that he is a friend. He has no knives in his hands and no evil words on his tongue!

Few of us go about with knives in our hands, but many of us have words as sharp as knives on our tongues. With those words we can say cutting things which make others unhappy, discouraged, fearful. We can ruin careers, set man against man, create jealousies and destroy as viciously as a soldier with a sword.

Perhaps it would be better if we practiced the Tibetan idea. If we would learn to speak well of others or remain silent, if we would refrain from intolerant, bitter and unkind remarks what a changed world this would be.

Of course, we'd have to be careful about sticking out one's tongue in America. We wouldn't want people to think we were giving them the Bronx Cheer. But we can follow the Tibetan idea of disarming our tongues without showing them, and that's all that counts.

GRANTSVILLE

Baltimore Organist Here Friday

The Lutheran church will sponsor a "music festival" this Friday, February 21, at 7:45 p. m. in the Grantsville school auditorium. An organ recital by John H. Elterman, of Baltimore, will feature along with music by the Meyersdale (Pa.) High school band, which will give a street parade preceding the program if weather conditions permit. An electric Hammond organ, from the Charles M. Steiff Co., Baltimore, will be used and may be purchased by the Lutheran congregation.

Mr. Elterman, who will preside at the console, has been prominent in the musical life of Baltimore City. At 16 his career started an organist of the Fulton Avenue U. B. church, becoming choirmaster the following year. Since then he has held responsible positions in the field of music throughout the city, being for several years staff at WBAL. He was solo organist at the Century theatre, Baltimore, which together with his radio programs, created an enviable following. Tickets may be secured from any member of the Helping Hand class of the Lutheran Sunday school at 15 and 35 cents.

Following the recital Friday night, the organ will be installed in the local Lutheran church for the 11 o'clock worship service Sunday morning. Joseph Darrah, organist of Meyersdale, Pa., will play the prelude and Mrs. Harold Miller, church organist, will be at the console for the service proper.

Visiting Church Teams to Play Locals

Two visiting church basketball quints are scheduled to meet teams in the Grantsville Inter-Church school recreation league here in the high school gym Saturday night at 7:30 p. m. St. John's Lutheran, of Cumberland, will oppose the local Lutheran five and Salem Reformed, of Frostburg, will tackle the Grantsville Reformed outfit.

Reformed basketeers blanked the Lutherans 16-0, and Catholic defeated the Methodist five 17-9 in the Grantsville League boys' game Wednesday night.

G.H.S. Boys Defeat Two Rivals

Grantsville High cagers defeated the Elk Garden Hi quint 27-23 here Thursday night in a last minute rally. Grantsville led 13-6 at the half and 22-13 at the close of the third stanza. The West Virginians rallied in the last canto to tie the score 23-23, but Grantsville added two more baskets just before the finish to win the game. Rodney Patton, with 14 points, and Wayne Durst, with 11, again starred for Grantsville.

In the other game of the twin bill, an Alumnae sextet nosed out the Green and Gold lassies 34-33.

The Grads led throughout.

The local quint defeated St. Peter's High school, of Westernport, 28-25 on the local court Tuesday night in their fifth straight victory. The first half was decidedly Grantsville's, but the visitors furnished stiff competition in the remainder.

A novelty costume array, "The Wheel of American Fashion," was given with styles of fourteen periods shown in rapid succession, interspersed with group singing representative of the date specified. Dating back to 1776 with Mary Turner as Martha Washington and Herman Broadwater as George Washington, students portrayed the different manners of dress down to the present day.

"SAVE YOUR VISION WEEK" BEING OBSERVED

This week, thousands of schools in all parts of the United States will unite in observing "Save Your Vision Week." A more appropriate time could not be found. Mid-year examinations have just been completed. With the beginning of the new school semester, children will be called upon constantly to put their eyes to the work of gathering new facts—at school and at home.

Out of the 30 million youngsters in public, private and parochiel schools today, more than six million are handicapped by poor vision. The real tragery of this condition is that at least five million may continue to suffer from uncorrected defects because of neglect or ignorance.

Ofter parents and the children themselves are unaware of any visual faults—faults which retard their normal progress in studies, exhause their vitality, and scriously strain their nervous systems. Many times a problem child is really suffering from eyestrain. Yet, if nothing is done to relieve him, his personality and his very outlook on life may become disastrously warped.

Unlike the teeth, which warn thru pain when something is wrong, the eyes can suffer much before it is possible to recognize they are in trouble, and then they may be permanently injured.

The eyes of a child are his most precious possession. They should be protected. Give your child a fair chance for success by having his eyes examined regularly by an eye specialist and give your child approved light by which to study and play. If you do these things, your child will not be handicapped by poor vision in years to come.

Another Letter To The Editor Takes Sides With Predatory Animals, Notwithstanding The Fact That They Are Being Warred On By Folks Who A-Hunting Go.

To the Editor of The Republican.

We need all the fowls and animals protected if we make Garrett county what it ought to be. Sometimes I ponder what would be the spirit of the old pioneers like Meshack Browning and Solomon Sines and others if the county would have paid to their intruders a bounty to destroy their game.

They loved the woods and all it contained. From it came their meat and sport. They believed in a God that made the woods and filled it with divers kind of game for them. They loved to pursue it and used their skill to get what they needed. They did not blame their God because there were divers kinds of beasts in the same woods, for every one of them had a chance to run.

At that time there was some game that we do not have now—the turkey and the passenger pigeon and others. Who destroyed the turkey, the birds and other game that is gone? Did the fox? The wesel? The mink? The coon-The cat? The otter? The muskrat? The catamount? The panther? No! Let us be honest. Who did? The man who had no heart. I know a lot of you will say yes. Then let us put the bounty on the guilty one. Will you think it over?

SAM LEWIS.

Oakland, February 14, 1939.

And Now There Seems To Be A Rift In The Ranks of Garrett County Sportmen Over A Proposed Law Having To Do With Predatory Animals.

Sang Run, Md., Feb. 18, 1939.

To the Editor of The Republican.

In behalf of the Garrett county sportsmen I would like to comment on an amazing and perhaps, amusing, article written by Mr. Sam Lewis and published in the February 9 issue of The Republican.

In Mr. Lewis' brief column he states or rather points out, that our predatory animals should be protected because they are useful; an asset; and that no bounty should be placed upon them.

Surely any sportsman would willingly concede and emphatically assert that the devastating, rapacious traits of such pernicious creatures as the fox, the wildcat and the weasel, upon which a bounty should be placed, are not and never will be considered justly an asset to this or any county.

Why not? Because the value of the pelts of these fud-bearers are not sufficient to compensate for the damage they do each year. Our small game suffer reduced numbers annually, and the mere value of the furs does not to the hunter, mitigate the undoubted diminishing of the helpless game brought about by the cruel kills of these marauding animals.

The fox, regarded by all and respected if not admired, for his inimitable cunning, employs all his uncanny wit in preying upon rabbits (any age), quail, pheasant, squirrel, etc. He loves eggs, whether quail, pheasant or song bird, foxy is not particular. Nor is he graduated from an occasional invasion of a poultry yard. Undoubtedly Reynard feeds upon other things besides game, but presumably he concentrates his wily and keen senses upon our lesser game. In fact, it is evident that he incessantly vies with the sportsman. Is Reynard an asset? No!

The wideat, although less numerous than the fox, are even more relentless in the pursuit and destruction of our game. They are gradually growing in force and should be exterminated. They are great night hunters and their ruthless claws, combined with splendid, superbly developed muscles, and their implacable, surly nature makes even man, to a certain extent, fear them. He is prominent for his quick, lithe movements which serve him well in pouncing, from ambush oftimes, upon his prey. He devours his catch greedily, after the manner of his species. He is vicious and cruel and inhabits remote, isolated territory, preferably rocky. Is he an asset? No!

The weasel, inclined to prey upon moles, lesser birds, mice, etc., is however, a bloodthirsty little fellow, and his insignificant fur value does not warrant his being tolerated and termed an asset and as being useful. He is an intrepid rascal and once he has tasted the blood of his victim he is invariably reluctant in relinquishing his catch, even in the face of death. He loves poultry and is capable of killing large fowl and animals many times his own weight. He is incredibly quick and precise in his movements..

The hawk, a member of the falcon family, and a bird of prey, is, I'm sure, of no benefit to man. He swoops down like a shadow and grasps his helpless quarry and as quietly as a phantom sails away to dine at the sportemen's expense.

Certainly with these four outstanding enemies of our small game at large and increasing rapidly, we should concede that the tactics, thru instinct, employed by these "famous four", are not conducive toward the promotion of "game in abundance for all."

To combat the perplexing problem that confronts us, let me say that a bounty would induce and encourage at least the partial eradication of these plundering game destroyers.

St. Paul's Church Receives Certificate In Fellowship Movement

A certificate of honor for having fulfilled its quota in the Million Unit Fellowship Movement has been awarded the St. Paul's Methodist church in Oakland, according to an announcement made by the Rev. W. S. Patterson, pastor. The local church is one of 926 churches, or about five per cent of the denomination's 20,000 congregations in the United States, which already have reached their goals.

Quotas for the individual churches were set when the movement, now in its third year, was inaugurated and were based on a communion-wide goal of 500,000 "units"—persons who will subscribe one dollar a month as well as undertake the spiritual obligations of the fellowship.

With the strengthening and deepening of the spiritual life of the Church as its chief objectives, the Million Unit Fellowship Movement is also endeavoring to secure a better underwriting of its missions and benevolences, known collectively as World Service. Thus far, the movement has added about three-quarters of a million dollars to the Church income for missions and benevolences.

ALLEGANY SEEKS BOND ISSUE FOR SAVAGE DAM

Allegany County Commissioners To Introduce Bill At Annapolis

The construction of the long-proposed Savage River Dam near Cumberland, appeared to have been advanced, after Representative William D. Byron, concluded a discussion of the status of the project with officials of Cumberland and Allegany county, on Monday.

Representative Byron announced that he had been informed that the County Commissioners of Allegany county are prepared to ask that a bill be introduced in the Legislature to authorize a county bond issue of $1,000,000 toward the construction of the project.

Confers With WPA

Representative Byron also announced he has held several conferences with officials of the Works Progress Administration and other Government agencies in an effort to speed up the project.

The Maryland Representative said he was hopeful that sponsors of the undertaking would continue to press the matter at this time with the hope that sponsors of the project would be in a position to meet the requirements of the WPA and to avoid further delay.

The chief engineer of the WPA in a communication to Representative Byron, cited that it would be necessary that approximately $1,000,000 be made available from some source other than funds which are allocated to the WPA, for use in the purchase of materials and rental of equipment.

"If this were done, the Works Progress Administration would be able to furnish the labor necessary for the construction of the dam, and execute the project," the letter stated.

Construction of the Savage River Dam is held essential to the satisfactory operation and further expansion of the Celanese plant near Cumberland, and will be of vital importance to numerous other industries in Cumberland and up and down the river.

The dam, which will impound water for release into the Potomac during dry seasons, will cost about $3,000,000, it is estimated. The dam would be constructed in Garrett county.

Oakland High Boys Lose Three During Week—Girls Win One

Oakland High school basketeers have received three set-backs during the week, at the hands of Rowlesburg, Bruce and St. Peter's High schools.

Rowlesburg defeated the locals on the Oakland court Saturday night 20 to 15, after trailing at the half 11 to 13. This was the fifteenth victory for the West Virginians.

Last Thursday night Bruce High, of Westernport, defeated the Oakland quint at Westernport 41-20. Bruce led all the way, 12-6, 23-11, and 33-15. Kley led the losers with 11 points. The Oakland girls' team, however, won over the Bruce High lassies 14 to 13. Oakland staged a second half rally to win after trailing 11-7 at the half.

St. Peter's High school at Piedmont nosed out a 25-22 victory on Monday night at Piedmont. The Oakland offensive started clicking as soon as the game got under way, scoring 6 points in the first period and 11 in the second while holding St. Peter's to ten points. Piedmont then eked out a close victory. Wolfe with 8 points and Sharps with 6, led the Oakland scoring.

Hobby Lobby Club Attracting Considerable Attention

The Hobby Lobby club, recently organized by the Sisters of Mercy at St. Peter's school, Oakland, has attracted considerable attention, according to Rev. Fr. William F. Sauer, pastor of the church. Letters have come to the sisters inquiring about methods and purpose of the club.

James K. Hall, Washington, D. C., recently addressed the children of the school on the subject of useful hobbies and methods of collecting articles for their exhibits, and as a result of his visit there has developed a Hobby-by-Mail club, members of which correspond with one another and exchange ideas regarding their hobbies. Each month a little paper, The Postmark, is issued and members are invited to contribute articles.

Schools registered include St. Peter's Oakland, 22 members; St. Paul's Academy, Washington, 50 members; St. Charles, Donora, Pa., 14 members.

Billy Watson, Los Angeles, is president for the year 1939, and Donald Browning, Oakland, is one of the four vice-presidents. Foster Mann, of Oakland, is national press correspondent.

New Trial Denied Insurance Company In Feld Suit

Associate Judge William A. Huster last Friday denied a motion for a new trial in the suit of F. H. Feld, Oakland merchant, against the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

A jury at the October term of the Circuit court in Allegany county had returned a verdict of $1,783 in favor of Feld. The amount was for disability benefits allegedly due Feld on three policies held with the company. The company had charged that Feld was actively engaged in business during the period he was allegedly disabled.

The motion for a new trial was made by Walter C. Capper and William S. Jenkins, attorneys for the insurance company. William A. Gunter, of Cumberland, and Walter W. Dawson and E. R. Jones, Oakland, were attorneys for Mr. Feld. Insurance company attorneys indicated that an appeal will be taken.

Older Youth Group Plans For Future Meetings

The Older Youth Club of Garrett county met in the office of the county agent on Friday, February 17. Representatives gave brief reports of their trip to the Farm Bureau meeting in Baltimore in January. Representatives were Miss Margaret DeWitt, Miss Jessie Guard, Robert DeWitt and Cecil Kight.

Officers were elected as follows: Jessie Guard, Friendsville, president; Cecil Kight, Sunnyside, vice-president; Mary Jane Porter, Oakland, secretary; Robert DeWitt, Accident, treasurer; Margaret Rowan, Oakland, reporter.

A committee was selected to prepare programs for the next six months. On the committee were Cecil Kight, chairman; George Porter, Ralph Kahl, Margaret Rowan, Robert DeWitt, Jessie Guard, Mary J. Porter.

Firemen Summoned

Firemen of the Oakland department were called yesterday about noon to the East End Garage where the driver's seat of a Ford of considerable age had become ignited, supposedly from a burning cigaret.

The Ford was of the Model T type with the gasoline tank under the seat. The fire was extinguished without much damage.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

This being the season for the opening of the so called "green bag" at the State's Capital, we are inclined to ramble a bit on the appointments which are to be announced Friday. Our first observation is that Garrett county will be quite definitely behind the eight ball when the major appointments are made. In short, Garrett shall be returned to political oblivion—that inconspicuous place she held during the sixteen year reign of the late Albert C. Ritchie. During the administration of Harry W. Nice several of our Garrett county citizens were selected to fill key positions which they filled very capably. There is little possibility that Governor O'Conor will go into the bounds of Garrett county when making his major appointments. It is altogether possible, however, that several men from neighboring Allegany will be awarded political plums. Don't be surprised if a prominent Cumberland physician should be named as head of the State Roads commission. At the moment Captain Edward McK. Johnson is reported to have the inside track to succeed Major Elmer Munshower as superintendent of State police. Charles LeViness, political ally and personal friend of Governor O'Conor, has been selected to head the Board of Liquor License Commissioners for Baltimore while H. H. Hackney has been named to the judgeship of the Juvenile Court of Baltimore, and Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee as judge of the juvenile court for Allegany county. The above appointments are meeting with popular approval on all sides and it is the general opinion that the Governor is off to a good start with his selections.

A bill which is likely to arouse the ire of the clergy was passed on Tuesday by the House and sent to the Senate. It is a one year divorce bill providing for final decrees after abandonment for twelve months. At present, abandonment for three years is necessary for final divorce.

Noticed a story last week which told of a slot machine being robbed in a local hotel, the story also stated that the machine was of the type that pays off in cash. We were of the opinion that machines of this type are illegal in Oakland as well as in the rest of the state. We might add that Police Commissioner Stanton of Baltimore has cleaned the one arm bandits out and the State's Attorney of Worcester county has organized a flying squadron for the same purpose.

Conservation in every way, shape and form has again become a major issue, or rather is still a major issue, with the oystermen from the Eastern Shore of Maryland fighting among themselves on every proposal. The most recent practical proposal is that there be two separate groups created—one to deal with the fish and game of Western Maryland while the other will be in charge of the food-fish territory. For Western Maryland this would be a desirable change for then we could let the shoremen squabble among themselves while a workable conservation plan could be adopted for the fish and game country.

Speaking of conservation and the Commission, a bill was introduced which will remove the license fee from all boats used on Deep Creek. This will take no revenue from the county as all fees collected under the old law went to the State.

Senator Friend has introduced a bill calling for the annual statement of the Garrett County Board of County Commissioners and the School Board to be itemized as to each particular item of receipt and expenditure, and state to whom paid or from whom received. The act also requires the report to show cash on hand at the beginning and at the end of each year and the total indebtedness. The purpose of the bill is to make it mandatory that the statements be explicit whereas the old act required only statements of receipts and expenditures. If this bill is passed it will be possible for the average taxpayer to read and understand at a glance the financial situation of the county instead of wondering what happens to certain set funds as is now the case.

The Bowman Report has met with much opposition in the past two weeks and it now appears that the administration will have more difficulty in putting the findings of the committee into law than was at first predicted.

This week has been broken up at Annapolis as elsewhere by the holiday in celebration of the birth of Washington and so with three big cheers for the Father of Our Country and Democracy we close for another week.

IN MEMORY OF
PAUL E. BRENNEMAN.

Who passed away one year ago, February 22, 1938, at Akron, Ohio.

It was just a year ago today
God took the one we loved away;
He took him to that land of gold
Where cares and sorrows are untold.
He placed him in His garden rare,
To bud and blossom forever there.
We have only your memory, dear Paul,
To treasure our whole life through,
But its sweetness will last forever
As we cherish our memory for you.

LEGISLATORS TURNING TO STATE RETAIL SALES TAX

Supporters Marshal Growing Forces Preparatory For Introduction Of Bill in Legislature

PREVIOUS FOES SWINGING

Retail sales tax advocates have marshaled their growing forces preparatory to introduction of several sales tax proposals in the Legislature during the week.

Mounting dissatisfaction with the Administration revenue proposals, cornerstone of which is a sharply increased state income tax, brought the sales tax proposals to the fore.

J. Milton Dick (R-Allegany) definitely announced that he was preparing a "no exemption" flat 2 per cent retail sales tax for Maryland. The bill will be introduced immediately upon completion this week.

Would Apply Portion To Realty Tax

Dick's proposal would give 25 per cent of the estimated $10,000,000 revenue from the sales tax to the counties on a pro rata basis, earmarked for the reduction on real estate levies in the several counties. This clause in the Dick measure was held certain to entice support from that bloc of the legislature committed to reduction of all property levies.

Jonathan Sleeman and Miss Elizabeth Doub, both Allegany county Republicans, also are considering submission of a retail sales tax, modeled on the successful Washington State sales tax law, with Maryland adaptations.

The Washington law imposes a two per cent tax on retail transactions, payable in tokens of 2-mill value. Mr. Sleeman said he was opposed to collection of the tax "to the nearest penny", pointing out that a penny tax on a 10-cent sale was actually a 10 per cent tax. Payment of the tax in tokens would keep payments at two per cent.

Buying Public Quickly Adjusted

Sleeman received information from Washington to indicate that the buying public quickly adjusts to the tokens. Sales tax payments on transactions of 50 cents or more would be made in pennies.

The operation of the Washington law also exploded the argument of border county merchants in Maryland that imposition of a sales tax would "drive trade out of the State," raised when a sales tax was suggested in 1935 and 1937, Sleeman said.

Washington's southern counties border Oregon, which has no sales tax, for 300 miles, but Washington border county merchants experienced no loss of business, Sleeman reported.

Baltimore Swings To Plan

The sales tax was not conceded an outside chance of passage when the current session opened, but the biggest development of the legislative week was the mounting sentiment favoring a sales levy. Baltimore Democrats, once among the most vociferous opponents of the proposal were gradually swinging to the sales tax standard.

The Senate Finance Committee announced plans for consideration of the Administration revenue proposals this week. Night sessions will be held until some report is prepared. Senator Dudley G. Roe (D-Queen Anne's), chairman of the Finance Committee, said the group might report on the O'Conor program Thursday.

Motor Re-Registration Draws Fire

The Administration proposal for re-registration of motor vehicle operators at a $2 fee 1940-41, is drawing hot fire from legislators and automotive interests. The Automobile Club of Maryland, the Automobile Trade Association and other groups have entered objections to the plan.

Amlie's Strange Backers

Washington, Feb. 18.

In a few days now Mr. Harry Hopkins will deliver the great speech upon which, collaborating with some of his big-business friends on and off the advisory council, he has been concentrating for weeks. It is expected to "reassure" industry generally and to "establish confidence" in Mr. Hapkins particularly.

* * *

Certainly a great deal of thought has been given to it, and large things are expected to flow. However, there is doubt whether Mr. Hopkins' honeyed words will obliterate altogether the Roosevelt deeds. For example, it is a little difficult to convince the ordinary business man of the Administration friendliness while there is still pending in the Senate the appointment by the President to the very important Interstate Commerce Commission of a man, admittedly opposed to the American system, whose views are too radical for the La Follettes and who has been publicly accused of being a Communist.

* * *

In this connection it is interesting to obtain some light upon the reasons for the Amlie selection. Frankly baffled as to why Mr. Roosevelt, uninstigated by his friends, the La Follettes, should go to Wisconsin to put on so vital a business board a lame-duck Congressman, of so pink a color, the whole Amlie business has been something of a mystery to friends as well as opponents. A solution was offered last week in a Washington dispatch to the New York Times, which asserted that Democratic circles were convinced that, in part at least, Mr. Amlie owed his appointment to Mrs. Roosevelt, whose influence had been enlisted for him by her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Williams.

* * *

To Mrs. Roosevelt also was credited the White House action hy which Miss Doris Stevens was summarily removed as United States member of the Inter-American Commission of Women and Miss Mary Winslow put in her place, to the great indignation of a good many people, including Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, sister of the Pennsylvania Senator. The dispatch further asserts that Mrs. Roosevelt backed Mr. J. Haden Aldrich, another Presidential appointment to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and its auther commented upon the "steadily rising tide of resentment over the influence exerted in patronage matters by Mrs. Roosevelt.

* * *

All this is very interesting if it is recalled that a few weeks ago, when the known facts concerning Mrs. Roosevelt's extraordinary literary and oratorical activities and the great income which they produce were mentioned, she made a plea that "I and my children be allowed to lead our normal lives." If the statement in the Times dispatch of February 18 concerning Mrs. Roosevelt's part in the naming of Amlie, Aldrich and Winslow are not true, then an injustice has been done her and should be corrected. On the other hand, if they are true and it was partly through her that the Amlie appointment—to say nothing of other appointments—was made, it is a little hard to reconcile this with the "normal" life of a President's wife and it is easy to understand the resentment reported in the Times.

* * *

It should be particularly interesting to Senators, who soon will have to vote on Mr. Amlie's name, to know that one of his backers is Mr. Aubrey Williams, once WPA assistant to Mr. Hopkins and now NYA administrator. Mr. Williams is the man whose inflammatory remarks to WPA workers got him denounced by a Senatorial committee and by newspapers generally. Mrs. Williams is also the man who expressed himself as regarding class warfare as not at all a bad thing; who described the moments he spends with his friend, Mr. David Lasser, as the "most memorable in my life"; who urged all WPA workers to join the Workers Alliance, a Communist-dominated organization, the purpose of which is to put pressure on the Government of which Mr. Williams is an agent.

* * *

Mr. Williams is a strange person, indeed, to be backing aspirants for the Interstate Commerce Commission. That is, he would be a strange person to have influence of this sort in any other administration. In any event, it will be agreed that Mr. Williams would naturally think Mr. Amlie a good man for this place. Knowledge of his personal interest in Mr. Amlie ought to help the Senate in judging the latter's fitness for the high post for which he is proposed. It is not thought likely that Mr. Hopkins will touch on Mr. Amlie and his backers in the great "reassurance" speech.

LOOKING FORWARD

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Publicity Director, Republican National Committee

Of the many strange things happening in Washington, the strangest of all is the fact that one after another of President Roosevelt's appointees recently have found it necessary to defend his fidelity to the American system of life and economy.

In days gone by it was generally assumed that when a man was named to a responsible Federal office he was an American, believed in American institutions and the American way of doing things and that he subscribed without reservations of any kind to the Constitution. None ever thought of questioning an appointee about such matters.

But now we have the strange spectacle of men named to high office being required to defend their Americanism against doubts raised by their past records. Such defenses are put forth as though they were all that need be said in behalf of the qualifications for office.

Claim They Are Americans

Thus we have Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins squirming about, protesting that he is in favor of the profit system (which means our present economic system) and that he is not a Socialist, though once registered as a member of that party. We have Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins insisting before a House Committee that she is a good American. We have Felix Frankfurter dramatically telling a Senate Committee inquiring into his appointment to the Supreme Court that he has as high a regard for the Constitution as any living man. We have Attorney General Frank Murphy affirming his belief in law and order.

And, last but not least, we have Thomas R. Amlie defending his nomination to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Though several years ago Mr. Amlie consorted with Communists and wrote that our present economic system (capitalism) "is not worth saving," he insisted to a Senate Committee that he is not a Communist and has no sympathy with Communist aims.

Roosevelt Action Strange

The strange part of these performances is not that these persons have been questioned regarding their Americanism but that Mr. Roosevelt should name to major posts appointees of whom such questions had to be asked. There is ample reason, as a result of developments during the last four years, why the question of the Americanism of such appointees should be raised.

For instance, there are the findings of the Dies Committee. This group reported evidence of an infiltration of Communistic ideas into the Federal Government. In a report signed by five Democrats and two Republicans, the committee reported it was "convinced" by evidence before it that David J. Saposs, chief economist for the National Labor Relations Board, "is either a Communist or is sympathetic with Communist teachings."

"From his own expressions and activities, it is impossible to reach any other conclusion," the committee went on. "When it is considered that Mr. David J. Saposs occupies one of the key positions in the National Labor Relations Board, and that he was publicly defended by Mr. Warren Madden, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, a most astounding situation is presented.

"In defending Mr. Saposs, Mr. Madden places a stamp of approval upon Mr. Saposs' expressions of Communist views and his activities along this line which creates a grave doubt with regard to the National Labor Relations Board in view of these facts."

Saposs Is Like Amlie

Mr. Saposs is still the chief economist for the Labor Relations Board. Of course he denies he is a Communist, just as Mr. Amlie does—and takes refuge in the same explanation, namely, that such expressions of his as "capitalism cannot be stabilized" and "bourgeois democracy is a sham" constitute descriptive writing and not his own opinion.

Well, if Messrs. Saposs and Amlie are not Communists, they certainly are not Democrats in any sense of the word. If they do not preach a totalitarian doctrine, they certainly are not preaching Americanism. In this age of pinning a label on everyone—such as liberal, Tory, reactionary and left-winger—a word descriptive of the Amlies and Saposses should be immediately coined.

We think we have the precise word which fits them. They are COMMUNOCRATS, which means persons who talk the revolutionary jargon of the Communists but pose as lovers of democracy. Communocrats are what the Communists call "fellow travelers", that is, sympathizers outside of the party membership. Those who are catspaws for Communism might also be included within the meaning of Communocrats along with the parlor pinks who lisp a great deal of tommyrot about capitalism not being worth saving and burgeois democracy being a sham. The New Deal is filled with Communocrats.

Give Children Definite Place To Keep Their Belongings

Habits of neatness and order can be cultivated more easily in children if they have a definite place to keep their belongings. Most growing children have play and sports equipment for both indoor and outdoor use. Things used out of doors, such as skates, bats, croquet sets, tennis racquets, sleds, skis and scooters, are convenient if stored near one of the entrances used by the children. If it is impossible to arrange a closet fitted with shelve and racks, or a chest nearby, many of these articles can be kept accessible but out of the way. Clothes hooks should be low enough for the child to conveniently reach them. If the basement is dry, sometimes it will be found the best place to keep bulky playthings.

Indoor game boards, folding tables and other recreational equipment that is generally used in the living room or dining room is most conveniently stored in these rooms or in a nearby hall closet. Bookshelves in the living room need not be used entirely for books. They often prove to be a good place for keeping the various games in an orderly way, musical records, magazine files, and so on.

A walk-in closet in the living room or hall is a great help, as shelves can be made the right size for the different articles, while folding card tables or game boards will go underneath. Window seat lockers or chests are most satisfactory when the interior is divided into compartments for specific uses so that the article wanted will not always be at the bottom of the pile.

PUBLIC WARNED AGAINST ANTHRAX FROM SHAVING

Disease May Be Contracted Thru Use of Infected Shaving Bruhes

Calling attention to the possibility of contracting anthrax through the use of infected shaving brushes, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health, warns particularly against the use of a certain brand of shaving brushes of foreign manufacture that have been widely sold in this country and that have "Imperial, Sterilized, Japan, 332", impressed upon the handles. Anthrax, he explained, is a very contagious, dangerous, and usually, fatal disease of animals and man. Many of the human infections have been contracted thru the use of brushes made of bristles from infected animals.

Dr. Riley's warning was made in response to an official request from Surgeon-General Parran, of the U. S. Public Health Service, reporting the discovery of a case of anthrax in a person living in one of the States of the Northwest and asking all State Health Officers to issue precautionary notices. The case reported was attributed to the use of a shaving brush of the kind indicated above, bought about a week before the illness developed. Examination of the brush resulted in the isolation of anthrax bacilli. Examination of other brushes bearing the same trade-mark was made in other laboratories with the same results.

Further official investigation showed that more than 35,000 brushes of this particular brand have been received in this country in four shipments from Japan since 1937, and have been sold or distributed. The report states that they have been on sale in a number of States, frequently in variety stores and have retailed for ten cents apiece.

In cooperation with the health authorities concerned, the Public Health Service has traced the shipment of the shaving brushes back to the importer. Action has been taken or is in progress with respect to all known wholesale stocks. As there can be no assurance that all stocks have been located, because of incomplete, lost, or missing records and other trade practices, the Surgeon-General asked that prospective purchasers be warned of the danger in the use of the brushes.

Action has also been taken thru the proper channels for the holding up in customs of any future shipments of shaving brushes until determined free from contamination. This action is to be taken regardless of whether or not the shipment is accompanied by a certificate of sterilization.

PETER IN SAMARIA

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:14-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.—Isaiah 55:1.

Commercialism certainly should have no place in the Christian Church. But in an age that will even commercialize a man's love for his mother, it is small wonder that the great holy days of the Church—Christmas and Easter—have become the special object of profit-seeking purveyors of everything from hats to whisky. New Year's day, Thanksgiving day, Mother's day, Father's day, any day at all, becomes just another opportunity to take a man's money, waste his time, and possibly to destroy his soul. It is high time that intelligent folk make effective protest against such perversion of sacred things.

The Scripture lesson for today tells of one who went so far as to try to buy the power of God for money, that he might use it to get gain for himself, failing to realize that the power of God is a gift and to be used only for His glory.

I. Spiritual Power—the Gift of God (vv. 14-17).

The Holy Spirit who is the third person of the blessed Trinity had called Philip, a layman, and sent him forth to preach in Samaria. Men and women were converted, and when the church at Jerusalem heard of it, they sent Peter and John to give counsel and help to the new converts. Through the laying on of hands these received the gift of the Holy Spirit even as we now receive Him the moment we believe on Christ.

What a glorious truth it is that the believer is indwelt by the Holy Spirit (I Cor. 6:19). Thus even the humblest believer has in Him the One who redeems man, gives grace for holy living, and empowers for service. The greatest power in all the world is consequently available to every true and yielded believer. Gone then are all excuses for weak and careless living. Gone is every ground for claiming that one cannot serve God. The power and grace are His, and He gives them to His followers as a gift. Christian friend, are you giving the Holy Spirit of God liberty to infill and use you as He will?

II. Spiritual Power—Not for Sale (vv. 18-24).

Men who put their trust in money are prone to think that one can buy anything. They say with Walpole, "Every man has his price." But they are wrong. There are men and women in the world who cannot be bought, and it is even more certain that the best things that life can give a man have no price tag on them—a mother's love, friendship, fellowship with God, the Holy Spirit's power—these among many others are not for sale.

Simon, a professed believer, recognized that these followers of Jesus had a great power which he thought to buy for his own business as a magician. His was a very gross and blatant effort to do what many have done in the Church, and are doing today, by more skillful and sometimes by under-cover methods. There are those who by holding the purse strings seek to control the message of the preacher, or who use their financial influence to obtain control of church organizations and institutions. Their efforts are doomed to ultimate failure, but the present harm they do to the cause of Christ is appalling. Many a church and pastor would be far better off if they could rise up and say with Peter, "Thy money perish with thee."

III. Spiritual Power—for Testimony (v. 25).

Peter and John set the Samaritan believers a good example by permitting the Spirit of God to use them to testify and preach the Word of the Lord in many villages. The Holy Spirit does "not speak of himself," but guides the believer "in all truth" (John 16:13), and His primary ministry is to glorify Christ (John 16:14). It follows that the outstanding mark of a Spirit-born and Spirit-filled believer is his desire to speak of and to glorify Christ.

Such a testimony will be "not in words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth" (I Cor. 2:13), and will bear fruit for eternity.

A Common Adversary

Much contempt and hatred towards erring humanity would be averted — and instead compassion would be excited—if we kept constantly in mind the humbling thought that we have the same common adversary! Indeed, such realization would elicit prayer in lieu of caustic criticism.

The Word Chance

By the word chance we merely express our ignorance of the cause of any fact or effect—not that we think that chance was itself the cause.—Henry Fergus.

MT. LAKE PARK

"A rose beside n cabin door,
A sunbeam on the spotless floor;
And few there were, who, passing, saw,
A rose, a sunbeam, nothing more."
Beth Slaten Whitson.

We were asked some weeks ago by a subscriber to get this quotation for them. Sorry to be so late, but we had a bit of difficulty running it to earth. It is called "Contentment."

There appears to be much comment in the Park regarding the need of a police officer for the town. Personally, we think it is needed very much. Don't misunderstand us--we do not mean that there is a great wave of crime sweeping through the Park, not at all. But there are petty annoyances, such as windows being broken, glass doors shattered and numerous other things of the sort which is certainly not a comfort to the householders. Besides all of this there is another angle. Now that spring is coming on trash heaps and all kinds of refuse matter will be thrown anywhere. Why not let your officer see that this is not done. There will be more than plenty of jobs for him to handle. Make him an active officer, with a regular "beat" to cover. Oakland officers have been more than good to Mountain Lake. They have made many quick trips to help out or to reassure Park people, but we can not expect to always find them on call. Some day we will have an emergency and will need our own town officer. We know we have a pretty clean and decent community, and it sounds fine to think we have no use for an officer of the law. Well, maybe not now.

In the sudden death of Mrs. J. Horner Davis many will grieve to learn of her passing. To most of the younger generation she was known as Martha Maxwell "Martha and Horner," as they were to the group of young folks here during the summer months.

The sympathy of these go out to Mrs. Brent Maxwell, her mother, and to her husband and children.

ENGINEERS' PLAN DRAWS PROTESTS AT KITZMILLER

Army Men Want To Run Flood Wall Throngh New School

Flood control ideas of army engineers, which would mean the moving of an expensive school addition, already under construction, at Kitzmiller, are stirring up a flood of protests in that town.

According to residents there the town was already set to let the WPA build a $30,000 levee between the Potomac River and the town, when the engineers connected with the army stepped in and said they disapproved such project. Plans for the WPA project were drawn by Henry Tarring, Jr., resident engineer for Garrett and Allegany counties, and the protection afforded under Mr. Tarring's plan was regarded as adequate, if not complete.

Army engineers looked the situation over and decided that instead of a $30,000 project, a project monnting to $100,000 was necessary to protect the town in case of the river going on a rampage, which it does once or twice in ten or twelve years..

The WPA proposed to build an earthen wall with a masonry face, which would be four feet higher than the present flood wall, which was built a few years ago. The army engineers recommended a wall eight feet higher than the present retaining wall, and they also wanted to build it much further back from the river.

The army plan would include moving one highway bridge, moving the highway at two points, moving fifteen homes, moving the Maryland theatre and the town drug store and probably other structures. The army plan would not stop there. The proposed army wall would run right through the present school building, which would necessitate moving not only the old building, but the brand-new addition which the WPA and the school board are putting up on the river side of the present building.

According to Mr. Tarring the army proposals have caused a howl of protest because people of the town feel the added protection isn't worth half the extra cost, even if the town could raise $100,000 for flood protection. If the army engineers stick to their plan of one hundred per cent protection or none, there might not be any project at all.

It is also understood that army engineers have surveyed and made plans for the Youghiogheny and Casselman River basins in recent months. The plan, if adopted, would eliminate the town of Friendsville in this county. Somerfield and Confluence, in Pennsylvania, would also be under water.

Snmmer Resident Of The Park Snicide Victim

Mrs. J. Honor Davis II, of Clarksburg, West Va., and a former summer visitor at Mountain Lake Park, was instantly killed at Stockbridge, Mass., on Sunday when she apparently leaped in front of a New York-Pittsburgh train and was decapitated. Dr. George S. Wickham, medical examiner at an instution where Mrs. Davis was a patient, said it appeared to be a case of suicide following a nervous disorder.

Mrs. Davis had been a patient in a Massachusetts hospital for some time suffering from a nervous condition. She had been with a skating party with friends near the hospital and had asked one of her companions to take her skates back to the hospital, saying that she would follow shortly. Instead she walked to the railroad track a quarter mile distant.

Mrs. Davis was a daughter-in-law of Mrs. E. R. Davis, of Clarksburg, and was a daughter of the late W. Brent Maxwell and Mrs. Maxwell, of Clarksburg. Besides her husband and mother she is survived by two sons. Funeral services were held Tuesday at Clarksburg.

VAST TRACT OF WEST VA. COAL LAND PURCHASED

Stanley Coal Company Will Extend Operations; 5,000 Acres Freeport Vein Acquired

OUTPUT 10,000 TONS DAILY

The biggest employer of labor in Garrett county at present—the Stanley Coal Company at Crellin—will extend its operations in the near future, having recently purchased five thousand acres of the Upper Freeport vein of coal located in Preston county, West Virginia.

The purchase of this vast tract was announced last Saturday by United States Attorney Joe V. Gibson, of Kingwood, who also said that the new owners of the tract had planned to construct a tipple and cleaning plant at its loading point on the railroad, which taps the holdings, in the near future and would eventually employ 300 to 400 men to work the mines with an estimated daily output of 10,000 tons.

The land purchased contains an estimated twenty-five million tons of coal. It is tapped at the village of Howesville, on the West Virginia Northern Railroad, between Howesville and Tunnelton, and extends westward to a point in the vicinity of Arthurdale, West Va., where the output may also be loaded on trains of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

February Marriages Decrease Compared To Same Period In 1938

During February 82 marriage license applications and 71 marriage licenses were issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court. During February, 1938, there were 127 licenses granted.

Financially, it means a loss of about $30 the past month for the clerk's office, over the same month a year ago. Although there were 56 less licenses, the charge of $1.00 for the application almost makes up the lack in numbers of permits.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR WILLIAM A. SMITH

Died Sunday Morning In Hospital; Served Public Many Years

William A. Smith, 77 years old, of Hoyes, Garrett county, Chief Judge of the Orphans' Court for Garrett county, died in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, at 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning, February 26, following an illness of approximately three weeks. Mr. Smith was taken ill at his home a few days before coming to Oakland on January 24 to attend a session of his court and upon returning to his home that evening his condition became such that he was taken to the hospital on February 2. His death was caused by uremia.

Mr. Smith was born October 2, 1861, in Hardy county, West Va. (then Virginia), a son of Daniel Smith and Eliza Totten Smith. He was brought to Garrett county in company with his parents at an early age and the family home was established at Hoyes. The elder Mr. Smith established a mercantile business at Hoyes and was made postmaster there, being succeeded following his death, by his son, William, who held the office for 50 years until it was abolished a year or more ago. From 1881 to 1919, Mr. Smith continued in the mercantile business.

He served as a member of the State Fish Commission for the Western Shore of Maryland from 1912 until 1916, and was one of the founders of the Garrett County Telephone Company and president of the corporation a number of years. He also served several years as county school commissioner.

Mr. Smith became a member of the Methodist church at Hoyes at an early age and remained a steadfast member throughout his life. He was also a charter member of the Knights of Pythias lodge at Friendsville and has been a member of the board of directors of the First National Bank of Oakland for 36 years. As a public official he filled the unexpired term of the late Truman W. Casteel as judge of the Orphans' Court and was then elected to that office in November, 1938, and appointed its Chief Judge by Governor Harry W. Nice. Politically he was a staunch Republican. In addition to his other activities he also operated a farm formerly owned by his father, and was interested in agricultural pursuits.

Mr. Smith was married to Miss Emma J. Savage in 1890, who survives. Also surviving are four children—three sons and one daughter—Daniel Earle Smith, Wayne Smith, and Mrs. B. C. Ayers, of Washington, D. C., and W. Cecil Smith, of Oakland; also by three grandchildren, Maxine, Billy and Arlene Smith, children of Wayne Smith; and two sisters, Mrs. Abel DeWitt and Mrs. George Thayer, of Oakland.

Funeral services were conducted from his late residence at Hoyes on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. R. L. Greynolds, pastor of the Hoyes Methodist church, officiating. Music was furnished by the Friendsville choir. Interment was in the Oakland cemetery.

Pallbearers at Hoyes were Earl Coddington, Webb DeWitt, Hubert Friend, Arthur Custer, Hobart Bishoff, and Frank Callis. Pallbearers at the Oakland cemetery were Delbert M. Davis, E. Ray Jones, James P. Treacy, W. H. Smouse, S. Townshend Naylor and T. E. Bishoff.

Sportsmen's Conferences Called For This Week-end

The conference of sportsmen which had been announced for last Monday evening was postponed because of certain developments in Annapolis which had a direct bearing on the legislation toward reorganization of the Conservation Department, according to H. C. Riggs, president of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association.

It now appears possible to have one or more of our legislators here for a conference on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The members of the executive committee are requested to meet at that time and any other citizens interested in conservation are invited.

Then there will be a general meeting of all members and sportsmen on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at which time the committee will discuss with the association all matters in which the Association has an interest. It is hoped that all membership applications will be presented so that a list may be compiled, be concluded.

Butler, Republican, as director and chairman of the State Board of Welfare in charge of the Maryland penal institutions. The governor chose Herman M. Moser as Parole Commissioner.

Subject to change, depending on whether the Administration's new plan for conservation is approved by the legislature, the Governor named, under the existing set-up for a three-man board, the following Conservation Commission: Edwin Warfield, son of the late Governor Warfield; William H. Labrot, former member of the House of Delegates from Anne Arundel county, and Robert Harrison, Talbot county, as representative of the oyster industry.

W. Lee Elgin, former mayor of Hagerstown, was named to succeed Walter R. Rudy as Commissioner of Mortor Vehicles.

Self Help School To Open

The Self Help School at Mt. Lake Park will open, as planned, on Monday, March 6, according to information from the Patrons' Association.

Certain questions arising in connection with the reopening and operation of the school must be duly acted upon by the full board and finding it impossiblo to convene this board before the date planned, action was taken at a committee meeting last night, to open on March 6 under the sponsorship of the Patrons' Association for thirty days.

Receipts from the Gideon Band as well as contributions for current operations are to go to this organization for one month, it was stated.

Orphans' Court In Session Today

Smith, chief judge, whose death occurred early on Sunday morning, and whose funeral took place Tuesday afternoon.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES TWO WPA BUILDING PROJECTS

WPA Authorities Want Second Project Tied In With Community Building; Council Disagrees

NOT SURE OF CLUB HOUSE

At a special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening, it was decided to make two separate WPA projects out of the building projects that had been presented to Council some time ago.

The ones under discussion were the projects for construction of the Community Building and the club house at the municipal golf course.

A measure authorizing the town to issue bonds to obtain money for its share of the cost of a community building, was enacted into law with a referendum attached and the voters of Oakland agreed to the bond issue by almost a three to one majority. The favorable action of the people makes it possible to spend $25,000 as the town's share of the expense of constructing a $75,000 limestone structure by the WPA. The Federal Government's part in the construction was approved several months ago. No site has been selected for the proposed community building as yet.

WPA authorities suggested to the Council that a second project be tied in with the community building—that of constructing a limestone club house at the municipal golf course at a cost of about $20,000, the town's share to be $3,500 to $4,000. It was pointed out that money allotted for the community building could not be used for this project, but would have to come from the general treasury. The WPA authorities maintained that greater efficiency would ensue by combining the projects.

Council, however, decided to keep the projects separate, and no definite action was taken concerning the immediate construction of a club house. Another meeting is scheduled for this evening with a number of citizens interested in golf.

A member of the City Council pointed out that some kind of shelter was needed at the golf course, but he felt that any large outlay of money at present was not wise until all loans were discharged and a sizeable bank balance was established from the collection of back taxes.

City Election March 13

Arrangements for the citzens' meeting, which usually precedes the regular annual election, are expected to be made at the regular monthly meeting of the Town Council on Monday, March 6. The election is to be held on Monday, March 13.

An official notice of the approaching election is contained in The Republican today. Three members of the Council and a Town Treasurer are to be chosen.

At Monday's meeting the bond of the clerk-collector was approved and the clerk was instructed to formulate a resolution asking the Governor and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee to approve the bill providing for the installation and levying of funds for the police teletype system which is calculated to make the apprehension of criminals and minor law violators much more effective.

Union Lenten Service Next Wednesday At Parish House

The union Lenten services next Wednesday evening will be held in St. Matthew's Episcopal Parish House on Center street, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. This will be the third service in a series of mid-week gatherings and Rev. W. S. Patterson, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, will speak on the subject, "Thy Kingdom Come."

The services last night were held in the Methodist church. Rev. D. C. Trimble, Episcopal rector, was the scheduled speaker but was unable to be present on account of illness. In his stead Rev. Patterson conducted the service.

There was a total snowfall of 8.7o inches, while the total rainfall was 5.91 inches. During the past week there was 1.84 inches of rain. The coldest weather during the month of February was zero, on last Thursday morning.

SENTENCED TO EIGHTEEN MONTHS AT JESSUPS CUT

Dave DeWitt, Oakland, To Serve Time In House of Correction

Dave DeWitt, aged about 40 years, of Rosedale, adjoining Oakland, was senteneed to serve eighteen months in the Maryland House of Correction at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Charles F. Hammond, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, threatening to shoot a niece and disorderly conduct generally.

DeWitt was arrested on February 17 after having threatened his niece, Evelyn DeWitt, daughter of William DeWitt, whose home is near the Washington Spring road at the west end of Oakland.

DeWitt has already served two prison terms in penal institutions of West Virginia and Maryland. In the former State he was sentenced to serve nine years and in Maryland he served a term in the House of Correction. In March, 1937, he was convicted on a charge of having attacked Irene Hoye, near the old Fair Grounds, and upon this charge he was given a suspended sentence of one year in the House of Correction.

IRVIN R. RUDY PURCHASES COFFMAN-FISHER STORE

Transaction Is Completed This Morning; Has Been Manager Of Local Store Since 1924

Irvin R. Rudy, manager of the Coffman-Fisher Store here since its opening in 1924, announced late this morning that he had purchased the stock of goods and fixtures of the local concern and would continue the business under the name of "Rudy Department Store." The transaction was completed this morning with George W. Coffman, Baltimore, general manager of the Coffman-Fisher Stores, and becomes effective immediately.

Mr. Rudy began working for the Coffman interests on July 15, 1915, at Kitzmiller, and when a store was located in Oakland on September 17, 1924, he was placed in charge as its manager.

Mr. Rudy has remained in Oakland since that time and has become an active member of the community. At present he is a member of the City Council and is also a member of the American Legion. Several years ago he purchased a home located on Oak street.

Civic Club Members Hear Mrs. Harry L. Harcum Speak

Civic club members met Wednesday afternoon in the home economics building of the High school to hear Mrs. Harry L. Harcum, president of the Maryland Federation of Women's clubs, speak on "Seek Understanding Through Cooperation." There was a good attendance.

Mrs. W. W. Grant arranged a program on legislation. Several bills were read, one being the jury service for women bill that is now being argued in the legislature. A questionaire was answered by the women present.

Members of the home economics classes served tea to those attending. The executive committee of the local club entertained at dinner at the William-James hotel last evening in Mrs. Harcum's honor. Prior to her return to Salisbury, Md., this morning, Mrs. Harcum was taken on a motor tour of the lake region by Mrs. Grant.

Oakland Trounces Romney Deaf Five

Coach Thomas Baucom's Oakland High basketball team turned back the West Virginia Deaf School five of Romney here Tuesday night, 45-26.

The visitors got away to a 9-6 lead in the first quarter but in the second canto, Oakland pulled ahead and thereafter was never headed. The home club led 21-12 at the intermission.

Fazzalari, Oakland center, registered 16 points while Kley and Sharps each gathered nine. Kozdras shared seven markers for the losers.

Oakland has two more games on its regular slate. Elk Garden will be played here Saturday and Bruce of Westernport on the local floor March 8. On March 14, the local boys will begin Western Shore tourney play by meeting Fort Hill of Cumberland.

In last night's preliminary, the Oakland reserves humbled the Deaf School second-stringers, 26-13, leading 4-2, 16-4 and 18-9 at the quarters.

COMMISSIONERS OBTAIN MONEY TO MATCH FUNDS

Borrow Over $1,700 From Unnamed Source; Old Age Pension Checks Mailed Tuesday

GPA FUNDS NOT OBTAINED

Enough money to match relief grants from the state was obtained by the County Commissioners on Tuesday to allow checks to be mailed out to old-age pensioners, and the needy blind, but they would not divulge its source. The money came on the last day of February when a loss of $5,000 in State funds was in prospect had the Commissioners failed to provide their share of the relief expense.

J. Milton Patterson, director of the Department of State Aid and Charities had ruled that if the county's share was not available by Tuesday night the county would lose its February allotment from the State and Federal governments.

"Our rules prohobit sending out two checks in one month," he said. If the checks had not been mailed by Tuesday the February funds would have been lost.

Over $1700 Is Received

Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the Garrett county Welfare board, said she had received a total of $1,787.55 on Tuesday, which took care of old age pensioners, needy blind, board for children, and administration, and that checks totalling $6,236.96 had been mailed to pensioners and $169.80 to the blind early Tuesday afternoon.

The amount from the county was not enough to take care of the 130 or more cases on general public assistance. County funds to release State money for aid to dependent children had been provided by the Commissioners two weeks ago from the contingent fund as only $169 was needed for this. Checks to the children totaling about $3,300 were mailed at that time.

Would Not Reveal Source

The Commissioners would not reveal where the money had been obtained but Attorney B. F. Epstein said yesterday the money had come from a person in Garrett county. Banks here failed to reach an agreement with the Commissioners over the payment of interest on back orders held by them, and refused to lend the amount asked for.

The money reached Miss Miller's office direct from Blaine Giessman, president of the Commissioners and did not go through the channels of the County Treasurer's office, according to Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., treasurer.

The right to borrow money came from a legislative act passed at the special session in 1933 entitling the commissioners to borrow up to 8 cents

Hens Read The Republican And Vie With Each Other On Size And Shape of Eggs

The Republican is more widely read than we suspect, even chickens absorbing some of the stories that are included in the week's digest of news and happenings.

In the issue of December 22, 1938, we mentioned about the prize egg, weighing four ounces, belonging to D. A. King, farmer and excellent citizen of the Accident community, who was enroute to Oakland with it for exhibition purposes when he pressed too heavily on the container in which it reposed and broke it.

At that time it was stated that such a story should stir the chickens of W. A. Hauser, of near town, which formerly laid golf ball-shaped eggs during the golf season last summer, the course being adjacent to Mr. Hauser's hen house.

Evidently the story of Mr. King's chicken did stir the ambitions of Mr. Hauser's egg producers. As proof, Mr. Hauser exhibited at The Republican office on Tuesday an egg, three and one-fourth inches long, 8 1-8 inches around the oblong way and 6 inches in circumference. It weighed four ounces. The breed of the pullet producing it was a mixture of white Rock and White Minorca.

A second reason why it is our opinion that Mr. Hauser's hens read The Republican is on account of the shape of the egg. With all the news about wars in Europe we are sure the hen was greatly concerned, because the egg was shaped like a bomb or steel-jacket bullet.

PETER PREACHES TO GENTILES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:30-48.
GOLDEN TEXT—Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else.—Isaiah 45:22.

"God is no respecter of persons." Sometimes one wonders whether many of His people know about that glorious attribute of the Godhead. One thing is evident, that very few care to practice this divine principle. Just now the world seems to have gone entirely berserk in its proclamation of race superiority. Along with undue and improper recognition of wealth and position, there has always been in the hearts of men a measure of prejudice against other races. These hatreds seem now to have been fanned to a flaming intolerance of such as are not of what some regard as their own superior race. The more definite this intolerance, the more unlike God people really are. Let us weigh ourselves in the balances and see if we too are found wanting.

I. "In Every Nation" (vv. 30-35).

Peter was a Jew, and God now used a vision to teach him a much-needed lesson regarding the carrying of the gospel to the Gentiles. The Jews were (and still are—let us remember it) God's chosen people. However, they were not chosen for their own comfort, convenience, or glory, but that they might be channels for the outflowing of God's blessing to all nations.

Cornelius was typical of those in every nation who are ready for the preaching of the gospel. He was a God-fearing, righteous man, but none the less in need of redemption. God brought this man who was ready to receive the message together with the man Peter who was prepared to preach it, and the result was salvation.

Whatever it may be that keeps us from carrying the gospel to all nations, we ought to recognize as unchristian, and put it aside. It may be race-prejudice, for it still persists; but it may be an equally deadly indifference to the needs of others. Let us, like Peter, go to them and open our mouths (v. 34) to proclaim Christ.

II. "Good Tidings of Peace" (vv. 36-43).

The death of Christ for their sins (v. 39), His resurrection from the dead for their justification (v. 40), the coming judgment for sin (v. 42), and remission of sins in His name—these are the essentials of Peter's message. Note how plain is the truth. Jesus has come and has wrought redemption for all who will believe. Now we must choose whether we want Him to be our Judge or our Redeemer. It is a case of "either—or." Either He is your Saviour, or He will be your Judge.

"God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God" (John 3:17, 18).

The proclamation of this message of redemption was never completed, even "while Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Spirit fell upon them all" (v. 44). Blessed interruption! Would that we might have more like it in our churches and Bible schools.

III. "The Holy Spirit Fell" (vv. 44-48).

Notice that He came upon "them which heard the word" (v. 44). Book reviews, political addresses, discussion of civic or social problems will not bring the result. Forums, clubs, discussion groups, unless they have for their subject the Word of God, need not expect anything like this to happen. But preaching of the Word of God concerning the person and work of Christ, whether it be in a home (like that of Cornelius) or in the great cathedral (and thank God some of them do have such preaching), will result in some soul finding Christ, and receiving the Holy Spirit.

It is worthy of note that these believers gave evidence of their newfound spiritual life by magnifying God, obeying His word, and testifying to others. It is to the credit of Peter and his companions that they recognized the workings of God's grace in the lives of these Gentiles. May we also be quick to see, appreciate, and encourage every true gospel work, whether it be among our own people or with some other race, whether in our church or in some humble cottage. "God is no respecter of persons."

Revelation Must Speak

Let Reason count the stars, weigh the mountains, fathom the depths—the employment becomes her, and the success is glorious. But when the question is: "How shall man be just with God?" reason must be silent, revelation must speak; and he who will not hear it assimilates himself to the first deist, Cain; he may not kill a brother, he certainly destroys himself.—Henry Melvill.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

There is to be a World's Fair in New York this year and a World's Fair in San Francisco. Probably the safest place will be Garrett county. We know it will be the most refreshing with its cool nights, beautiful mountain scenery and summer sports activities around Deep Creek Lake.

* * *

And yet, if possible, I'll be seeing one of them. They will be great spectacles, both of them.

* * *

For the past twenty-five years engineers have been straightening creeks, building drainage ditches along highways and roads and making it possible for the rainfall to find its way to the rivers easily and quickly.

Now all over the country legislators are considering flood control and soil conservation programs costing millions of dollars. The engineers propose to construct dams, dikes, terraces, contours and every known device in an attempt to hold the water on the land where it falls.

Is this the price of progress?

* * *

Sensible reforestation in all available areas would help in keeping the water where it is needed.

* * *

The automobile takes a heavy toll of skunks, the State Game Department's annual reports tells us.

In spite of this, the supply does not seem to be greatly depleted around Oakland.

* * *

What a lot of courage it takes to send an unsigned message through the mails! I received one of those this week, and judging by the handwriting and enclosures I am led to believe that the sender is a woman (a lady, I hope) and that she is a Democrat.

She uses my account of the Tibetan method of going about without knives in our hands and evil words on our tongues, to say to me, "Why not practice what you preach?" Also enclosed was a survey of the Boys' Athletic League of New York which showed that youngsters between the ages of 6 and 16 thought Hitler the most hated man and Roosevelt the most loved.

Well, it isn't any wonder that Santa Claus (Mr. Roosevelt) would be the most loved by children who don't know any better.

And if there is a more vindictive, unforgivable man than Mr. Roosevelt in politics today, I would like to know his name.

This brave woman who wouldn't sign her name, really sent her letter to the wrong party. It should have gone to Mr. Roosevelt with the same question, "Why not practice what you preach?"

* * *

I confess I am a firm believer in preparedness as the best method of promoting lasting peace. And to keep silent about my convicitions of others, when I know their motives are not for the best interests of the county, the State or nation, is not a way of promoting lasting peace. To expose their plans and ambitions is a better way, seems to me.

The Tibetan was surely speaking of gossips. He was not speaking of facts printed in newspapers. Ain't you 'shamed!

Not Monkey Business

Recently a visitor to Oakland from Westernport handed Arthur Lawton, city clerk, a Masonic pocket piece, bearing the latter's name and number of his lodge, which had been found by a man in Lonaconing, who said he had discovered it in a chicken house on his property in that town.

Mr. Lawton was engaged in work at Lonaconing years ago, but before he became a member of the Masonic Fraternity. He says he doesn't remember ever having the pocket piece, and yet his name is on it, and evidently he at one time carried it in his clothing.

Now, if anybody wants to get personal about it, he might ask Arthur how come it was in the hen house. But Arthur wouldn't know. Maybe the hen carried it there.

Folks Hard To Please

Some appear to think that running a newspaper is easy, but from experience we can say that it is no picnic, because readers are hard to please.

If we print jokes, people say we are silly.

If we don't, they say we are too serious.

If we clip things from other papers, we are too lazy to write them ourselves.

If we don't, we are stuck on our stuff.

If we stick close to the job all day, we ought to be out hunting news.

If we do get out and try to hustle, we ought to be on the job in the office.

If we don't print contributions, we don't appreciate genius, and if we do print them, the paper is filled with junk.

If we make a change in the other fellow's writeup, we are too critical.

If we don't, we are asleep.

Now, like as not, some guy will say we swiped this from some other newspaper.

And we did!

THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1939

PARAGRAPH OPINIONS

Many Happy Returns—

The Congress of the United States has a birthday March 4. That date marks the 150th anniversary of this greatest of all great American institutions—an institution of the people, by the people and for the people, as Lincoln to aptly described it.

No elaborate ceremonies will mark the occasion, but Americans can well pause on that day and reflect that it is a joyous occasion. Congress, they should remember, is the elected voice of the people in government. It is there to be the people's servant. In other lands the citizen has no voice in government. Instead, the citizen is the servant of government.

Born of the Constitution, the Congress is the world's best example of self-government. May a free Congress never perish!

* * *

And More Returns—

The Republican also has a birthday today, beginning its sixty-third volume. The Republican has been much a part of Garrett county through the years of its advancing interests, and has endeavored to serve the best interests of its citizens in presentation of news events and in its editorial policies.

That its services are well recognized is shown in its ever-increasing subscription list and the faithfulness of its readers who have been subscribers for many years.

A Change Needed Somewhere—

Something should be done to correct the law which has brought about the situatoin in which the County Commissioners, the bankers and business men find themselves at the present time.

Two remedies are suggested.

The collection of taxes should be so arranged that there would be sufficient cash on hand at all times to operate the ordinary and proper business of the county, or the county's administrators should be empowered to borrow money, with proper interest, to tide them over during the months when no tax money is being received by the Treasurer.

In a way the situation created is absurd. Banks are founded to give individuals a place in which to safeguard their money, to receive interest on their investment, to extend credit to the worthy and to make money for the stockholders by so doing. They have a perfect right to expect interest to be paid on borrowed money, just as any individual or business concern expects. If banks could not earn money by interest on loans they make, how could depositors expect interest to be paid on their deposits?

But with a group of taxpayers just waiting for an opportunity to oust the Commissioners from office on the slightest pretext, it is not hard to realize why they have refused to pay interest on county orders after their attorneys have informed them it is not a legal thing to do.

This situation in regard to interest payments, borrowing and so on, therefore, should he remedied, not alone for the present Board of County Commissioners, hut for future Commissioners.

* * *

Proceed With Care—

The City Council, it appears to us, is proceeding with proper care about the construction of an elaborate clubhouse on the municipal golf course. The outlay of several thousand dollars in cash looms pretty hig on the horizon, for a luxury, when the cash is not available and when there is money owed and quite a bit of uncollected taxes.

Compared to the community building for which the people recently voted almost three to one, a twenty thousand dollar club house is a luxury, while the community building is considered by the majority to be a necessity.

That is why in that instance they are willing to match pennies with Uncle Sam and the Federal Government to get something that has been needed for many years, which otherwise may never have been obtained. But to continue indefinitely to match pennies with Franklin D. will put every town and State as much in debt in proportion as the Federal Government is today.

A convenient shelter of some kind is needed at the municipal course for those who play there and for those who care to "watch and wait." But in our own opinion it is not an urgent matter that an expensive club house be erected until the future foretells whether or not the expense is justified. The golf course will pay for itself. we believe, if managed properly, if those in charge do not lose their heads and plunge in so far that they will never come to the surface again.

Shearing Time

This Correspondent Holds That The Weasel Is Not A Predatory Animal And That The Fox Exists Principally On Rodents, Therefore An Aid To Farmers

Oakland, Md., March 1, 1939.
To the Editor of The Republican.

As there seems to be some controversy among the sportsmen of Garrett county in regard to a bounty on certain socalled predatory animals, I thought I would express my opinion.

It seems to be widely believed that the weasel is a very destructive animal of our small game, but I do not believe it is. A Cornell Extension bulletin lists the fall and winter food of the weasel as follows: Mice, rats, shrews and chipmunks, 83.7 per cent; birds, frogs and snakes, 3.2 per cent; rabbits, 13.1 per cent. From this one can easily see that the weasel is not harmful, but is actually beneficial. The few rabbits that the weasel does kill are probably sick or wounded by hunters.

The fox is also regarded as a very destructive animal to game but an entomologist of the University of Minnesota found, after examining the contents of ninety-two foxes that their winter food consists of from 56 to 60 per cent rodents, such as mice and rats and are therefore of great aid to the farmer as is the weasel.

Let us not forget that the value of raw furs to the trapper averages about $60,000,000 a year and that there are about 2,000,000 trappers in the United States and about 13,460 in Maryland, and I am quite sure that few of them want a bounty on any furhearing animal because of the destructive habits of these animals.

The value of raw furs taken in the United States ranks fifth among all natural resource occupations, including agriculture. Surely such an occupation is worthy of protection.

In my opinion the only predators that are destructive enough to justify indiscriminate killing are the stray cat and dog. Many of the killings blamed on the fox and weasel are done by cats and dogs, as they are not a native animal and are very destructive, as wild game has not learned to cope with them.

If all the people interested in wild life would cooperate in the protection and restoration of it, instead of offering bounties, the wild life of this county would benefit greatly.

A HUNTER, TRAPPER AND SPORTSMAN.

Letters To The Editor

Oakland, Md.,
February 28, 1939.

To The Editor of The Republican:

Mr. Taxpayer, do you know if there is a bounty bill passed, it will cost a thousand dollars a year or more to pay it? Do you want to pay to kill the fox? If you are a sportsman you would not want the foxes destroyed. A report in the paper showed that a Mr. DeBerry killed 25 foxes this winter without any bounty. Those hides will net him around $50. Then why should the rest of the taxpayers pay him $50 more when he has already made $50 and some of you have not killed any foxes. The real sportsman loves to chase the fox with his dog and kill it by his skill. Some don't kill at all, as the chase is all they want. Likewise they kill the deer by their skill, but the intruder is different from the sportsman. He sets traps, makes deer licks and uses any means he can to catch and destroy. If you want to help the farmer and the sportsman why not protect the fox? If we have money to spend why not get our game warden to buy some silver and black foxes and give them a chance here. Some of you know there are many men who make a profitable business of raising foxes.

Won't you help to make our legislators know it is wrong to pay a bounty to destroy nature's beauty? A few years ago some of our good men buried that unfair and dirty law. Why does anyone want to dig it up?

SAM LEWIS.

Sunday Services In Community Churches

Red House Lutheran Parish
Rev. A. K. Jones, Pastor

Services next Sunday at St. Luke's and Red House at the usual time. In addition to Sunday school and young people's meeting at Gnegy church, there will be a service of song from 1:30 until 4:00, to which all are most cordially invited.

"Lord, Help Me!" This is the text of the sermon by the pastor. During the Lenten season, he is making a more careful study of the doctrines of salvation. Thoughtful meditation leads to changes in the Christian's life and in his conduct. We are reminded of the sacrifice of Christ for our sins and are led to repentance, to a willing self-denial and develop a more vigorous faith. We are distressed by the sin and suffering about us; we pray for loved ones, but our prayers are not answered till we pray more devoutly and sincerely for ourselves, as the sorrowing mother of whom we read in the Gospel for next Sunday.

Girl of 15 Granted License To Wed Farmer, 21, At Cumberland

A giggling girl of 15 became a bride at Cumberland. She was Rosella Jane Broadwater, of Barton, and the bridegroom was Arthur Columbus Rounds, 21-year-old farmer of the Grantsville community.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon G. Broadwater, accompanied the pair and gave their consent when the license was applied for Monday. Court house attaches at Cumberland said the girl smiled happily as she answered the required questions.

Fifteen is the youngest age at which girls have been licensed to wed in Cumberland for many years. A recent ruling by Attorney General William C. Walsh held that a girl of twelve may legally marry with her parents consent. Suggesting that the legislature establish a minimum law, he said that the common law age of twelve ruled in the absence of a statute.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Robins had made their appearance in Oakland; there were three cases of smallpox in Cumberland, a thaw had begun after a cold snap that sent the mercury to 28 below; two children of Joseph Murphy were ill of diphtheria; wheat was peeping out in patches from under the snow.

Editorial opinion had the following: "In these times a man can never tell with any degree of certainty whether within a week's time he will be frozen by the cold, drowned by the thaw, or sunstruck."

Rev. Frank A. B. Wunnenberg, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, who had been at Hoyes and who wanted to get to Oakland, had to go to Friendsville, then to Confluence, and thence to Cumberland. At Cumberland he found no trains were running due to snow, but arrived here the following day just in time to celebrate the church holiday, Ash Wednesday.

Ladies of the Presbyterian church were serving supper at Naylor's Hall on Railroad street to liquidate the church debt.

Dixon and Kelso were compelled to enlarge their store room because of their growing business.

Austin Brown, who purchased the Pennington property on Second street, was having a number of repairs made.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Fifty or more persons ment in the Court House and formed an organization for the protection of fish and game in Garrett county.

The Firm Rock School sent a money order for $30 to apply toward the erection of a monument to the soldiers and sailors of the World War.

Garrett countians who were in the service were slowly returning to their homes. The latest ones to arrive were Peter Wilt, district 11; John Nair and Albert Walter, Oakland.

The Garrett National Bank had reached one million dollars in resources.

Albert L. Lee became a candidate for treasurer of the county, in which he became successful at the primary and later at the general election.

It was announced that the law requiring the display of lights on all horse-drawn vehicles was to be strictly enforced throughout the state. Lights were to be displayed one-half hour before sunset until one-half hour after sunrise on all vehicles using the public roads.

Wild Turkeys Are Increasing In Maryland, Report Shows

That wild turkeys are increasing in Maryland during the last few years, is shown in the annual report of the State Game Department, issued Monday by E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden.

Mr. LeCompte added, however, that "due to the deforestation in the Western Maryland counties, especially destroyeing the oak, the hickory and the wild grape, natural food is not as plentiful as formerly."

To provide more food the warden said 250 Asiatic chestnut trees, which are immune to blight, were received from the Federal Department of Agriculture and planted in four counties. One hundred trees went to the Thayer game refuge in this county; 100 to the Billmeyer refuge in Allegany county, and 25 each to Baltimore and Montgomery counties.

Thousands of species of game, especially cottontail rabbits, are killed annually, it was stated.

A dinner was given in his honor at the Manhattan Hotel at six o'clock, followed by a council meeting at 8 o'clock in the council room of the school where a large number of members turned out to hear Colonel O'Leary's special message regarding the work of the organization throughout the United States.

Maple Syrup Industry in Garrett Given Boost In Sunday Sun

The maple syrup and sugar industry of Garrett county was given a boost in the Metrogravure section of the Baltimore Sunday Sun last Sunday, February 26. An entire page was given over to the subject "Maryland's Maple Syrup Begins to Rise".

The pictures were taken on the farm of Simon M. Yoder, near Grantsville, and showed views of the sugar camp, the annual activity of tapping the trees, hanging the pails, gathering the sap, and making the sugar water into syrup.

Mr. Yoder uses on his farm nearly 700 pails in gathering the liquid. He retails about two-thirds of the output and sends about a third to Vermont in large drums.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, March 1, 1939.

Unless the unforseen develops, this week will conclude the introducing of bills in the Maryland Legislature by members of the Garrett county delegation. After bills which are pending and those to be introduced this week have been acted on it will be the duty of the Garrett county group to take part in the enactment of important state legislation. The printer now has a bill which will be introduced by Delegate Darwin Martin and which calls for the allocation of four hundred dollars from the gasoline tax or by levy of the county commissioners to be used in repairing and maintaining the streets and sidewalks of the community of Kempton. Citizens of Kempton do not deem it wise to incorporate the community but they feel that inasmuch as the total assessment of the community is higher than that of other towns in the county which are now receiving aid from the county it is only fair that they too should be aided by the county in the development of their streets and sidewalks. The bill provides for the creating of a Civic Committee of Kempton to be composed of five members of which not more than three shall be affiliated with the same political party. The committee would be appointed by the county commissioners for at least three years and must be registered voters. Each year the committee would make recommendations to the county commissioners who in turn would make the suggested repairs or improvements.

We understand that the tax bill which has been amended in Senate committee has been held up somewhere along the wayside—at any rate it hasn't reached the House. The bill when finally uncovered will offer considerable inducement to taxpayers to pay taxes promptly and receive a sizeable discount. It is hoped that the new plan will aid the treasurer in collecting taxes earlier and thereby alleviate the financial condition of the county.

The county delegation is working on a plan which will change the date of the opening of deer season so that sportsmen will always have five full days instead of having one day of the season fall in Sunday as has been the case several times in the past. They propose that the five day season open the first Monday in December instead of the first day of December and the plan has the approval of State Game Warden LeCompte.

Maryland's famed old political football—Conservation—is being kicked around the legislative halls at Annapolis with the same old fighting spirit that politicians have been displaying for years. At the moment there are four measures before the General Assembly calling for changes of one kind or another in the conservation department. In all four proposals sectional jealousies, private interests and personal ambitions are evident and so Governor O'Conor calls for compromise which in fact is complete surrender to the same little clique of Eastern Shoremen who have been attempting to dictate conservation policies and have succeeded for the most part for many years. Our Governor must remember that conservation isn't solely the perpetuation of a living for oystermen and crabbers who are determined to destroy it. Maryland has forests, minerals, soil, and streams that need protection and development—these resources must not be abandoned for Eastern shoremen or any other particular sectional group.

Conservation must care for all of our God-given resources and there should certainly be brains and judgment enough in our Legislature to devise a plan that will meet the situation and cope with it in a practical businesslike manner.

Although Governor O'Conor has said time and time again that he would make all appointments on a non-political basis we have yet to hear of the appointment of a Republican even on the important state boards that call for minority representation. He has completely ignored all precedent by failure to give the minority any recognition whatsoever. Even though all appointments have gone to Democrats the Governor has been the subject of much criticism in his own party due to the fact that many major jobs have been given to his personal friends and associates. In neighboring Allegany county much dissension has arisen over some of the appointments because Attorney-General Walsh handled the cards in this case and he will be remembered as a supporter and a political ally of Mayor Jackson. O'Conor supporters in Allegany appear to be victims of the well known political double-cross.

With another week of lounging with the lobbyists in view and one of the hottest battles ever pending at Annapolis we don full protective equipment and retire to the confines of historic Carvel Hall.

SPONSOR FUNDS NEEDED FOR SAVAGE RIVER DAM

Congressman Byron Says Action Necessary To Start Project

Congressman William D. Byron has thrown the Savage River dam project [illegible] into the public's lap with the announcement that the WPA will build the dam if some sponsor will dig up a million dollars to pay part of the cost.

In his talk over radio station WTBO Mr. Byron said that local interests could not get the dam built any cheaper than by WPA labor, but that they "must act quickly to get WPA help."

Allegany County Commissioners are planning to ask the legislature permission to issue $1,000,000 worth of bonds for the project. The [illegible] of the dam would be between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000.

Mr. Byron pointed out the [illegible] tion of funds for public works and stated that there would be no more favorable time than the present to apply for government aid.

He said that the WPA was the only Federal agency which could help in the construction of the dam, and was contingent upon WPA being kept in existence after June 30, 1939, on practically the same basis as at present.

The dam proposed by army engineers would be nearly a quarter of a mile long and as tall as an eighteen story building. It would stretch 1,198 feet across the Savage River valley which stream runs into the Potomac River near Bloomington, Garrett county.

The structure would be of earth and stone mixed, with concrete spillways. A tunnel would be dug around the dam to divert the water during construction and to provide a steady flow of water in the lower part of the river when the lake back of the dam is not high enough to flow over the top.

The engineers estimated the dam would provide work for from 300 to 700 men for varying periods.

The survey was made with a $90,000 WPA allotment requested by the Upper Potomac River Valley Commission. The commission, appointed four years ago, asked that borings be made to determine the type of soil under the proposed dam in order to estimate the berland.

Gasoline Tax In U. S. Marks Its 20th Anniversary Saturday

S [illegible] chairman of the Maryland Petroleum Industries Committee, declared a few days ago. Saturday, February 25th was the 20th anniversary of the passage of the first gasoline tax in the United States. In addition, the Federal gasoline tax has cost motor vehicle operators of the State $14,701,000 since the Federal levy was inaugurated in 1932. During the year just ended, it is estimated that $12,479,000 was collected in this State from the gasoline tax, $9,928,000 coming from the State and $2,551,000 coming from the Federal tax.

THE REPUBLICAN BEGINS ITS SIXTY-THIRD YEAR

Today's Issue Marks Start On Another Milestone Of History

Birthdays have a habit of arriving, for newspapers as well as for individuals, and with today's issue The Republican enters upon its sixty-third year.

The paper was founded February 28, 1877, the first number appearing the following Saturday, March 4, 1877, two days after Rutherford B. Hayes was declared elected President of the United States and one day prior to his inauguration as such.

Down through the years, several extra Thursdays have slipped into the calendar and the 1937 volume really had 55 papers, just so the sixty-second volume could start on the date nearest the date upon which the first paper was published. The sixty-second volume was completed with 52 issues and the sixty-third volume began just two days prior to March 4.

At the time of the founding of The Republican by the late Captain James A. Hayden, there was also being published in Oakland The Garrett County Herald, with Hiram P. Tasker, editor, but it ceased publication a short time thereafter, and The Republican is the oldest newspaper in the county that is active today.

It is not only the oldest newspaper in the county, but it is the earliest established business enterprise in the county that has gone on through the years uninterrupedly. The paper has had but two owners, the founder and the present publisher, the latter taking charge on July 4, 1890, and issued his first paper upon his 21st birthday anniversary, and will have rounded out 49 years of continuous service by July, 1939.

The "Just Spend" Period

Washington, Feb. 23.

So far from being reassured by the recent statement of the President that business need not fear the imposition of new taxes nor the increase of old ones this year, there seems every reason why business should be alarmed thereby.

* * *

Because, if that isn't taking the straight road to complete and calamitous national insolvency then nothing makes sense and all the things which businessmen have been saying for the past six years are ridiculous. Here is a country which in that period has increased its debt twenty billions of dollars and for nine successive years has been running steadily increasing deficits. Beginning in 1932, the President himself gravely warned that the end of this could only be disaster and insisted upon the vital necessity of balancing the budget.

* * *

While the budget has gotten farther out of balance every year, until 1939 he regularly stressed the necessity for balance, consistently promised to balance, always maintained that the effort to balance was vital. In his message to Congress last January, for the first time Mr. Roosevelt abandoned this position—even the pretense of it. Instead he accepted completely the weird theory of Mr. Marriner Eccles that there is no need to bother about the budget; that the budget will balance itself automatically as soon as the national income reaches a certain figure; that the way to reach that figure is to keep spending more Federal money; that the one fatal thing now would be retrenchment.

* * *

In brief, the President, urging expenditures this year which, with his armament program, will exceed ten billions of dollars and leave a deficit of more than three billions, first tells Congress that economy at this time would be a mistake, dares it to reduce appropriations and angrily throws back at it another request for the $150,000,000 lopped off the relief appropriation. Then he tells businessmen he contemplates no increased taxes, though his earnest young Under Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Hanes, has been laboring day and night for weeks on a Treasury bill which increases taxes on estates and individuals more than a little.

* * *

Also, Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Finance Committee, has been wrestling with the problem of increasing governmental revenues through new taxation. In fact, until the President spoke, neither in the Treasury nor in the Congress had it occurred to anyone to doubt that more and heavier taxes were inevitable this year and that still more and heavier would be inevitable in the years to follow. Until he spoke there seemed no escape from the fact that soon or late the bill has to be paid. There are only two ways—or so it has been assumed—by which the Government can ever recover its financial equilibrium—one is by reducing expenditures, the other by increasing revenues. This year the President has taken a stand against both.

* * *

And his friends think that when he says there will be no new taxes businessmen should feel "reassured." You might as well expect a man in the back seat of a fast-moving downhill automobile to feel reassured when the driver after first throwing away the steering wheel then busts the brakes. All this boils down to the basic fact that the only policy the President has left today is a spending policy, the most appalling feature of which is that his sole method of obtaining money to spend is to borrow against deficits, a course which he himself vigorously condemned in 1932.

* * *

The spenders are in the saddle at the White House—and will continue to be. They "already have plans for a big new public works program and their whole philosophy is now condensed into two words: "Just Spend." If, in face of this, businessmen can feel reassured by either the staged stuff of Mr. Hopkins or the Presidential assurance that there are to be no new taxes, they have lost all sense of reality. If there is a surer way to hurry us toward the most ruinous form of inflation than to ban economy, avoid new taxation and continue to borrow, no one has suggested it.

* * *

If that sort of inflation is to be averted it can only be through the most drastic reductions and very painful taxation. At least that has been the belief everywhere except in the more rarified New Deal circles. Certainly it was one of Mr. Roosevelt's deepest convictions before he became the Great Spender. Until recently the pretense of this belief was kept up by even the most "advanced thinkers" around him. Now, the spenders no longer pretend, which means that only Congress can prevent a very great acceleration toward the bottom of the hill. The President who follows Mr. Roosevelt will have the sort of job no man need envy.

LOOKING FORWARD

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Publicity Director, Republican National Committee

So strange is the behavior of President Roosevelt in his attitude toward business on occasions that many persons sincerely have wondered whether he really wants to encourage th forces of economic recovery and thus return the country to a condition of prosperity.

Of course it is inconceivable that anyone in a position of official responsibility should wish to retard recovery. Yet, despite his frequent protestations, Mr. Roosevelt has done inexplicable things which have the effect of discouraging business through the creations of uncertainties and fears of what the future may bring forth.

Investors Hesitate

Such improvements and expansion, however, call for millions of dollars of new capital. The huge volume of idle money in our banks evidences the abundance of funds in this country waiting for profitable investment. Yet the owners of that money—and they include people with savings deposits and life insurance policies as well as rich men—hesitate. They hesitate because they cannot be sure that their money will be paid back to them due to the critical condition of the railroads.

This lack of confidence on the part of investors, however, has been doubly intensified by naming to the Interstate Commerce Commission a man who avowedly is an advocate of government ownership of railroads, as Mr. Amlie is, and who has little else to recommend him as a supervisor of the nation's transportation system. Morevor, not even in the realm of politieal maneuvering can any plausible reason be found for the Amlie appointment.

People in their right minds do not throw money out of windows and they do not invest money in enterprises in jeopardy of being taken over by the Government. So, no matter what Mr. Roosevelt says, his action in naming Mr. Amlie discourages progress in rehabilitating the railroads and retards recovery. Thus this action injures the railroad worker, the steel mill mechanic and the farmer.

President's Attitude Paradoxical

The President's paradoxical attitude toward business is aptly illustrated by the sequence of events following his statement that business had no further reason for worry, made while enroute to the war games in the Caribbean. Insisting there was no reason for a lack of confidence on the part of business, the President said no new taxes were planned; that the Federal Government had no plans of expanding its competition with the private utilities, and that, in brief, business could look ahead without misgivings as to the Administration's future plans.

As a move toward reassuring the business community, the President's remarks constituted a good start—though a divergence between his promises and performances make it necessary that such words be backed up with action. But, passing that over, the country on reading these words the next morning had a right to feel better about the outlook.

Yet the beneficial effect of those words was completely destroyed by the time businessmen got to their offices the next day. For fast on the heels of the first dispatch from the Presidential train came another. It quoted the President as expressing a fear that he would be unable to remain away from Washington as long as he planned because of a new, secret and threatening crisis in Europe.

And then, some thirty-six hours after the first remarks, the Justice Department announced a renewal of warfare on business in the form of an anti-trust suit against eighteen tire companies for engaging in the very type of practices imposed on them under NRA codes.

One Fog After Another

Thus in less than two days after undertaking to dispel one set of uncertainties afflicting business, Mr. Roosevelt set in motion more serious uncertainties. Leaving the suit against the tire companies aside, it was inexplicable to those in Washington why the President undertook to create widespread disturbance about some mysterious and vague development in Europe.

Even if some momentous event were brewing in Europe—and twenty-four hours search in the capitals of Europe by American newspapermen failed to reveal it—what could be gained by the President throwing out another war scare? Nothing, except unduly to alarm the country generally, and Europe as well, and to throw commodity and security markets into a state of jitters.

Mr. Roosevelt undoubtedly had no such thought in his mind. In all probability he was not thinking of the effect his words would have on business. But that is exactly the trouble. Mr. Roosevelt has demonstrated again and again that he does not understand the mechanism and the psychology underlying business confidence. It is a chasm between the New Deal and business that has not been bridged in six years and in all probability will not be bridged as long as Mr. Roosevelt is in the White House.

GRANTSVILLE

Harvey Gortner, proprietor of a local garage, narrowly escaped serious injury in an automobile accident near Colonial Inn, on Route 40, about ten o'clock Saturday night. He with Mrs. Gortner were returning home from Cumberland when they were stopped by Dominic A. Grippe, Fairmont, W. Va., who wished to borrow a jack to repair a flat tire. Mr. Gortner backed his car close in front of the Grippe machine, parked on the shoulder of the road. Mr. Grippe was leaning against the rear compartment of his own automobile removing the spare tire when another machine, driven by Hubert McKenzie, of near Grantsville, crashed into them, catching Grippe between the bumpers. He was unconscious when extricated and was taken to Miners Hospital in Frostburg where it was found his leg was seriously injured, but there were no internal injuries apparent. Mr. Gortner, fortunately, had just stepped from between the two parked cars when the crash occurred.

Organ Recital Is Given

An appreciative audience attended an organ recital held in the school building and sponsored by the local Lutheran church members.

As a prelude to the organist's program, the Meyersdale high school band, composed of some forty pieces, rendered an enjoyable half hour of music. Featured soloists were Howard Miller, trumpet; Jack Butler, trombone, and Kenneth Critchfield, clarinet.

At the conclusion of the band's presentation, the Rev. S. D. Sigler introduced Frederick P. Stieff, Baltimore, who made a brief talk, and in turn introduced John H. Eltermann, well known organist from that city, who gave a fine program of high class music. They explained and demonstrated the various qualties of tone possible in the Hammond Electric organ, which was used, and also the variety of instruments which could be interpreted.

The organ was later moved to the Lutheran church where it was used for the Sunday morning services. On this occasion Joseph J. Derry, soloist with Carnegie Tech Symphony orchestra, Pittsburgh, was present and gave a half hour recital before the opening of the services. At the close of the hour of worship it was definitely decided to complete the purchase of the instrument for the local church.

In the opener of the triple-header, Grantsville Reformed topped Salem Reformed, of Frostburg, 27-24. Bayard Keller, with 11 points; Belmont Miller, 9, and Edgar Bender, 7, made Grantsville's markers. The score was tied 10-10 in the second quarter and 18-18 in the third.

Three foul goals by Belmont Miller in an overtime period gave a Grantsville league quint, consisting of three Lutherans and two Reformed players, a 23-21 victory over a Salisbury, Pa., church team in the third tussle. R. Patton and B. Miller, with 9 points each, paced the locals.

CAMP PERMITS REQUIRED BY HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Summer Camps To Be Inspected And Meet State Sanitary Requirements

As the ground hog's promise of an early spring shows signs of fulfillment, thoughts turn expectantly to camping, hiking, fishing and other out-door pleasures.

In preparation for the coming season, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Mnryland State Department of Health, has notified owners and operators of "summer" camps—tourist, recreational and labor—that all Maryland camps must be inspected and must meet the sanitary requirements of the Department before they may be opened for visitors. Permits certifying that these orders have been met are required of all camps. Last year's permits do not hold over. A 1939 permits required whether the camp is an old one or is just starting. No camp may be operated without one.

In order that the necessary inspections may be made before the season opens, camp owners and operators are asked to file their applications as soon as possible. Supervision of the camps is under the joint direction of the County Health Departments and the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the State Department of Health. All camps that meet the State requirements will be posted with placards supplied by the State Department of Health.

The camp regulations apply, Dr. Riley explained, to every camp or picnic ground that is used for six days or longer and that accommodates ten or more persons. To be duly certified each camp must comply with the requirements regarding the general cleanliness of the buildings and grounds; concerning the water supply; toilet facilities, and the disposal of sewage, garbage and other wastes. Satisfactory arrangements must also be made for the protection of foods sold on the premises from flies and from other sources of pollution, and for the proper handling of milk, cream and ice cream.

In applying for permits, camp operators are requested to state the exact location of the existing or the proposed camp; to indicate the type—picnic, recreation, tourist, labor, etc. They must also indicate the approximate number of persons to be accommodated, and the proposed duration of the camp season.

Last year 207 camps met the requirements and were duly placarded. The licensed camps included 90 for tourists; 79 for recreational purposes; 34 just as picnic grounds; 2 labor camps and 2 used for religious gatherings. Twenty-one counties were represented in the total.

Anne Arundel, with 60, of which 29 were used for recreational purposes, 23 picnic, 7 tourist and 1 religious, had the highest number of any one county. Harford came next with a total of 17. Harford, with 14 camps for tourists led in the number in that class in any one county. Allegany and Worcester had 11 camps each for travelers; Frederick 9; Howard and Prince George's 8 each; and Anne Arundel and Cecil 7 each. The rest of the tourist camps were scattered among other counties.

1939 BADGE TESTS WILL BE GIVEN ON HOME CAMPUS

To win badges this year pupils may pass the tests on the home campus. In previous years badges could only be obtained by entering the county track meet.

The purpose of the tests are: (1) to stimulate an interest in all around development; (2) to interest pupils in certain play ectivities by measuring their efforts to reach progressively higher goals; (3) to measure pupils' improvement in skill; (4) and to promote a program of activities that requires a minimum of equipment.

The plan, which has been adopted, incorporates the basic tests which have been used in the Maryland schools since testing in physical education was introduced. The plan has been modified and extended to care for the growing interests and needs of the pupils. Tests are offered each spring. The plan permits giving the pupils all parts of tests on the school grounds and minimizes interference with other school activities.

The P. A. L. Badges were as follows: Bronze, silver, gold, supergold A, supergold B, supergold C; etc. The equivalent State Badge Tests are: I, II, III, IV, V, VI, respectively.

Example—If a pupil has won a gold badge pin in the 1937 spring meet, he should be credited with the performance of State Test III and is entitled to try for State Test IV.

MT. LAKE PARK

Of all the thoughts of God that are
Borne inward into souls afar
Along the Psalmist's music deep.
Now tell me if that any is
For gift or grace surpassing this:
"He giveth His beloved sleep."
—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Again this week we pay our respects and humble tribute to another of Mountain Lake Park's good friends and to a good friend of ours—Major William N. Skyles, who passed away in his sleep. It's a fine way to go, and we rather think he would have liked it just that way. For the past twenty years or more we knew and admired Major Skyles. Perhaps the greatest thing that could be said about anyone was a remark we heard: "He was never known to say an unkind word about anyone." That is praise indeed.

At this moment his daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Pollard, wife of Walter Pollard, is seriously ill in a Hagerstown hospital. To Mrs. Skyles and to Mrs. Pollard the people of the Park extend deep sympathy.

on each $100.00 of the assessable basis of the county, for assistance to the destitute. The law was pointed out by Mr. Patterson, in Baltimore, last Friday, and B. F. Epstein, attorney for the Commissioners said that Allegany county had used the law successfully to borrow money to pay the needy.

The County Commissioners met with boards of directors and cashiers of two Oakland banks last Saturday and again on Monday in an effort to obtain funds.

"The bankers demanded that interest be paid on back orders before they would lend us any money under the special statute," Mr. Giessman stated. "Whenever it is made legal we are positively in favor of paying interest on loans in any emergency," he added.

Paul M. Friend, third member of the Commission, stated at the meeting that he was willing to go along and pay interest to the banks in order that this condition could be corrected, as it is a usual procedure to expect interest to be paid on borrowed money, in any business transaction.

Ruling Is Cited

Mr. Epstein said the board had stopped paying interest on county orders because of a ruling of the Court of Appeals of Maryland in a case of Hall vs. Anne Arundel county, 94, Md., page 282, which was a case where the County Commissioners of that county had issued such warrants payable from the levy of the following year and stating that they were payable with interest. A taxpayer sought to enjoin the commissioners from paying the same, and in which the Court of Appeals ruled that "There is no warrant in law for making interest from the date of issue payable on such certificates. That inasmuch as the proceedings disclose that these certificates are made payable with interest from the date of their issue, the careful Judge of the Circuit Court very properly noticed this fact and declared that he could find no warrant or sanction for the issue of interest-bearing certificates by the Commissioners, and that in his opinion the payment of interest will be an unauthorized payment."

A letter to the Commissioners from the Board's Attorney says, we "advise you that we believe you cannot legally levy for or pay interest on warrants excepting those, if any there be, which might have been issued expressly under the direction of the legislature and by it authorized to call for the payment of interest."

There were those who contended that the ruling of the Court of Appeals did not apply in this case as all county orders now being held were on former levies and not on a levy for the following year, but they did not care to be quoted.

Came to a Head Early Last Month

The relief situation came to a head early in February when the Commissioners gave the Welfare Board a county order for $3,700, as the county's share of the relief expenses, which the board was unable to cash because no funds had been collected on the 1939 levy.

State grants for aid to dependent children, old-age pensions, aid to the blind cannot be disbursed until the county's share of the money is made available, and thus the problem came to the attention of the general public.

The Commissioners included in the recent levy an amount calculated to take care of its share of the relief burdn but 1939 tax bills are just now being mailed. Payments are not due until April 1. Taxpayers get a two percent discount if they pay by June 1, and they don't have to pay any penalties until October.

In former years county orders constituted a tax anticipation note and their issuance had been a supposedly regular procedure when the county treasury was low during the first few months of the year because tax payments had not started rolling in. This procedure has been going on for probably fifty years.

How the question of interest payments was first brought to public attention is not known, but as soon as it became a subject for discussion the attorney for the Commissioners ruled it has been illegal to pay interest, and since that time Mr. Giessman said the Commissioners had refused to do so. County banks and individuals in Oakland are now holding over $70,000 in back orders, Mr. Giessman said.

A bill ready for introduction in the legislature would authorize the County Commissioners to borrow money not exceeding one-third of the total amount of taxes levied to enable them to take care of proper expenses until funds collected by the County Treasurer from the tax levy of that year shall be sufficient in amount for that purpose. The bill allows an interest rate not exceeding 3 percent. This bill, however, from last reports, is not in favor at Annapolis and has not been introduced.

COMMITTEE VOTES TO CUT COSTS OF STATE RELIEF

Ten Per Cent Slash Is Voted In New Bill Adopted by Senate Finance Committee at Annapolis

BUDGET TO BE BALANCED

The Senate Finance Committee at Annapolis adopted a favorable report on Governor Herbert R. O'Conor's $17,000,000 revenue bill late yesterday, with amendments contemplating a slash of ten per cent in costs of relief administration.

As agreed upon by the committee, the bill will be reported out today providing for a re-registration of motorists at $1 each, instead of $2, Chairman Dudley G. Roe disclosed after an executive session of the committee.

To account for a portion of the $500,000 a year loss in revenue, which will result from halving the re-registration fee, the committee proposed a relief reduction estimated to save up to $100,000 annually.

Committeemen estimated the $1 fee would produce $220,000 a year which, plus the $100,000 saved in relief administration, would leave Governor O'Conor's budget approximately $150,000 a year out of balance—unless further amendments to the revenue bill are made from the floor.

No Re-examination

Senator Roe asserted, however, that the proposed re-registration would carry no re-examination of drivers, thus eliminiating the cost of such a procedure which had been contemplated in the revenue bills originally drafted.

"What we save there should bring us pretty close to a balance," he said, "and whatever we need to make up the difference we'll cut out of relief funds. Make no mistake—we're going to balance that budget."

THREE P'S OF FIRE DRILLS

The National Board of Fire Underwriters, 85 John Street, New York, has issued a free bulletin on fire drills for schools, which should be read, studied and kept for reference by every school board.

The bulletin points out that there are three phases of adequate fire drills—plan, purpose and procedure. The plan depends upon the type, kind, design and location of each school. Definite, detailed instructions must be prepared for emptying the building.

The purpose of any drill is to perform the operation so often that in an emergency it can be carried out in a calm, unhurried manner. A real fire may occur at any minute, so no regular time should be set for the drills—they should come as a surprise. It should be kept in mind that the primary consideration of the drills is to completely empty the building as rapidly as possible. All other considerations are secondary.

Procedure involves executing the drills with complete efficiency and savings of waste motion. Drills should never be conducted in a half-way manner—except when weather conditions are exceptionally bad, the building should be evacuated completely. Further, drills should be varied to provide for the possibility of exits being blocked, and of getting the pupils away from walls that might collapse, once they are outside.

Experts point out that fire drills are a farce in thousands of American schools. A real fire might result in untold deaths and maimings, because of crushing panic, as well as fire. It's up to every school board to see that drills are really efficient in the schools they control—and up to parents to see that the school board acts.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

"Not Convincing"

It must be a relief to Mr. Harry Hopkins to get that much-rehearsed Des Moines speech off his mind, even if the reaction is disappointing and there was no rush to the roofs to cheer. It had been caking in his highly emotional system for a solid eight weeks. Assaying the result after delivery, it does seem that the time, the labor and the energy packed into this effort were disproportionate to the finished product. To have measured up to the advance notices it would need to have been a really great utterance. In the graphic language of the pre-einct politicians, it "checked short" a whole lot of being that.

• • •

Actually the background of this speech is more interesting than the contents. Every idea it contained had been forecast so often in the course of the "build-up" that as finally unanciated they seemed distinctly repetitions. Certainly there was nothing new in it and it is futile to speculate upon how much of either the words or the music were Mr. Hopkins' own. In these days of ghost writing, the public man who constructs his own speeches is rarer than in any previous period. As is well known, the most eloquent and moving of Mr. Roosevelt's justly famous Fireside Chats have been written for him by the versatile Mr. Tommy Coreoran, now unhappily in the hospital with a bad ease of shingles.

• • •

His last real service in this line was the Roosevelt Jackson Day speech. Others only a little less prominent in the Administration have their staff of literary aides. So, if this great effort to "reassure business" and establish confidence in himself was ghosted, Mr. Hopkins but followed illustrious examples. However, this is a minor point—the important thing is what is in the speech, not who wrote it. From this angle it is astonishing that with all the help he had, all the time given to it and the extent of the advertising, it was not more impressive.

• • •

Certainly it was not the rousing signal for recovery some had anticipated. Nor did it announce any dramatic change in the Administration's attitude. That it could be considered so important in New Deal circles is evidence of the tendency of New Dealers to overrate themselves rather than a tribute to their judgment. Conceived fully two months ago, this speech was the subject of a perfect orgy of conferences in which Mr. Hopkins consulted large numbers of so-called "business leaders." It was outlined and discussed at a Cabinet meeting. It was submitted for suggestions to some very serious industrialists indeed.

• • •

Yet, when finally delivered, it is found merely to reiterate Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Morgenthau on the matter of taxes; to repeat that there will be no further legislative reform program; to commend TVA-utility truce; to defend the pump-priming policy; to shower encouraging words upon business and urge that there is now no obstacle in the way of recovery. Of course, the fact that the Administration has no reform program is not new. That was made clear by Mr. Roosevelt in his message to Congress two months ago. Also it is clear that even if he had one it could not be put through this Congress.

• • •

The truth is that the "reform" activities of the New Deal were really ended by its reversals at the November elections. Further, we are much too close to the 1940 elections for more experimentation. Further, still, there is no doubt the public generally is anxious to end governmental baiting of business. Under the circumstances, is it difficult to see how a new Secretary of Commerce could have made other than a friendly speech. To have adopted the old truculent Hopkins tone would have been so markedly unfitted to his new position as to cause a violent reaction.

• • •

That sort of stuff—temporarily at least—has been dropped by the New Dealers. They are all "reassuring" now, and Mr. Hopkins' speech reflected the most amiable intentions and the kindest heart. Nevertheless, it cannot but be recalled that this is the same Mr. Hopkins whose various inflammatory utterances were famous; the same Mr. Hopkins who is clasping Mr. Upton Sinclair to his bosom proclaimed that "this is a fight between the Haves and the Have Nots and we're with the Have Nots"; the same Mr. Hopkins whose boast is that he belongs to the team and carries out the quarterback's orders. When these things, coupled with his lack of business experience, are recalled, it is not surprising that business men generally are not deeply stirred. One of these said that the Hopkins speech made him think of the Englishman, who, after reading Baron Munchausen, solemnly expressed the view that his stories were "not convincing."

PEACE JUBILEE TO OPEN MT. CHOIR FESTIVAL

Sixth Season Of Noted Event Will Begin Sunday, July 2, At Deep Creek Lake

A Peace Jubilee at Deep Creek Lake on Sunday, July 2, is scheduled to open the 1939 Mountain Choir Festival, according to Rev. Dr. Felix G. Robinson, founder and director.

The Festival, expanded recently into an association, will present its most ambitious program this year, the sixth since its organization.

For the opening day's Peace Jubilee a massed choir will sing a two-part program from a floating pavilion. A brass choir under the direction of Rev. Harold Gamblin, Mt. Lake Park, will play mediaeval chorales in the forest opposite the lake.

On July 5, 6, and 7 there will be a convention of worship and church music for clergymen and choir directors.

Prof. Maurice Matteson, head of the Department of Music, Frostburg State Teachers' College, will direct a program of folk music, featuring mountain and miners' ballads of Western Maryland, West Virginia, and nearby Pennsylvania.

Another program will be presented under the auspices of the Maryland Federation of Music Clubs.

Saturday afternoon of that week there will be three contests, one for parish, one for women, and one for junior choirs. A lawn fete and reception will follow the contest in front of the Mt. Lake Hotel. In the evening the Oratorio "Messiah" will be sung by the Festival Choir under the direction of Raymond K. Hollinger, of Hagerstown. An orchestra and two pipe organs will serve as accompaniment. On Sunday morning, July 9, choral matins will be rendered by the Festival Choir under the direction of Rev. Dr. Robinson. In the afternoon there will be the A Cappella Choir contest under the supervision of Dr. Becket Gibbs, Juilliard School of Music, New York. Immediately following the contest the Festival Choir will sing a program of favorite anthems taken from the programs of the first five seasons of the Festival. This final program will be directed by several of the outstanding choral directors of the East. The Festival will come to a close at 6 p. m.

Choir directors applying for entrance in the various choral contests should communicate with Raymond K. Hollinger, 1105 Potomac avenue, Hagerstown, Md.

FIREMEN MAKE PLANS FOR FOURTH OF JULY JUBILEE

Committee Is Appointed—Three Alarms Answered by Firemen

Plans for the second annual Fourth of July celebration by the Oakland Fire Department were made at a regular meeting held recently by the department members.

A committee including Emroy Bolden, chairman; Lawrence M. Fraley, H. P. Stuck, Robert Lohr and Robert Stanton, was appointed to make arrangements and contact an amusement company representative. Exact features of the celebration are to be announced later, but a member of the the committee declared the celebration would be bigger and better than last year.

Three Calls Are Answered

The firemen answered three calls within three days — two of them being on Saturday.

The first at 8:10 a. m., Saturday was from Ray Teets' garage and was extinguished before the trucks left the fire house. Sparks from a grinding machine had ignited a nearby pan of gasoline. No damage to property resulted.

The second call came about 3 p. m. from the home of Grover Browning, near Dodge school house, where a large area of dry pasture field was burning and had endangered the farm dwelling and outbuildings. The department members fought the blaze until the arrival of a crew from a CCC camp which had been summoned by Chief Emroy Bolden.

The third call came Monday afternoon when a tar wagon of the State Roads Commission became ignited, on Oak street, near the East End Service Station. The damage resulting was slight, although the flames from the burning tar threatened to consume a telephone pole nearby for a time.

THREE PERSONS NAMED AS COUNCIL CANDIDATES

Election Monday To Be Mere Formality For Bolden, Rudy And Davis

Nomination of candidates for City Council and City Treasurer at a citizens' meeting on Tuesday night actually means election on Monday, March 13, when the annual election will take place, as only three candidates for Council were named and but one candidate for the office of Town Treasurer.

Those nominated for Council were Emroy Bolden, Delbert M. Davis and Irvin R. Rudy. Both Bolden and Rudy are candidates for re-election. Edward A. Shaffer, who has served as a member of Council for a number of years, declined to be a candidate when named as such from the floor at the meeting Tuesday evening. Richard Davis, present Treasurer, was nominated without opposition.

Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley said at the meeting that in all probability the citizens' meeting Tuesday would be the last one held for such a purpose, as a bill already in the Legislature provides that should one desire to be a candidate he shall file his name with the proper officials, and another bill provides for a general registration of voters within the limits of the town. It was pointed out that in this manner all candidates would have an equal chance and that those who were not candidates would not be embarrassed by having their names placed before a convention or citizens' meeting and then on the city ballots.

The election on Monday will be a mere formality and it is not expected that many citizens will take the trouble to vote, although one vote for each will be necessary for election of the candidates.

Hold-over members of Council are Henry W. McComas, Jr., Earl Shartzer and Raymond D. Houck, each of whom have another year to serve as members of the body. Mayor Fraley also has another year in his present capacity.

BANKS OFFER ADDITIONAL INDUCEMENT TO ESSAYISTS

Contest Is Open To All High School Students; Deadline March 31

Garrett county banks are offering additional prizes to those offered by the Maryland Bankers' Association, which is sponsoring an essay contest, it was announced a few days ago.

The Maryland Association offered a scholarship of $1,000 in a college course for the best essay on "What Our Bank Means to Our Community," with members of 1939 graduating classes of white and parochial schools in Maryland being eligible to compete.

The local banks this week are offering additional prizes of $10 to the grand prize winner in county-wide competition; $5 to the first prize winner in each high school, and $2.50 to the second prize winner in each high school.

This county contest is open to all high school students and has no bearing on the prize offered by the State Bankers' Association. Rules of the contest will be the same, however.

Essays must be submitted to Delbert M. Davis, First National Bank, Oakland, not later than March 31, and must be from one thousand to twelve hundred words in length, written on one side of the paper.

Banks sponsoring this secondary contest are the First State Bank of Grantsville; the First National Bank of Friendsville; the First National Bank of Oakland and the Garrett National Bank in Oakland.

Winning contestants in each high school will read their manuscripts before the judges.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN TOWN TAX COLLECTIONS

Financial Status of Oakland Discussed; Statement of Receipts And Expenditures Published

COUNCIL MET MONDAY

The financial condition of Oakland, as shown by the annual statement, printed on page six of The Republican today, was one of the items of business discussed at the regular meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening.

The statement shows an improvement in the collections of both taxes and water rents over the previous year with general expenses about the same, exclusive of the amount of money expended last year for the new reservoir, for which there was a bond issue.

The statement printed today shows merely the receipts and expenses paid and contains no account of the town's indebtedness, its other liabilities nor its uncollected taxes or assets. A supplementary statement setting forth these items will be published later, according to Arthur Lawton, clerk, after the auditor has completed his job and following an evaluation of the town's assets to be made by a proper authority who will come here for that purpose.

There was collected in taxes in 1938 $11,644.08, compared to $8,774.45 the previous year. Water collections the past year amounted to $8,249.28, compared with $7,430.52 for the previous year. The statement shows that the town borrowed from two Oakland banks in 1938 the sum of $5,200. In 1937 the town borrowed $2,500.

In the list of expenditures some of the larger items are for labor, $1,566; for street lights, $2,418.94; garbage removal, $724.43; water supplies, $1587.12; reservoir construction, $3,677.49; golf course, $3,464.08; police protection, $1,970; payment on three issues of bonds, more than $6,600.

Liabilities of the town were listed yesterday by Clerk Arthur Lawton,

TO INAUGURATE BUS LINE FROM OAKLAND TO RIDGE

Meyer Transit Co. Announces Beginning of Service April 1

That the Meyer Transit Company, operating between Elkins, West Va., and Oakland, would extend its passenger carrying lines to include a route from Oakland to Keyser's Ridge, was announced by Herman Meyer, member of the company, one day this week.

This service will begin April 1, and will consist of one round trip daily for the present. The bus to the Ridge will be operated in the morning, and the return trip will be made following the arrival of the westbound Greyhound bus on Route 40 at 4:45 p. m. at the Ridge. The morning trip from Oakland will be timed so that persons desiring to travel eastward may make connection with the morning bus for Cumberland and Baltimore.

The Meyer Transit Company at the present time operates three busses daily into Oakland — two from Elkins and one from Davis. With the inauguration of the new service between Oakland and Keyser's Ridge, there will be direct bus service between the Ridge and Elkins. It is the plan of the company to abandon the line into Davis.

A definite schedule and time-table will be given publicity later by the company, it was stated.

Report of Eye Glass Fund Shows Twenty Children Aided

How a special fund, established to purchase glasses for children needing them, had been disbursed, was outlined a day or two ago by Dr. H. R. DuPuy, Health Officer, in letters written to every person who contributed.

Dr. DuPuy's report shows that a total of $221 was received. With this twenty children have had their eyes examined by an expert eye doctor and proper glasses fitted.

Dr. DuPuy said the specialist who examined the children told him that some of them would have lost their vision in one or the other eye had they not been examined and given the proper glasses.

The letter in thanking the donors for the splendid spirit they had shown in contributing to this cause, said: "What a satisfaction it must be to know that you have been instrumental in saving the sight of a child's eyes."

SELF HELP COLLEGE IS REOPENED AT MT. LAKE

Patrons' Association To Manage Institution Thirty Days Until Board Of Directors Meets

TWENTY PUPILS ENROLL

The Self-Help college at Mountain Lake Park reopened on Monday, March 6, with local contributions of money and food enabling the resumption of classes which discontinued after last Thanksgiving's holiday.

Twenty of the fifty students enrolled last fall reported for the reopening of class work.

C. C. Gnegy, president of the Patrons' Association, announced the management and sponsorship of the school would be supervised by his group for at least thirty days "until certain questions arising in connection with operation of the school are acted upon by the full board of directors."

After the school closed early last December a number of Mt. Lake people got together and formed a Patrons' Association which has met frequently in an attempt to place the school on a workable basis. It was proposed that management of the school should be transferred to local interests. The association was formed with Mr. Gnegy president, and H. M. Weeks as treasurer.

"Contributions of money and food from residents in the neighborhood are expected to keep the school open this time," Mr. Gnegy said. It was also stated that the entrance requirements for students had been made more strict.

Students of the University are being served meals at the home of Mrs. Nettie J. Eichelberger, Hopewell Cottage, for 25 cents daily.

The board of directors is expected to meet within the next month to decide definitely on the program of the school.

Miss Amy Bunker, graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan college, was placed in charge of the home economics department to augment the teaching staff as the school reopened on Monday.

Credits of the "college" are cleared through Salem College, Salem, West Va.

A Variety of Weather Arrives

Sunshine, a full moon, thunder and lightning and a strong March wind combined the past week to give Garrett county a taste of spring, but left enough tang in the air to remind one that winter wasn't yet over.

Lightning flashed Sunday night following a day which saw the thermometer rise to 66, the warmest of the week. This condition had been preceded last Friday morning with a reading of 12 degrees above zero, and the same reading was recorded yesterday morning at Weber's.

February, according to the State Weather Bureau, was the warmest since 1932 and the wettest since the year 1897.

Theatre Tax For Year Reaches Sum of $974.96

Receipts from the Sunday moving picture tax during the past year ending February 28, reached a new high when the city clerk announced that $974.96 had been turned over to him from Bernard I. Gonder, manager of the Maryland Theatre, for the past year.

Arthur Lawton, clerk, reported that disbursements were as follows: Children's Aid Society, $487.48; Oakland Fire Department, $243.74; Oakland Public Library, $243.74. This division of funds received is provided for in the law as passed by the Legislature in 1937.

More Farmers Get Checks For Conservation Practices

Seventy-five more farmers received payments this week from the Federal Government for carrying out conservation practices on their farms. Their checks totaled $2,882.28, and brought the total to 987 farmers who had received $38,372.81.

This leaves a balance of 150 farmers who will receive approximately $10,000 in the future, it is estimated.

Six more checks were received yesterday at the office of the County Agent, for delivery to soil conservationists. These checks averaged more than $200 each and totaled $1,349.19.

WORK IS PROGRESSING ON ADDITIONS TO 2 SCHOOLS

First Floor Of Kitzmiller Addition Completed On Tuesday

Workmen on Tuesday completed the first floor of the new $40,995 addition to the school at Kitzmiller and are now at work finishing the first floor at the $35,995 addition to the Oakland Elementary school, according to a report made Tuesday to John B. O'Donnell, resident engineer inspector for the Public Works Administration. The PWA has provided a grant of $38,664 toward the project.

Mr. O'Donnell reported to Col. E. M. Gilmore, regional director, that completion of this phase of the job is slightly behind schedule, due to the weather conditions prevailing.

The additions to these schools are slated to be ready for use by July 31. Forty-four men are employed on these two jobs.

With the completion of the first floor, the next construction step will be the exterior walls, which will be started immediately, Mr. O'Donnell stated.

SPORTSMEN FAVOR CHANGE IN CONSERVATION SET-UP

Want Upland Matters Separate From Bay Fisheries Problems; 50 Attend Meeting Sunday

A meeting of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association was held in the City Hall in Oakland Sunday afternoon with more than fifty in attendance. The principal interest of the Association at this time is in the reorganization of the Conservation Commission, according to H. C. Riggs, president. The various bills introduced in the Assembly were discussed and the group went on record as approving unanimously separation of the bay industries from the sporting element and the creation of a separate commission for handling angling and hunting.

The secretary reported 84 memberships to date and the members seemed confident that 500 or more will be obtained within a short time. It was pointed out that the particular need in this county is organized effort and the larger the organization the more can be accomplished toward making this county a real sportsman's paradise.

The organization is pledged to uphold sportsmanship ideals. It pledges itself to protect the farmer and landowner: to assist in making arrests of violators; to see that the conservation laws are obeyed, and to aid the Commission in its work of restocking.

Another meeting will be held in the City Hall on next Monday evening to discuss the progess made in the Assembly on the conservation bill and any other matters of interest to the sportsmen.

As originally announced, the high schools and boys' organizations are requested to elect two members to represent them at all meetings of the Association. These members will not be required to pay any dues. Their cooperation and interest in conservation work is needed if there is to be anything for the younger generation to enjoy later on, was Mr. Riggs' conclusion.

Oakland Cage Teams To Oppose Allegany County Champs

The boys' and girls' basketball teams of Oakland High, Garrett county champions, will meet the Fort Hill High boys' team, Cumberland, and the girls' team of Central High, Lonaconing, Allegany county's representatives in the annual Western Shore public school championship elimination series, on the Frostburg State College court on Friday afternoon.

The girls' game will start at 2:30, with the boys' contest following at 3:30, according to arrangements completed by Thomas C. Ferguson, director of physical education and recreation for the State Department of Education.

Director Ferguson has sent official notice to the local school that Oakland's two teams had qualified for the games by capturing Garrett county titles in their respecitve divisions.

W. A. Gonder is spending this week at Annapolis and in New York City. In New York Mr. Gonder is visiting his two daughters, who remain as patients in a hospital there where they are recovering from injuries sustained in a fire which occurred three or four weeks ago, and in which they were both badly burned.

RELIEF SITUATION AGAIN COMING BEFORE PEOPLE

Same Condition Exists Now As Was Case In February—No Solution Offered For Difficulty

TEACHERS TO GET CHECKS

The old saying that "Shakespeare doesn't repeat" seemingly has nothing whatever to do with the relief situation, as the same situation is arising again this month in regard to the county's share of the funds as was the case last month.

As far as can be learned Garrett county officials still had not worked out any permanent solution of difficulties which tied up February relief funds, although $1,787.55 from an unknown source released welfare money on February 28 a few hours before State and Federal grants would have been lost for lack of local matching funds.

Everybody but the 130 persons on general public assistance rolls received their February money, and surplus commodities have been issued to the public assistance cases to prevent suffering.

But now the same condition as existed in February begins again. March checks are due from aid to dependent children funds, and it takes about $170 to release state funds amounting to approximately $3,300. On the 15th, old-age assistance checks will be due and the county must furnish one-sixth or about $1000. The county must furnish all money to care for general public assistance cases.

The Commissioners still refuse to state from whom the money had been received last month. B. F. Epstein, attorney for the commissioners, said the money had come from an individual in Garrett county. "I don't know where it came from," said Blaine Giessman, president of the Commissioners. "I don't know either," said Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the Welfare board.

Nothing additional was done this week in seeking to obtain funds until the taxes started coming in. Miss Miller said she had received no money for March. Mr. Giessman said the regular meeting of the Commissioners this week had been a quiet one. They met with the Board of Education for a brief time Tuesday. They did not state that more money would be available this month from the same source they had received it from in February.

F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, stated this morning that salary checks for teachers would be mailed as usual. The Board had received a part payment from the state within the past few days, he said.

Meetings Next Week To Discuss Potato Production in County

Meetings to discuss potato production in the county will be conducted next week by John H. Carter, County Agent. Assisting him will be L. S. Hartley, district agricultural agent of the B. & O. Railroad.

Meetings will be held in the high schools of the county as follows:

Friendsville, March 13, 7:30 p. m.; Oakland, March 14, 7:30 p. m.; Grantsville, March 15, 7:30 p. m.; Accident, March 16, 7:30 p. m.

Mr. Carter said that the poor season last year has left Garrett county potato producers without adequate seed, and a seed source will be discussed at these meetings.

May Apply For Seed Loans

G. T. Umbarger, field supervisor for the Emergency Crop and Seed Loan office, will be at the office of the County Agent. Court House, Oakland, on Thursday, March 16, to receive applications for seed loans. Any interested farmer may interview Mr. Umbarger at the County Agent's office that day.

Girl Scouts To Observe Anniversary week

On Sunday, March 12, the Girl Scouts of Troops 2 and 3 will assist at a high mass in St. Peter's church to mark the opening of National Girl Scout Week. It was on March 12, 1912, that the Girl Scouts were first organized. That day this year will mark the twenty-seventh anniversary of the movement.

Miss Catherine Baker is scout captain of troop 2, with Mrs. Harry Stemple, lieutenant. Miss Margaret Stanton is captain of troop Number 3, with Mrs. Sherman White as lieutenant.

Scoop's Column

BY Scoop Himself

This Is Real Freedom

Just what do you think would happen to anyone who held a meeting in Berlin at which he denounced the Nazi government and its officials, referred contemptuously to the Chancellor as "Adolph Hitlerovich," and advocated a virtual revolution?

The participants in the meeting would find themselves swiftly incarcerated in a concentration camp—if they were fortunate enough to escape the headsman's axe.

Yet, in New York, the German-American Bund recently held a meeting in Madison Square Garden, which was decorated for the occasion with swastika flags and guarded by men wearing Nazi storm-trooper uniforms, at which the speakers sneered at the President of the United States and called him "Franklin Rosenfeld", denounced high government officials, including a distinguished justice of the Supreme Court, called for the extermination of the Jews, and pledged themselves to establish a virtual Nazi dictatorship in this country.

And what happened— Were the Bund members arrested as enemies of the government— No—instead one of the largest concentrations of police in New York's history surrounded the meeting place and protected them while they aired their views, which would destroy the freedom and protection they were enjoying.

There isn't another country in the world where that could happen. For there isn't another country in the world where the cardinal tenet of democracy, free speech, is so zealously protected. And free speech means the right to speak by those with whom you most violently disagree, as well as those with whom you agree. It means the right to call for a change in government. It means giving the people every chance to hear all sides of a controversy, and to weigh fact against fact and theory against theory before reaching a decision.

This is something to remember when you hear someone denouncing America and its institutions, freedom of the press, etc. Think of what happens to those bold enough to speak, even in moderate terms, against the regimes in power in Germany, Russia, Italy, and a host of smaller countries.

Ours is a freedom possessed by no other people. Why should people try to destroy it? It is only the ignorant who will listen to plans to make this Nation a dictatorship.

The gross federal debt on that date was $39,847,114,518.13. Your per capita share of that debt is $306.52.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, March 8, 1939.

To use a phrase made famous hy a prominent politician in the past election campaign, "the hour grows late."

The hour has heen growing late for some time! If our Legislature doesn't soon wake up there will be but a few minutes left in the session and with ninety per cent of the work unfinished. All major state problems still remain problems while the lawmakers amuse themselves and the galleries by wrangling over minor issues and raising their voices over unimportant party measures. Although there isn't much in the way of legislation to report this week, we have found many amusing incidents which we shall attempt to convey. Most amusing is the appearance of several gentlemen from Garrett county who claim to have the interests of the taxpayers at heart, and who are to he seen everywhere as lobbyists. One of these gentleman is spending the greater part of his time lobbying against the proposed bill to prohibit the sale of fireworks in the state. The other active lobbyist is on the politically ambitions side and is working in behalf of the County Commissioners. He may be an interested taxpayer, but we venture the guess that there is a greater motive behind the sudden interest. It might be interesting to know who is paying the bill.

Also adding color to the scene and at the same time giving the Garrett delegation more to worry with, and about, was the arrival of a former delegate early this week. While being a fine chap, he just can't forget that he was once a member of the lower house and so in typical fashion he has attempted to "take over" and tell the boys how it should be done.

The above mentioned fireworks bill is meeting with a great deal of pro and con discussion. Large groups of interested persons are at Annapolis in connection with it. One group is civic minded—thinking of the dangers of, and the hundreds who are injured each Fourth by fireworks. The other group is interested only in the profits which they reap each year from the sale of fireworks and they are prepared to fight the bill to a finish. Knowing the Maryland Legislature as we do, it is hard to believe that they will go along with safety-first minded citizens and prohibit the sale of the small devices which injure hundreds of children each year. It looks like another victory for the lobbyists!

Sometimes after watching the nasty situations which are created by shrewd lobbyists we wonder if it wouldn't be a grand idea to lock up the members of our Legislature when they convene and not open the gates until they have completed their job. If this were possible then our lawmakers would have the opportunity to think for themselves; but this would be political suicide.

Now for a few lines about legislation concerning Garrett county. After much pressure from all sides, Delegates Martin and Grove have introduced, "by request," a bill which if passed would authorize the county commissioners to borrow up to one-third of the estimated return from county taxes. This bill would help the commissioners to avoid embarrassing financial difficulties during the period of the year when there is no money to meet necessary expenses. The phrase "by request" means that the men who introoduced the bill are not necessarily backing it, and may not even favor its passage. While on the subject of taxes we might note in passing that the revised tax bill is moving and will be passed within a few days.

Delegate Groves has introduced a bill which shows a decided lack of cooperation among the members of the county delegation. His bill, if passed, would repeal the sums of money given each year to the communities of Swanton and Friendsville. The money is diverted from the gasoline tax, and Swanton receives $150.00 each year while Friendsville receives $400.00. This money is used to keep the streets and sidewalks of the respective communities in repair. As we reported last week, Darwin Martin introduced a bill similar to the laws which Mr. Groves is attempting to repeal and which would give the community of Kempton $400.00 per year for street and road maintenance. At this writing it is difficult to determine the conflict between the two delegates. However, we are certain that before another week rolls around, they will have gotten together and will have the situation well in hand. Throughout the session the members of the Garrett county delegation have been working together very smoothly and we are inclined to believe that this little break in cooperation will not be at all serious.

Since the hour grows late and the deadline is not far away, we are reminded that time nor trains wait for no man. With this thought and suggestion to the Maryland Legislature, we conclude for another week.

Local Office Of Employment Service Offers Assistance

As the local office of the Maryland State Employment service often receives requests from private employers for girls to do housework or restaurant work, those in charge are urging that girls with some experience in these types of work register at the office in the McIntire building in order that they may be referred when an order is received.

Milburn W. Mann, interviewer in charge, stated that the local office could also be of service to employers by referring girls to take care of children during evening social functions, and by sending qualified persons to those wanting spring house cleaning completed.

"We can supply almost any type of person if the employer will specify qualifications necessary," Mr. Mann said.

The office is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday each week from 8:30 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. The phone is 273.

Oakland Routs Elk Garden

Oakland High school boys' basketball team easily defeated the quint from Elk Garden, West Va., last Saturday evening, the final score being 52 to 21. The game was played at Oakland.

Oakland led all the way, having a 31-17 edge at the half. Kley was Oakland's leading scorer, shooting fourteen field goals. Oakland used numerous substitutes throughout the game. The smallness of the Elk Garden players was their chief handicap. Murphy was their high point man with eight field goals and one foul.

Oakland High boys' and girls' teams lost to Bruce High of Westernport on the local court last night, the boys being defeated 27 to 19. Oakland led 6-4 at the first quarter, but Bruce put on speed in the second to score 14 points while holding Oakland to 5. Oakland in the third scored five and held Bruce scoreless, but a rally in the last quarter gave Bruce the game. The Bruce girls won by a two-point margin.

MT. LAKE PARK

There is nothing new under the sun — what it has been and yet shall be. The cry of the passing hour is as old as time. To-day's weariness, perplexity and ingratitude are all transitory — throbs of sorrow.

But there is one solid seeming thing in this scheme of life — kindness and helpfulness to others. We have more than once harped upon this particular thing and have said that nowhere else can there be such neighborliness and goodness as in the small community of Mountain Lake Park — and once again we must mention it, even tho you may be bored.

A day or two ago a young couple their little one, and on the day following one of our neighbors lost their eleven-months-old daughter — their first born. It was stark tragedy to both couples. The community people did all they could to relieve the suffering minds of the young mothers and make them see that it was the plan of the All-Wise.

No matter what your own troubles may be, it just seems to be in the air to help others if you can. And they usually do it here.

The garbage collector will be along shortly, if this weather continues as it has the past few days.

Personal:

William McRobie, Jr., went to Pittsburgh several weeks ago to do some interior decorating. He will return to the Park in a few days.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church will conduct a chicken and waffle supper on April 13 in the basement of the church. The supper was to have been held on March 23, but has been postponed until after Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Mellis Wiltshire, of Fairmont, were visitors with Mrs. J. A. Clark on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Doman and son Bobby, Miss Rhoda Calhoun and Miss Bonnie Riggs, all of Cumberland, were here the past week, called by the serious illness of Mrs. Annie Calhoun, mother of Mrs. Doman and Miss Calhoun.

Mrs. Allie Haymond has been ill for several days at her home here.

The Neighborhood club met at the home of Mrs. Charles May on Wednesday.

Mrs. Gregory Bleakly, Jr., has returned to her home in Cumberland after spending some time with Mr. Bleakly's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Gregory Bleakly, in the Park.

Albert Brown and Charles Brown visited their mother in Philippi this week. Mrs. Brown is in a hospital in that town, where she underwent a major operation recently.

Mrs. Rodney Johnson is seriously ill at her home here.

Mrs. A. E. Schaeffer and daughter, Mrs. Albert Brown, motored to points in Pennsylvania this week.

Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Hall. Mr. and Mrs. George Dawson and Mrs. Samuel Cole motored to Pittsburgh on Tuesday for a short stay.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pollard, Hagerstown, Md., on Saturday, March 4, a daughter. Mrs. Pollard is the daughter of the late Major Skyles and Mrs. Skyles.

The contribution for Spanish relief by the Union Sunday school on Sunday was $5.03.

Emra Pike, of Eglon, preached on "Growing in Grace." In the afternoon Mr. Pike conducted a service for Miss Minnie Shaffer. Others recently visiting Miss Shaffer were Mrs. Clarence Fulk, Misses Mattie Davis, Lena Slabach, Laura Ridder, Mrs. Mary Burkholder and Mrs. Otho Friend.

On last Tuesday evening when Miss Cleda Friend, Miss Elma Beckman and Messrs. Sam Friend and Merle Swartzentruber were returning home from Loch Lynn, their car became stalled between the rails of the B. & O. at the Beckman crossing. A train on the opposite track thundered by scraping their machine only slightly. They knew the National Limited was due in a very few minutes running upon the track they blocked. The boys had presence of mind enough to run to the tower at Mountain Lake Park and have trains stopped until they could obtain the services of a wrecker to remove the car from the rails.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein and daughter returned home Thursday from a visit made in Lakeland, Florida.

Mrs. Jane Beeghley has returned from a two-weeks' visit at Swallow Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gortner and Mrs. Anna Bittinger were in Cumberland on Saturday. Mrs. Gortner was informed at the hospital that by returning frequently and receiving a prescribed treatment she would probably avoid another surgical operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beeghley and son were in Meyersdale, Pa., on Friday where the boy was treated for an eye infection.

Mr. and Mrs. Otho Friend and children and Miss Clara Liller, of Pleasant Valley, spent Saturday in Bedford, Pa. They were accompanied home by Miss Laura Alice Friend.

Billy Fulk spent Sunday with relatives at Sunnyside.

Mrs. Nora Swiers, Loch Lynn; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schlossnagle and children and Mrs. Amanda Hoff were visiting in Bittinger on Sunday.

John and Robert Burkholder, Brandonville, W. Va., visited Mrs. Albert Sisk on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. George Herd and son, Richwood, W. Va., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Will Welch and attended the funeral of a relative, the late Jack Cramer, at Bayard, W. Va.

Mrs. Simon Swartzentruber was ill several days last week.

Mrs. Cora Cramer has returned to Terra Alta after staying several weeks as a guest of relatives here.

Miss Mary Martin has returned to her home here.

BITTINGER

Of the wrongs men do, we're guilty too,
In one way or another;
Yet how prone we be, both you and me,
To criticize a brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Buckle, accompanied by Jacob Brenneman, made a business trip to Grantsville last Saturday.

Clarence Stephen, of the Glades, was a pleasant caller in this village last Sunday afternoon.

Miss Marie Wiley, a student nurse at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, spent part of Sunday with relatives here.

Miss Ruth Emory entertained the Busy Workers' Sunday school class at her home on Sunday afternoon.

The spring-like weather of the past week produced pronounced activity in the maple sugar camps in this community.

Miss Iva Beitzell, of Cumberland, is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Beitzell, at their home near here.

Elwood Glotfelty has purchased a match team of horses and intends to use the animals on his farm.

Less W. Md. Power Company obligation	23,000
Bonds still owing	$49,000

In addition to the above there is due the Garrett National Bank $5,700, and the First National Bank $4,066.50; water deposits amount to $773.50. These items make a total of $59,540 that the town owes, which is three per cent of the town's assessable basis of approximately two million dollars.

Current bills are paid up to date, the Council having passed on the February bills Tuesday night, amounting to $1,022.82. This leaves a balance of $1,364 as cash on hand, beginning on March 1.

The town's assets include the water and sewerage system, with two reservoirs, the city building, the fire department equipment, the water farm, golf course and other minor items. There are also back taxes estimated at about $11,000, some of the amounts going back as far as 1929. Last year's statement showed $1,382.52 uncollected in 1930 and $3,190.06 uncollected in 1931. The four years following 1931 have less than $1,000 uncollected, according to last year's statement.

At the meeting held Monday evening the clerk's report for the month was accepted, showing receipts of $829.79.

Council decided to put in a sewer line on Green street between Sixth and Seventh streets.

Ernest W. Gauer was given the contract for garbage collection for $75 per month.

A committee from the American Legion expressed its thanks to Council for the use of the City Hall during the past year.

The clerk's salary for the month of March was made $125.

A representative of several persons in town interested in the golf course outlined a proposal to Council whereby an operating committee would have charge of the course during 1939 and guarantee Council six per cent on its investment of $6,000, the operating committee members to pay all bills. This would give the town a sure income of $360. Council is to draw an agreement to this effect.

O'CONOR DEMANDS SPEED OF STATE'S LEGISLATORS

Wants Consideration Of Many Bills Now Jammed In Committees As End Of Session Nears

SOLONS AGREE TO HURRY

With a "get-to-work" edict from Governor O'Conor, Maryland's legislators yesterday buckled down to the task of clearing away approximately 800 bills jammed in committees.

The Governor issued his ultimatum to a group of seven leadership senators and delegates, and the House took it to heart by limiting its afternoon session to six minutes so that the Ways and Means Committee could work on bills in its files.

Senate Picks Up Speed

The Senate immediately picked up speed by struggling through 31 reports handed down by its committees. Forty-five bills were placed on the third reading and final passage file for action later in the day.

While the House Ways and Means Committee wrestled all afternoon with bills before it, the Senate Finance Committee held open house for county commissioners from the Eastern Shore who came over to confer about legislation affecting the nine counties.

Uppermost in their minds were relief, schools, road improvements and a special primary election proposed in the first congressional district to determine the candidates who will run for the seat to be vacated by Representative T. Allan Goldsborough. He recently was appointed to a Federal judgeship in the District of Columbia.

Oppose Special Primary

Two hours of discussion between commissioners and committeemen showed a majority opposed to the special primary and any increase in teachers' salaries if counties had to foot the bill.

On whether or not the control of county roads should be taken away from the State Roads Commission and returned to the counties, sentiment appeared divided. The group finally decided to notify its legislative delegations as to the final decisions.

On relief, the commissioners told the committee they favored control by the county commissioners of funds expended for general public assistance. Proposals to return administration of direct relief to the county commissioners produced various reactions with no definite conclusion reached at the meeting.

The commissioners held an executive session in the State House to formulate their legislative program before laying it before the committee headed by Senator Dudley G. Roe, long time Eastern Shore political leader and administration floor general in the Senate.

Hear Plea of Teachers

The House Ways and Means Committee took time out from its deliberations to hear a plea by 400 teachers, educators and parents of school children that teachers' salaries be increased.

Assertions that the school marms now "enjoy a genteel, respectable poverty" and that Maryland's best teachers are being snapped up by other states which pay higher salaries were heard during the debate.

The seven leaders summoned by Governor O'Conor came out of the closed session with declarations that the legislature "will go into high gear now."

More than 850 bills await final action as against the 110 which have been finally adopted by both houses.

Many New Bills

Between 35 and 40 new bills have been going into the hopper daily. Then days remain before the files are closed. The session has 20 more days to run before its close, April 4.

Charges that votes against the proposed ban on fireworks sales were bought were made on the floor of the House last night in the most bitter battle of the session. The bill had already passed through the second reading 62 to 52 on Monday. Delegate B. L. Boone, Baltimore, a first termer was leading the fight in favor of the anti-fireworks law.

Legislation repealing Maryland's complicated second-choice voting system passed the senate unanimously yesterday and was sent to the House of Delegates.

To make sure that Baltimore county would not lose $75,000 a year in revenue from the Pimlico race track, the administration's $8,500,000 annual tax program was returned to the Senate's finance committee for amendment. Leaders insisted there was no disagreement on the measure.

DISTRIBUTION OF TROUT IN STREAMS IS COMPLTED

Several Thousand Of Legal Size And Over Put In County Waters

Quite a number of streams of the county, including Savage River, have been stocked with brook and rainbow trout of legal size or over, in preparation for the opening of the fishing on April 1, it was announced this morning by Richard S. Browning, Game Warden.

Mr. Browning said several thousand trout, seven inches and over, had been distributed during the past two months and that the work was now completed.

Streams recently stocked include Bear Creek, White Rock, Salt Block, Lost Land Run, Wolf Den Run, Herrington Creek, Laurel Run, Piney Run, Meese Run and Savage River. The fish were reared in the ponds of the Bear Creek and Lewistown hatcheries.

The trout fishing season runs from April 1 to Joune 30, except in Deep Creek Lake, where a special law governs.

PLEADS GUILTY TO DRUNK CHARGE; GIVEN 90 DAYS

Andrew C. Gonder, of Oakland, Nabbed By West Va. Officers

Pleading guilty to a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated in a Justice of the Peace court in Kingwood, Preston county, West Va., yesterday, Andrew C. Gonder, 25, of Oakland, was sentenced to serve 90 days in the Kingwood Jail, was fined $25, had his operator's license revoked for six months and his car impounded, according to W. C. Davis, West Virginia Police trooper, who filed the charge against Gonder.

Davis said that a dramatic chase on Monday night had resulted in Gonder's approhension and that six shots were poured into the automobile driven by Gonder before he was halted a moment after narrowly missing a small child on the highway leading through Kingwood.

Expert maneuvering of the State police car by Trooper Davis ended Gonder's flight, according to Ted Zinn, deputy sheriff at Kingwood. The bumper of the police car was hooked on the rear bumper of the Gonder sedan after the driver failed to heed the warning of the police gunfire.

The chase covered more than five miles. the race beginning five miles west of Kingwood.

Trooper Davis said Gonder ignored the official's signal to stop after a call came to Sheriff Carl Roth's headquarters from Masontown. Gonder was trailed to Kingwood when bullets from the pursuing officer's gun struck one of the rear tires, but the leading car continued on through Kingwood at a high rate of speed, finally being stopped on the eastern edge of town.

Yesterday Was Final Day To File Income Tax Returns

Approximately 260,000 residents of Maryland and the District of Columbia beat the midnight deadline for payment of 1938 income taxes. Local attorneys and business men who have a "knack" for figures have been extremely busy the past few days filling out income tax returns for various individuals.

"The complicated system of returns gets worse every year," said one. "The only thing to do is to do the best we can and give the government the benefit of the doubt. In that way the only comeback will be a rebate, which doesn't happen very often."

107,285 Auto Tags Are Issued

The office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles in Baltimore had issued 107,285 new 1939 automobile license tags up to Saturday. They could have been placed on vehicles yesterday, March 15, although the present tags are good until midnight March 31.

While 6,361 more tags have been sold thus far this year as compared to last year, a greater last minute rush than last year is expected. The deadline for obtaining new plates falls March 31. More tags are expected to be issued this year than last, due to the registration of 10,000 more vehicles.

GARRETT COUNTY VISITED BY SEVERE SLEET STORM

Causes Damage to Trees and to Telephone and Electric Lines

The most severe sleet storm of the year which visited most of Garrett county over the week-end caused hundreds of dollars worth of damage to telephone, telegraph and electric lines in the northern section of the county and along route 219, on account of the heavy accumulation of ice on the wires.

Telephone service to any point out of Grantsville was entirely cut off Sunday and Monday and wires in the rurnl districts were reported down. An official of the Telegraph company stated that forty poles were down between Grantsville and Frostburg alone, while the line erected last year to Friendsville and Accident from Oakland was also down in several places.

Electric current into Grantsville was off from midnight Sunday night until noon Monday which caused inconvenience to persons depending on that means for cooking and heating purposes. Workmen from all three companies were kept busy this week making necessary repairs.

An official of the C. and P. Telephone Company stated that the major part of the repair work had been completed. He also reported five miles of wire down on the Cumberland-Meyersdale line; two miles of wire down on the Friendsville-Oakland line; one-quarter of a mile of wire down on the Oakland-Kitzmiller line; one mile of wire down on the Cumberland to Parkersburg toll line, and about ten poles broken in the general neighborhood of Oakland.

It was also reported many sugar groves were also damaged when branches of the trees became so heavily coated with ice that they were broken off.

The region of Deep Creek Lake and the Grantsville section were harder hit than any other area, although Oakland and vicinity received a quantity of sleet on Sunday afternoon, but not enough to damage trees to any great extent.

Roads were icy and dangerous to travel and a number of motorists were unable to negotiate the hill to Table Rock Sunday night and had to spend the night in nearby farm houses or came to Oakland. About two inches of snow fell Sunday night, but practically all of it had disappeared by Tuesday morning.

Performing in the usual March way, however, Tuesday was clear and warm.

MAY ERECT COMMUNITY BUILDING ON TOWN LOT

North Third Street Section Being Considered By City Council

The possibility of erecting the Community building on the town lots at the north edge of town, in order to save the cost of a lot in the downtown section, was discussed at a special meeting of the Mayor and city councilmen last evening.

The Councilmen were of the opinion that the prices being asked for several available lots in the downtown area were too high and that the selection of a site for the building could not be delayed too long. It was stated there was plenty of room on the town property.

Edward A. Shaffer, president of the council, tendered his resignation in a letter which was accepted by the Council. Mr. Shaffer's term would have expired the last of this month. He stated he had not been feeling well and that as several matters might come up this month which the future councilmen would decide, he suggested that Delbert Davis, newly elected councilman, be appointed to fill the unexpired term, which was done. Irvin R. Rudy was made president, pro-tem, until the reorganization in April.

The clerk was instructed to prepare some regulations for distribution to citizens on how to prepare their garbage for collection by the town.

James Spencer, golf pro, was employed for the period of one year with privilege of two years, at $65 per month.

James Pollock, field supervisor. WPA., presented a project calling for beautification of the golf course, including the planting of numerous trees, drainage, sowing of grass seed, etc., at practically no cost to the town, which was accepted by Council.

FARMERS SHOULD WATCH FOR JAPANESE BEETLES

They Haven't Appeared In Garrett County Yet, But They Are Being Fought In Allegany

USE 200 PLANTS FOR FOOD

The Garrett county farmer who is wise, will be on the lookout this year for the Japanese beetle, even though Garrett county thus far is the only county of the State in which no beetles have been sighted. But they are in Allegany county and may get a start here if not checked at the beginning.

War on the hordes of Japanese beetles invading Allegany county was declared Tuesday at a meeting of the farmers and officials in Cumberland. The County Commissioner's there agreed to assist the State Department of Entomology and the Federal Government in the battle.

There will be about four thousand traps scattered through the county and attended by WPA workers. Assistants in the extermination of the pests will be some peculiar types of wasps which will destroy the invading beetles but do not damage growing crops themselves. One type of wasp feed of the grubs of the beetle, another on the adult destroyer. Last year 364 colonies of these natural enemies of the beetle were released in the more affected counties of Maryland.

Although the beetles have not arrived in Allegany county in any great numbers yet, they are committing great damage in eastern parts of the State and will spread rapidly unless fought with all available weapons, it was reported.

There were 3,400 traps set last year in Cumberland and in them were caught 34,764 beetles. A hundred traps set in Frostburg netted only twelve beetles. Another hundred traps in Westernport netted not even one of the beetles. There were 40,000 traps set throughout the State last year from which 615 barrels of beetles were taken. The beetles have been in Maryland since 1926.

They attack more than two hundred different species of plants, including practically everything but evergreen trees. The chief crops attacked are corn, apples, peaches, soybeans, grapes, timathy and alfalfa.

Beetles also thrive on grass plots about homes, on golf courses and in cemeteries. Home owners are urged to battle them by applying ten pounds of arsenate of lead to every thousand square feet of lawn.

Further information may be obtained from bulletins in the office of John R. Curter, County Agent, in Oakland.

Grand Jurors To Convene On Monday Morning

Grand jurors for the March term of the Garrett County Circuit Court will convene Monday morning to receive the charge, to be delivered either by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, or Associate Judge William A. Huster, after which they will begin their investigation of criminal matters occurring in the county since September.

While there are no outstanding cases to be brought before the investigating body there are sure to be several events placed before the jurors by State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley.

There was the attempted rohbery of the henhouse of Jacob Beitzel in which Paul Pratt was wounded. Others held in this case at the time were John Pratt, Arthur Alexander and Wilson Alexander.

Some disposition will be made of the charges of arson against Frank Westlake and Woodrow Baker. Westlake died of pneumonia recently.

There are also some alleged forgers to be disposed of and three youths against whom there are charges of defrauding the state of Maryland in claiming tax refunds on gasoline.

Rev. W. S. Patterson will preach at the Union Lenten service scheduled for next Wednesday evening, March 22, nt St. Mark's Lutheran church. His subject will be the fourth petition from the Lord's Prayer, "Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread."

The service last night was held at the Lutheran church with Rev. D. C. Trimble, of the Episcopal church, delivering the message.

LIGHT VOTE IS CAST IN TOWN ELECTION MONDAY

Only Required Number Of Candidates Named at Citizens' Meeting

Lack of opposing candidates and consequently lack of a contest in the annual municipal election likewise caused a lack of interest in the voting of residents on Monday and only forty-nine ballots were cast for the three candidates for members of the Council. Only one vote for each, however, was necessary for election.

Those elected to serve two years on the governing body were Emroy Botden, Delbert M. Davis and Irvin R. Rudy. Richard L. Davis was chosen treasurer for another term of one year. These were the only candidates nominated at the citizens' meeting on the evening of March 7.

The Council will organize at the regular meeting in April. Hold-over members are Earl W. Sartzer, Henry W. McComas, Jr., and Raymond D. Houck.

It was the decision of the outgoing council that nothing definite would be done toward the selection of a site for the community building until the new Council had met and organized.

COUNTY GIRL TO ATTEND NATIONAL 4-H CLUB CAMP

Miss Jessie Guard Is One of Four Chosen To Represent Maryland

Miss Jessie Guard, of near Friendsville, was one of four delegates chosen to represent Maryland at the annual National 4-H Club Camp.

The delegates, all of whom have been in club work from three to seven years each, also included Katherine Umbel, Baltimore county; William Powell, Allegany county, and George Lechlider, Montgomery county.

The camp will be held in Washington from June 15 to 21.

Miss Guard is the second girl ever to be selected from this county to attend the annual camp. Miss Mildred Stempel (now Mrs. George Altstetter, of Clarion, Pa.) won that distinction several years ago. Miss Guard is a daughter of Dorsey Guard and the late Mrs. Guard, and resides on her father's farm between Friendsville and Somerfield, Pa.

Miss Guard is president of the Garrett County Older Youth club, and has been an active member of a 4-H club for three years. She is president of the county 4-H Club Council and was a delegate to the State 4-H Club Council meeting. In other activities Miss Guard is president of the Young People's Department in her local church; chairman of the Missionary Society and is also a teacher of a young people's Sunday school class. She was also a delegate to the Rural Women's Short Course at College Park last year as a representative of the Yough group.

Selection as a State representative to the National 4-H club camp is considered quite an honor, two boys and two girls from each State being chosen each year for outstanding work.

NORVAL SPEELMAN MADE ORPHANS' COURT JUDGE

Appointed By Governor O'Conor To Fill Unexpired Term of the Late Judge W. A. Smith

Norval Speelman, Friendsville resident, was appointed Chief Judge of the Garrett County Orphans' Court last Thursday by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor, to fill out the unexpired term of the late William A. Smith, of Hoyes, whose death recently occurred.

The State Senate at Annapolis confirmed the appointment of Mr. Speelman on Tuesday and his commission issued at the Executice Office at Annapolis, was received at the office of the Clerk of the Garrett County Circuit Court on Wednesday morning of this week. Because of the delay in making the appointment of Judge Smith's successor, Mr. Speelman did not sit with other members of the court on Tuesday, consequently there were a number of items of business held up, according to Mrs. Vernie R. Smouse, Register of Wills.

Mr. Speelman was the only person recommended for appointment by the Democratic State Central Committee of this county. He is a former member of the Board of Education, and made a good showing on the Democratic ticket as a candidate for County Commissioners at the general election in November.

CHILDREN OBTAIN RELIEF FOR MARCH; OTHERS WAIT

Last Month's Situation Apparently Being Repeated; Old Age Pension Funds Again Past Due

NO MONEY IS AVAILABLE

Last month's relief progress on obtaining county and State funds was being repeated here again this month with much similarity, especially as far as the first half of the month is concerned.

Whether the final half of the month will repeat February's history, only time will tell.

At any rate, the relief situation became partially eased last Saturday when the County Commissioners issued a cashable order of $310.55, which was sufficient to release funds for aid of dependent children, pay drayage for surplus commodities and pay the needed twenty per cent on two weeks of administration costs. The same amount was furnished on February 13 for last month's share.

Of the total amount paid the Welfare Board Saturday, $168.38 was required to release $3,300 among the 320 or more cases coming under Aid to Dependent Children. The remainder, $142.17, furnished the 20 per cent of administration costs and payment for drayage on surplus commodities.

No funds for old-age pensions, aid to the blind or general public assistance cases has been received at the County Welfare Board, according to Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary, and the entanglement which almost prevented mailing of relief checks last month to old-age pensioners and the blind seems likely to be repeated this month.

Officials of the State and Federal Governments have said that they will not give the county the five-sixth of the old-age assistance fund they pay until the county puts up its one-sixth, or about $1,000. On February 28, a few hours before the offer of Federal and State funds would have lapsed, $1,787 was given from a source which still has not been made public. With this amount on hand, all relief clients except about 130 cases on direct relief recceived their February allotments.

March checks for dependent children have been mailed and the old-age pension checks were due on the 15th.

Commissioners would not state whether they expected more money from the same unpublicized source which provided the February funds. The cashable order for $310.55 was drawn on the 1939 contingent levy fund. No 1939 taxes have been received except from the special beer taxes.

The Commissioners were not in session this week.

Direct relief clients who are entirely dependent on county funds, did not get any money in February and have had none thus far in March. Miss Miller said surplus commodities were being distributed to keep them from actual need of food, and that a new supply of commodities was expected to arrive here within a few days.

Speicher at Accident Stock Yards, where farmers and others having live stock, machinery or property of all kinds may take their holdings to the yards and there have it auctioned off Wednesday of each week and receive cash, less a small commission for expenses incident to the auction.

On next Wednesday, March 22, beginning at 10:30 o'clock there will be on sale 25 or more head of horses, 15 or more head of fat cattle, hogs, veal calves, goats, cows, etc., as well as farm machinery of various kinds, furniture for the home, etc.

To Confer Rank of Knight

The rank of Knight will be conferred upon a class of five candidates at the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge on Friday evening. The rank will be conferred with an entirely new third rank team, it was announced. All members are urged to attend.

Spring On The Way

Some Fashion Headlines For Spring Daytime Dresses

Wide, very short skirts, slim bodices, more natural shoulders and details of ruffles and lingerie are basic factors of daytime dress — general endorsement of "little girls" types for youthful dresses. Slimmer skirts for high style.

Flared skirts are numerically most important. Laey or embroidered petticoats become part of the wide-skirted, feminine daytime dress formula. Enter lace-edged pantalettes for daytime.

Pleats contribute strongly to the full-skirt silhouette. Gathered fullness, though aminority, presents another phase of wide skirts. Development of skirt silhouette in other ways as back fullness, front gathered panels, gathered drapes, tiers, aprons and hem ruffles.

Narrow skirts make themselves important as the "next thing" for the future.

Skirt lengths are generally shorter, going as short as knee-length as the more usual barely reaching top of calf.

Bodices are generally fitted and the waistlines are marked for slimness.

Shoulders are approaching a more normal, natural line in a greater number of collections, but some continue to accent them.

Simple sleeves characterize many frocks. But individuality in sleeve silhouette is maintained, introduced generally in fullness. Short sleeves are still noted.

Necklines are practically all close to the neck, with neckwear most important.

Trimmings contribute to the more fanciful character of dress styles. Valenciennes insertions or heavy cutout embroidery yokes. Yokes in sheer effects, rouches, silk braid, contrasting or ruffled hems and embroidery.

Woolen dresses, largely black or navy, are on the spring schedule.

The "little girl" type claims many variations. Petticoats and pantalettes, hoop hem petticoat, hem ruffles, dress with fichu shawl, apron dresses, suspender dresses and dirndl over guimpe.

Distinctive types, getting away from "background" style, are noteworthy. Dressy sheer afternoon dresses.

Novelty color silk jackets with black dresses for afternoon wear. Bolero costumes, often with specially attractive blouses, or over dresses; peasant types.

Coats

Coats are fitted, flared and significantly are described as looking like dresses. A new sleeve here, an original treatment of fullness, a feeling for silk coats as well as woolens, stimulate spring coat styles.

Fitted coats are most representative of the spring coat silhouette. Back pleats, with godet flare, front flare; flared, looking like dresses. Fullness is endorsed in some coats. Pleated; swing back, belted front; fullness under bust; gathers below waist. Straight coats appear, a numerical minority. Straight coat one inch above dress.

Collar novelties are presented. Long haired fur standing out around shoulders; fichu-crossed at front, with a fringed edge.

Sleeves are flaring flounce stiffened to stand out from shoulder; short.

Shortened coats and separate jackets are given attention. Flared coats one foot above dress length; seven-eighths reefer, fitted with godet flare.

Silks are developed in coats as well as separate jackets.

Woolens

Woolens are soft and supple, and checks are unusually prominent, and closely followed by plands, and stripes. More of woolen dresses.

Plaids, prominent in coats and suits.

Woolens are supple and lightweight, with new interest centered in checks for suitings and coatings.

Stripes are the third of the favored patterned woolen weaves.

Woolen dresses are approved for spring, in black, navy, novelty colors,

Something to Think Over

Man, maybe this is your trouble.

When you were a boy you wouldn't study.

When you were a young man you did not try to improve yourself in a trade or in a business.

And now that another man is doing better than you are, because he knows more than you do, you yell that there is something wrong with the social system.

The social system is all right.

The trouble is that from the very first you trained yourself to become a bum.

And about the only trouble with publishing this is that the ones to whom it applies won't read it.

Maybe So

A Kansas woman, whose husband allowed her 10 cents a day to do just as she pleased with, saved these dimes until she accumulated enough money to buy a divorce. A writer in the Washington Post said, "There are some women in this world a man can't afford to be nice to!"

* * *

An opportunity to do something very appropriate was passed up about two weeks ago. When Miss Dolores Kerins wed George Truly, Jr., there should have been someone at the ceremony to sing "I Love You, Truly." But there wasn't.

* * *

A letter from a young man of Oakland, now residing in Baltimore, received the other day carried a suggestion or two for some editorial opinion in The Republican. He added, "And speaking of editorials, the series on Oakland which ran in the Democrat was boiler plate and was running in several other weeklies in the state at the same time. Funny that the churches, schools, institutions and people in Oakland are the same as in every other town in the nation where the editors can't write their own."

* * *

Merely a Suggestion

Since attending several parties during the winter (which doesn't necessarily make me a social butterfly) and also talking with other people who have attended probably a lot more than I, I have come to the conclusion that man is a foolish individual for the way he dresses, and that hosts as a general rule don't have the comfort of their male guests at heart.

This is not their fault, however, because if they didn't obey the orders of their wives to have the interest of their female guests at heart, there would be no peace in many families. Maybe there isn't much peace anyway but I don't expect to go into that little detail and furthermore I know very little about the subject.

In the first place, after the invitations have gone out, women who are invited begin to call up their friends to try to discover in the most tactful way they know, if they are going to Mrs. Doodlebug's party on Tuesday night, and if so what are they going to wear. Will it be long ones or short ones, and will it be with sleeves or without, are two of the most questioning questions asked through the entire winter and summer seasons.

It doesn't make much difference in the summer and it doesn't make much more difference in the winter, for no matter what they wear, the male guest will have to wear the same old thing. A heavy suit and most likely the vest included (if you want to be more correct, but more uncomfortable).

In the next place the host doesn't want people to know that he is conserving on coal as much as he can in order to make that last load last until spring and then have the cellar cleaned out when a cold and wet spell hits this community in July, with the result that the family shivers and comes near getting pneumonia; so he begins the morning of the party that night to make the place as near a den hades as some of the conservative flinch players would have us believe it is when one plays with regular cards, and the host usually succeeds in making it at least 80 in the shade and 85 under the lamps when the cigar and cigaret smoke gets in your eyes.

As a usual thing the women don't mind the 80 degrees mark as they are dressed several degrees on the conservative side of a nudist's idea of comfort. But take the male guests. They usually take it in silence and in both their coat and vest. Sometimes one ventures to open a window or a door to let in a little of that night air which was once considered as very unhealthy, but wrongly so.

And what happens? The women begin to shake and fidget, and if some male doesn't get an informative look from his wife and carry out orders, it naturally falls upon the hostess and after a jerk of the finger to the host who thought he was fireman for a mallet engine during the day, the door or window is back in place.

The knowledge that the plagues of Europe were all caused by the custom of sleeping in a bedroom without fresh air, seems to have no effect. Plagues or no plagues, the slogan seems to be "They shall not open."

With these conditions such as they are, it's a wonder that somebody hasn't advocated a much simpler way for the males to be attired at parties.

Here's a suggestion which you can follow if you want to. But don't blame me if as a result you become a social outcast.

Eliminate the coat and vest, and wear a sport shirt with open neck and a scottie. Short and full sleeves for easy movement. (That also makes it impossible for anybody to have the joker up his sleeve.)

For the lower portion of this outfie we wouldn't advoeeate shorts especially for winter, but knee length pants of silk or organdie might be cooling, if nothing else. Silk stockings (service weight) and sandals might complete the ensemble—and then again it might not.

Anyway you have the suggestion and it's up to the males to carry it out, although to tell you the truth, I could never see myself in such a costume, especially with service weight hose. So I suppose I'll continue to suffer periodically, but only half as much as other males, because I'll be darned if I'm going to wear a vest when nobody knows the difference but myself if I keep my coat buttoned.

DON'T NEGLECT A COLD. HEALTH OFFICER ADVISES

Neglected Cold Or Influenza Opens Way For More Serious Diseases

Warning against neglecting what may seem to be nothing but a cold, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health said: "'Just a cold,' often opens the way for pneumonia. If you develop a cold, don't let it run on. Don't waste time on prescribing for yourself. See your doctor, or have him come to see you. And obey his orders

"Pneumonia," he continued, "is always a matter of special concern to physicians and health officers during the colder months. Cases may develop at any time of the year, but the flare-up usually begins in the fall and the peak comes during the winter months. The decline begins in the spring and the disease reaches its lowest ebb, for both sickness and death, during the summer. Very often a neglected cold or an attack of grippe or influenza opens the way for the more serious disease, and there is always danger of it in connection with measles.

"Pneumonia hits hardest at very young children and at persons from fifteen years old and upward, or thru the older age groups. The best way to prevent it is through careful, hygienic living, avoidance of colds, and the strengthening of the powers of resistance to disease. The best way to combat it, is through prompt and continuous medical attention, laboratory tests to show the type of the disease, and careful and efficient nursing.

"Laboratory tests show that there are thirty or more types of the germ which generally causes pneumonia. Serums for the treatment of most of these types are now available, but laboratory tests of sputum coughed up by the patients have to be made to determine the type that causes each individual case. Special training is required for making these tests which have to be done with the utmost care The tests used to take a great deal of time. Now they can generally be completed within an hour, while the messenger waits. It is very important that the sputum be sent to the laboratory promptly and in the early stages of the disease.

"Laboratory service of this sort is available, without charge, at all hours of the day and night, to physicians throughout Maryland, at the laboratories of the City and State Departments of Health in Baltimore City, and at the branch laboratories of the State Department of Health in the counties, to aid them in the prompt diagnosis of the disease.

"Serums that are effective for the treatment of special types of the disease, may be obtained from the State laboratories, at cost, on the order of the physician in attendance."

REMEMBER GROUNDHOG ON ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Friday's The Time To Check Up On His Prediction of Feb. 2.

Saint Patrick isn't usually thought of in connection with groundhogs; snakes are more common in the Patristie zoology. Yet his feast-day is most appropriately set in the calendar; it is always just six weeks and a day after February 2, which (in case you have already forgotten) is Groundhog Day.

So on the emerald-tokened Seventeenth, suppose you take a look around and see what kind of weather your neighborhood has been having during the past month and a half. Maybe your local groundhog will be proved right, maybe not; it's a fifty-fifty bet either way.

In either case, the groundhog isn't caring. Fair or foul, he has been fast asleep in his burrow all the time. Only now, in the Northern part of the country at least, is he beginning to come out. And it won't be his shadow he'll be looking for, either. It'll be something to eat.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, March 14, 1939.

In the past few weeks it has been our opportunity to have certain correspondence with legislators from the neighboring states of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

It is interesting to note that the legislatures of both are working on proposed social legislation which, when passed, will be definite steps toward the making of a better and saner next generation. There is already a state law in West Virginia which requires that all persons who have anything whatsoever to do with the preparation of food for public consumption be subjected each year to a Wesserman test. The same law pertains to all persons engaged in the active operation of beauty parlors and barber shops. The new sterilization bill, recently introduced in the West Virginia Legislature, is spurred on by the realization that the present race of man is slowly degenerating and that man's intellectual and heredity level is each year taking an appalling nosedive.

It is strange indeed that the mountain, often called "hill-billy", State of West Virginia, should be years ahead of our own Maryland in the adoption of laws which will most definitely make the world a more desirable place in which to live. Could it be that the Maryland Legislature is too steeped in petty politics to consider the health and future welfare of its constituents? Or is it that our legislators are too busy fighting over the age old problem of conservation of natural resources to think of the conservation of the next generation The conservation program which will probably be adopted will be nothing short of a plan for Easternshoremen only; so why not spend some of the final moments of the session in drafting bills which will protect us when we eat in public and when we sit in the barber chair and the beauty parlor. More important, let's see that our Legislature thinks seriously about this question of race degeneracy and perhaps we can follow in the footsteps of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and California, and do at least some primary work to end the parade of the production of the unfit by the unfit. This is serious business and must be dealt with seriously—let's get in on the ground floor and follow the pioneering spirit which will surely make West Virginia a greater and better state.

Now that our word has been said for social betterment we are reminded that our primary duty is to report the proceedings of the Maryland Legislature and particularly the workings of the Garrett county delegation.

As you see by the dailies the Legislature in general has accomplished little; however, our county delegation has been working on bills which, when passed, should put a temporary end to the financial difficulties of the county.

A bill is now in the legislative mill which requires the Commissioners, or rather empowers them to pay interest on all orders issued prior to December, 1938. This date is of course prior to the coming into office of the present commissioners. An additional bill which is also designed to take care of the outstanding vouchers is also on the way. It provides that all delinquent taxes to 1940 be applied solely for the retirement of outstanding county orders or vouchers.

A bill which empowers the county treasurer to borrow $15,000 before the first of the year has also been introduced and this will bring the total amount available through loans up to $30,000. The additional $15,000 was made available through a bill which was passed several sessions ago. With a law providing for the payment of interest and another providing more money, or the power to borrow more, the County Commissioners should find that their credit is good even in Garrett county. They should experience little difficulty in meeting urgent obligations, such as the recent relief crisis.

Delegates Groves and Brenneman introduced a bill late Tuesday which would require the levying of specified sums for the construction of school houses at North Glade and McHenry. Upon the request of Dr. Flack, head of the State Department of Legislative Reference, Senator Friend has introduced a bill which will repeal the charter of the town of Bloomington. It is Dr. Flack's contention that the town has not functioned as an incorporated town and should therefore be denied a charter.

The new tax bill which is getting to be as much of an eternal item of discussion as the much debated conservation question, is in committee again. It is there this time for certain revisions which were suggested by the Attorney General's office. Perhaps we shall be able to report action of a definite nature by next week.

With the entire revenue setup yet to be worked out we understand that certain Allegany county delegates are favoring a consumers sales tax and are gathering supporters in its behalf. It is our honest opinion that this form of taxation is far superior to any other yet devised in this day and age and we would certainly prefer a sales tax over the proposed reregistration of all operators of motor vehicles or the relicensing of pinball machines.

Your Annapolis correspondent may be off on a tangent this week but read your papers, observe your sister states —and think seriously about the social problems which are confronting our race.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Wilson Lumber Company, with mills located at Wilson, just over the Potomac River in West Virginia, paid its workmen with gold coin, which marked the second time the company had done so.

Messrs. D. E. Offutt and Sons, S. L. Townshend and Son and the firm of Dixon and Kelso in Oakland had added new self-computing scales to their store equipments, which was considered quite eventful at that time.

After several days of spring-like weather the mercury dropped to zero and there was a blizzard.

A news item lamented the fact that there was no move on foot to give Oakland even a "kid" baseball team and suggested that the old Jack Oaks should communicate some of their skill and nerve to the rising generation.

A night school at Crellin was being conducted by Charles A. Ashby, then a resident of that town.

At the municipal election D. E. Bolden, Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh and James D. Hamill were elected to Council. Defeated candidates were John W. Hart, George Giessman and D. Grant Smith. There were 176 ballots cast.

Country roads were in bad condition and as a result little traffic was moving.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Many farmers in the county were turning their attention to the growing of spring wheat.

H. W. Smouse, Frank Smouse and W. A. Gonder formed a music company and located their place of business in the Ravenscroft building.

George Z. Dawson and Arthur Hinebaugh engaged in the painting and paperhanging business, with their store located along the boardwalk leading from Second street to the B. & O. Railroad.

H. P. Stuck, Walter Hardesty and Edward A. Shaffer were elected members of the Town Council. At that time voters selected by ballot the tax collector, treasurer and bailiff.

Ernest C. Liller established himself in the tailoring business in the Little store building following his return from the army. Private Wellington C. Yutzy also returned from the war and went to Morgantown where he had employment.

Published statements of the Garrett National Bank and the First National Bank of Oakland, showed combined assets of more than a million and a half dollars.

The Oakland Garage, besides being local agents for the Velie car, had added the Chevrolet automobile.

Charles N. McIntire, of Thomas, who had purchased the hardware store of the Davis interests in Oakland, was considering moving with his family to Oakland.

The United Mine Workers of America have asked that a 6-hour day and a 50-cents-a-day wage increase be written into a new two-year contract by the Appalachian soft coal operators who employ 338,000 miners.

I SEE BY THE DAILIES THAT

Britain announced a 65 percent boost in her airforce appropriations close on the heels of a declaration by Germany that the Nazis intended to maintain their advantage in warplanes.

Congressmen have announced they are becoming wary about telegrams and letters they receive, especially if they are a form message and received the same day that some of your neighbors are using it too. Their present inclination is to say "propaganda" and throw it in the wastebasket.

With aircraft bringing the far corners of the world into intimate touch with the United States, special precautions are being taken to keep planes free from carrying dread diseases such as yellow fever and cholera, and so far they have been successful. A famous doctor years ago when flying first began to be considered seriously, warned about the danger of plague by airplane.

Nazi leadership in Berlin has called on German youth to assume a new national duty—abstainence from alcohol and tobacco in emulation of Adolf Hitler.

The golden crown was placed Sunday on the head of Eugenio Cardinal Paccelli, elected Pope Pius XII, on March 2. An estimated crowd of 350,000 persons witnessed the coronation. He is the 262nd Pontiff. The day previous to the coronation Cardinal Maglione was appointed Vatican Secretary of State.

Czechs and Germans clashed at Brunn, near the border of former Austria, on Sunday afternoon with several injured. German residents were celebrating Germany's memorial day. On Tuesday the Republic of Czecho-Slovakia was broken up and dissolved as the Slovek parliament voted independence and placed themselves under the power of Adolph Hitler.

President Roosevelt stirred up a tempest of Congressional strife on Tuesday with a sharply-worded request for an immediate additional appropriation of $150,000,000 for WPA lest, he said, nearly five million people lose the source of their livelihood.

Announcement of construction by WPA of a $250,000 building to house its exhibits, theatricals and concerts at the New York World's Fair caused sharp reaction among Congressmen in Washington.

Papa Dionne reverses stand after conferring with Mrs. Dionne, and gives permission for the Dionne quintuplets to travel 180 miles to meet King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England, in Toronto, on May 22. He had previously been opposed to it, wanting the royal couple to come to the Dionne nursery to see them.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is planning to make another trip to the South Pole to "see what's on the other side" and to claim a million square miles of territory for the United States. He says there is a coal supply there to take care of world needs for some time.

Mayor Jackson of Baltimore is seeking another term. Opposing him in the Democratic primary is Charles H. Buck.

DEER PARK

Mrs. Nora Mosser, Mrs. Myrtle Sollars, and Miss Anna Thrasher, all members of Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, June Grove No. 38, attended a Woodmen Circle convention at Baltimore, recently.

The Epworth League members enjoyed a party with St. Patrick decorations. Rev. J. Hockenberry and Lola King had charge of the worship program while Mrs. Lambert Thrasher, Kathleene Black and Margaret Thrasher had charge of games and refreshments.

The True Blue 4-H club met Saturday with Miss Barton in charge. Miss Barton showed the little girls how to use a pattern correctly.

TRAILER TRUCK RUNS AWAY ON BIG SAVAGE

Vehicle, Hauling 4 Sedans, Halted On Eckhart Flat

A trailer truck, hauling four sedans, ran away on Big Savage Mountain, east of Grantsville, last Thursday night, traveled through Frostburg and was brought to a stop on Eckhart flat, east of that town, without damage to the truck or injury to the driver.

Burton Baldwin, Lansing, Mich., the driver making his first trip to Cumberland with cars, reported his clutch broke half-way down the mountain and his brakes also gave way. The truck roared down Big Savage at a high rate of speed, through a red light at Water street in Frostburg, then slowed down enough on the flat to allow Baldwin to ditch the truck near the Gunter service station.

Baldwin declared he does not know how he managed to get through traffic which was fairly heavy at 9 o'clock that evening. One of the hazards encountered was an automobile in the middle of Main street at Frostburg which was stalled due to a lack of gasoline. He said he passed the red light going at least 50 miles an hour.

List Of Schools On Attendance Honor Roll For February Announced

Twenty-six one-teacher schools, five two-teacher schools and five graded schools, along with four high schools in Garrett county, were on the attendance honor roll for February, according to a bulletin issued from the office of F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent, by John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer.

The schools named in the bulletin were all above the county average, but a few of them under the county attendance standards.

Steyer school led the one-teacher schools with 99 per cent, with Shook Shop second and Selbysport third.

Mountain Lake Park led the two-teacher schools with 97.6, and Swanton second with 96.5; Red House third with 95.4.

Crellin was in the lead among the graded schools, with Loch Lynn second and Oakland, third. Crellin had 96.3 per cent.

Accident led the high schools with 95.3; Oakland second, Kempton third and Grantsville fourth.

Motor Accident Deaths Increased During February

The second month this year ended with five more deaths than the corresponding period of 1938, as the result of automobile accidents, but the first two months of 1939 show a decrease of 9 per cent over the first two months of 1938.

There were 26 deaths in January and 31 in February. Twenty-three of the total number were pedestrians.

Oakland High Teams Lose Games To Allegany County Champions

Oakland High basketball teams lost to the Allegany county champions last Friday afternoon at Frostburg in the first of a series of elimination contests to determine the champions of the Western Shore.

The Oakland boys lost 55 to 30 to Fort Hill High school of Cumberland, while the Oakland girls were defeated 62 to 12 by the Central High sextet of Lonaconing.

Fort Hill's first string players retired at the end of the first quarter with the score 22 to 4. Oakland played without the services of Frank Kley, sophomore forward, who has been the principal scoring threat this year.

Fazzalari and Wolfe each grabbed 7 points to snare high honors for Coach Thomas Baucom's outfit.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

The Cabinet Division

Washington, March 11.

To say there is a split in Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet would be to convey a wrong impression. So far as personal loyalty is concerned the members — on the surface at least—are all on the same basis. If there is one among them not personally attached to the President, he is far too discreet to give a hint of the fact.

* * *

In that sense there is no division whatever. Nevertheless, it is entirely accurate to say that within the Cabinet there are two groups between which there is a distinct cleavage. This does not imply that enmity exists among the members, nor that there are either personal or political clashes therein. Also, if there were in the Cabinet any man who openly disagreed with the Roosevelt policies, the Cabinet would be no place for him. Long established custom ordains that when a Cabinet member can no longer "go along" with a President on a main administration policy his resignation is in order. Neither the Roper nor the Cummings resignation was for that reason.

* * *

All this is true and yet two groups exist. One believes that whatever Mr. Roosevelt says and does is right. Its members accept his words as though divinely inspired. They question neither his great wisdom nor his perfect virtue. They are complete Yes Men, adopting as their own not only his views but his prejudices, carrying on his personal feuds, and having no known convictions not derived from him. In this group are Secretary of the Treasury Morganthau, Attorney General Murphy, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Secretary of Labor Perkins, Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, Secretary of the Navy Swanson.

* * *

In the other gruop are Secretary of State Hull, Postmaster General Farley, Secretary of War Woodring and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. The personal friendship of these men for the President is unimpaired — at least so it is held — but they do not wholly subordinate their intelligence to his. The others do. In the second group are the men who go along with the President but sometimes give him the benefit of their minds. In this group are the ones — and the only ones in his official family — who ever differ with him on a public or political question and tell him so. In this group are those who doubt the soundness of the spending policy and have said so. One of this group not long ago went so far as to tell him that he feared the people had not only lost confidence in the New Deal but were beginning to lose confidence in him.

* * *

This remark has been attributed to Vice-President Garner, who sits in on the Cabinet meetings, but it was actually made by a Cabinet member, whose temerity left the Yes, Yes group fairly gasping for breath. To that, plus certain other comments from the group, together with the Garner hammering, is attributed the present Administration "drive" to conciliate businessmen by means of which, his journalistic spokesmen assert, he can regain "control of the situation." In other words, the smaller group seems by dissent to have had more influence at the moment than the larger group by greasy agreement.

* * *

P[illegible]s it is unfair to Secretary Wall[illegible]e to put him in either group. While he does not wholly submerge his mind to that of Mr. Roosevelt and has been known to speak out in dissent, nevertheless, he is not as conservatively inclined as some of his colleagues and has been an advocate of the vast spending in the soundness of which they never wholly believed. This, however, has not prevented him from incurring the hostility of the palace politicians, who resented his refusal to join in the effort to purge Senator Gillette, of Iowa. And it has prevented him from retaining the personal closeness to the President which once got him mentioned as the latter's most likely choice as his successor.

* * *

The truth is that between the palace politicians, not members of the Cabinet but constituting what is known as the "inner circle", and the members of the smaller Cabinet group there is real hostility. The Cabinet officers know that from the "inner circle" have come various inspired and disparaging stories about them. They know that a sort of campaign is being carried on against them by those who reflect the more radical individuals around the President. They know these things but are undisturbed because they also know that in a comparatively short time there will be a complete change of political scenery in Washington—and that anyhow the power of these "inner circle" boys has been greatly exaggerated.

* * *

Of course, it is not humanly possible for Mr. Roosevelt to feel exactly the same toward the group which sometimes dissents and the group which never dissents. There have been Presidents who would value the dissenters more highly. This President is not so made. Most of the Yes, Yes group are his congenial and confidential intimates; the others are his "very good friends." There is a big difference.

$894 and up

*delivered at Flint, Mich. Subject to change without notice. Transportation, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra.

FIRST time we saw the blueprints for this Buick thirty-niner we knew we had something pretty special for folks who like action in their travels.

It had eight eager cylinders in a mighty Dynaflash engine—and they could make a scared jack rabbit eat dust whenever the word was given!

It had a ride we promptly dubbed "full float"—its stout coiled springs are now 15% softer in the rear, and hooked up, in front, with Knee-Action that banks curves for you.

It had a view, a gorgeous view, from windows and windshields as much as 412 square inches bigger—and it had style that has already altered the pattern on many another car-stylist's drawing board.

So we looked it all over—and went a step further. We decided a car so plainly meant for action needed to have a price that would get action for it!

Now it isn't easy to build such a traveler—rich in reliable Buick quality clear down to the metals it's made of — and still give it a price that rubs elbows with the sixes.

But just look around, match up the price tags, and you'll find that this great straight-eight lists for less than some cars with two fewer cylinders!

It comes complete with equipment that's extra in many another instance — yet the figures still read lower than on Buick of a year ago.

So when you see this Buick you not only see the car, but the one big value of the year. That's why we're anxious to have you try Buick—it's a car with a winning way about it, and a winning price tag in the bargain!

NO OTHER CAR IN THE WORLD HAS ALL THESE FEATURES
★ DYNAFLASH VALVE-IN-HEAD STRAIGHT-EIGHT ENGINE ★ BUICOIL TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING ★ GREATER VISIBILITY ★ HANDISHIFT TRANSMISSION ★ ROOMIER UNISTEEL BODY BY FISHER ★ TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE ★ TIPTOE HYDRAULIC BRAKES ★ CROWN SPRING CLUTCH ★ "CATWALK-COOLING" ★ OPTIONAL REAR AXLE GEAR RATIOS ★ FLASH-WAY DIRECTION SIGNAL ★ SELF-BANKING KNEE-ACTION FRONT SPRINGING

VOLUME 63. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MARCH 23, 1939. NUMBER 4.

JUDGE HUSTER DELIVERS CHARGE TO GRAND JURORS

Cites Various Statutes Which Are Required To Be Brought To Attention Of The Body

WM. O. DAVIS IS FOREMAN

Associate Judge William A. Huster delivered the charge to the grand jurors for Garrett county when they met at the Court House on Monday morning, instructing them as to their duties in investigating violations of the criminal laws. William O. Davis, of Oakland, was named as foreman of the body, taking the place of John A Long, selected as its foreman at the time the jury was drawn, who was excused from service by the Court.

Following the charge to the grand jury the jurors immediately retired to the grand jury room and began their deliberations. Information concerning a number of pending cases will be presented by State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley.

Judge Huster's charge to the jury follows:

Gentlemen of the Jury:—

Gentlemen, you have been selected to serve as Grand Jurors for the Circuit Court for Garrett County for the March Term, 1939.

Your duties are important and the strict and efficient performance of those duties mean much to the preservation and peace of the community and the safety and security of the individual.

You have the fullest inquisitorial powers, and are, in the exercise of that power, confined to an investigation of violations of the criminal law, with the single end in view that the accused may be brought to trial. Apart from statute, the Grand Jury is confined to investigations of violations of the criminal law, and unless such investigations disclose facts constituting a recognized violation of that law, it has no power or authority to criticize any particular or number of individuals.

From the time of the reign of Edward the Third to the present time, Grand Jury has been continued and preserved as an institution necessary for the preservation of peace, good order, and dignity of the State in bringing to trial those guilty of violations of law, and in protecting people from being put on trial upon frivolous, unfounded or false accusations.

You have the fullest and amplest power to investigate, as it is your solemn and prescribed duty to do, into the willful and corrupt misconduct in office of public officers of every description in the County. Finding any such evidence of willful and corrupt misconduct, it will be your clear duty to indict.

There are certain statutes which the Legislature has directed shall, from time to time, be brought to the attention of the Grand Jury.

Section 4 of Article 27 of the Code requires that your attention be called

Scholarship In University Of Maryland Is Available

A scholarship of $200 per year will be available to some senior in the Garrett county high schools beginning this fall, it was announced by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, as the result of the Victor E. Albright scholarship.

Mr. Albright, president of the Randall State Bank, Madison, Wis., made available to the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland, $5,000 in trust, to constitute a perpetual endowment. The scholarship is in memory of his parents who were residents of the Cranesville section.

This scholarship may be awarded to a boy or girl of good character who was born and reared in this county and who graduates from a county high school. Each school selects a graduate who has maintained the highest scholastic grades during his high school course, and the one selected is done by lot.

The Albright Scholarship was inaugurated two years ago, but is now vacant.

More Farmers Receive Checks

Ninety more farmers of the county received $6,121.14 during the past week from the Federal Government for carrying out conservation practices on their farms.

At present 1091 farmers have now received $16,009.06, and according to records at the county agent's office there are still 71 checks to be received amounting to approximately $1,500.

REMOVAL OF MARYLAND'S CCC CAMPS IS LOOMING

Must Make Provision to Support Buildings or Work Will Stop

Robert Fechner, CCC director, announced this week that Maryland must make provisions to maintain buildings, utilities and improvements done by the CCC "very soon" or "work will have to be stopped in eight Maryland camps." Three of Maryland's camps are in Garrett county, Swallow Falls, Meadow Mountain and Potomac camps.

"The law requires that if proper maintenance and supervision is not given by the state that we must halt the work," Fechner said. "That in turn would mean we would have to remove the camps from the state.

"The situation has been called to the attention of Governor O'Conor. We hope that the legislature will enact some legislation that will provide funds to do the work," he concluded.

F. W. Besley, head of the Maryland State Department of Forestry, said today that "$50,000 for the next two years will be required for Maryland to keep faith with the federal government which has spent more than $7,000,000 in Maryland improvements through the CCC."

Besley said no funds were provided in the forestry department budget, administered by the University of Maryland regents, to maintain CCC forestry improvements, which he said "could be valued conservatively at $1,000,000."

SELF HELP EXECUTIVES MET AT PARK THURSDAY

Name Sub-Committee Of Five With Power To Act On Local Matters

At a meeting of the executive board of the Self Help College at Mt. Lake Park, held last Thursday, March 16, a sub-committee of five members was named with full power to act in the absence of the executive board.

Fourteen members and a few invited persons were present at the meeting to pass items of business in connection with the Spring term. A vote of thanks was tendered the Patrons' Association for its services in sponsoring the opening and operation of the school until the board met.

Those appointed on the sub-committee were D. L. Reed, W. Blair Simmons and C. C. Gnegy, of the Park; Miss Frances Miller, dean of women; and Rev. Fred. Barnes, of Westernport.

Definite steps have already been taken to arrange the farm and garden projects, according to C. C. Gnegy, and also to begin the manufacture of mops. Other industries are also being planned for early operation and arrangements being made to operate inns in connection with the summer program at the Park, he said.

Some of the work of the sub-committee and its plans will be disclosed at the next meeting of the Patrons' association on March 28, to be held in the Methodist church basement. Students will present a program. The meeting is public.

Rivalry Between Hens And Hen Eggs Continues; Goose Enters Contest

The rivalry between hens continues, and not only that but this week a goose steps into the limelight.

On Saturday morning Dan Lichty, of near Gortner, presented an egg laid by one of his White Leghorn hens, at The Republican office for official measurement and weight, so that he could compare results with the accounts of hens of D. A. King, of Accident, and W. A. Hauser, of near Oakland.

Mr. Lichty's, or rather Mr. Lichty's hen's egg was three inches long and weighed four ounces. The circumference the long way was 8 inches, and the short way round was 6¾ inches. Mr. Hauser's hen had the advantage in length and long circumference but Mr. Lichty's hen had the edge on the short circumference.

A short time later E. H. Dilley, of near Oakland, presented his "find". He had no thought of competing with the hens but wanted to establish the county record for a goose egg. One of these eggs weighed eight ounces, was 10 3-8 inches in circumference the long way and 7 7-8 inches around the short way. He had another egg weighing six ounces with circumferences of 8¾ inches and 7 inches.

A bigger goose egg, it is believed, will not be found.

GOV. O'CONOR DISCLAIMS ANY SALES TAX SCHEME

Says He Is Standing Pat On Income Levy For His Revenue Program

BILL WOULD PASS IN HOUSE

A sales tax—inevitable bugaboo of Maryland legislatures — complicated the waning hours of the 1939 session yesterday, with unexpected support from an administration leader and a prompt disclaimer from Governor Herbert O'Conor.

While the Senate engaged in a half-hearted city-county battle over relief expenditures, the battle cry of "sales tax" reverberated through the House of Delegates, where Speaker Thomas Conlon had said earlier, he believed such a levy could be passed.

"If the sentiment for it continues to develop the way it has the last few days, I shall go to the administration with a proposal that it be made a part of Governor O'Conor's program," Conlon declared. "I am confident that it would pass the House right now with flying colors."

O'Conor For Income Tax

His flat prediction, given added importance since the House Ways and Means Committee still is wrestling with the Governor's $17,000,000 budget-balancing revenue program, produced two immediate and significant developments.

Speaking for the Administration, Governor O'Conor asserted he was standing pat on the classified income tax which forms the backbone of his revenue program. Senate President Arthur Brice asserted a sales tax "can't get to first base" in the Senate.

Each time a sales tax has been introduced in the Legislature it has been beaten overwhelmingly.

Without referring outright to the revenue program, however, Speaker Conlon noted that a sales tax would eliminate "nuisance" taxes in that program, cover the Administration's supplemental budget needs, and still provide a comfortable balance.

"It would solve the revenue problem at once," Conlon said.

Now $250,000 Short

As a result of substitutions made in the original revenue bill by the Senate, the measure now is approximately $250,000 a year short, necessitating sharp budget cuts if the budget is to be balanced.

Should dissension break out in the House against the income-tax proposals and other proposed levies, in sufficient strength to delay the bill for any length of time, the Assembly would have a difficult task in meeting the adjournment dead line one week from next Monday.

Speculation on these factors, together with the Governor's reaction, was rife in the State House last night. There was still no indication, however that Conlon's position had drawn together a bloc strong enough to carry the sales tax plan through to final passage.

Nearly fifty new bills were introduced yesterday, as legislators scrambled to beat Friday's dead line on submission of measures. After Friday, bills may be introduced only through rules suspension. To date, the session is only twenty-three short of 1,200—a new Assembly record.

Ice on Route 40 Last Friday Caused Numerous Wrecks

Numerous accidents were reported in the Grantsville section last Friday, due to the slippery road conditions. More than 15 automobiles were disabled.

An occupant in a car driven by Fred Rice, Gibbons Glade, Pa., sustained severe cuts about the face when the machine collided with another vehicle near Ashby Tavern, west of Grantsville. Rice's car was damaged almost beyond repair.

J. A. Price, Shepherdstown, W. Va., and Harry Boles, Pittsburgh lumber dealer, collided and both cars were badly damaged. Neither man was hurt seriously.

E. M. Ricedorff, Baltimore, smashed into Noah Humbertson's truck damaging his car somewhat but he was able to continue on his way. Humbertson had left his machine to come to Grantsville for a fan belt.

Samuel Ashbrook, Washington, Pa., ran into a Grantsville wrecker with damage to the former car.

For those going west on route 40 the slickness of the road came as a surprise as the highway east of Grantsville was not slippery.

HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION NEEDS GIVEN IN REPORT

Detailed Program Received by Commissioners Shows Proposed Improvements in the County

ELIMINATES BAD CROSSING

Outstanding needs in highway construction in Garrett county which will be required within the next several years to restore and expand the system to a condition commensurate with the purposes which it must serve, are given in a report of the State Roads Commission which was recently handed to the Governor of Maryland and members of the General Assembly of Maryland.

The proposed expenditure of funds in Garrett county for new roads, reconstruction of old roads, and changes of location, etc., announced at the time the report was handed to the legislature, was $2,039,000. A copy of this report has been received by the County Commissioners.

The recommended improvements included 32.9 miles of reconstruction at an estimated cost of $1,303,000; 3.5 miles of widening, $21,000; 28.3 miles of extensions, $575,000; 2 bridges and grade eliminations, $140,000. The cost of the improvements in the entire state amounted to $54,392,000.

The 32.9 miles of reconstruction and relocation according to a map showing the State roads system, would be done on route 219 from Friendsville intersection, south through Accident, and from about Deep Creek Lake through and beyond Oakland. All of route 50 in Garrett County would be reconstructed, and a short portion of route 40 on Little and Big Savage mountains.

Route 39, from Oakland to Hutton and from Oakland to Mt. Lake Park would also come under the reconstruction program.

Extensions of the State highway system would include the connecting link between Gorman and Loch Lynn, the connecting link between Swanton and Grantsville, through Bittinger, and from Swanton to Bloomington. In the plan also is the proposed widening of the existing road from Loch Lynn toward Gorman.

The railroad crossing at Weber's would be eliminated in the proposed program, an overhead bridge being erected on Third or Fourth street, and route 219 changed to follow this route, to connect with the present road again somewhere a mile or more south of Weber's crossing. The new road necessary would be 2.3 miles.

A new bridge is proposed to be erected across the Potomac river at Kitzmiller.

The widening in most instances would be done by concrete shoulders.

In addition to the projects listed there is also a schedule of improvements which the Commission states is desirable to make through and adjacent to incorporated cities and towns. These recommendations cover only the roads and streets maintained by the State Roads Commission and embrace such items as curb and gutter, paved and stabilized shoulders and necessary drainage connections.

In Garrett county the following is recommended: Accident, $7,500; Deer Park, $2,500; Bloomington, $1,500; Friendsville, $2,000; Mt. Lake Park, $13,400; Grantsville, $2,900; Kitzmiller, $6,800; Oakland $12,600; total $49,200.

This proposed program does not include miles of unpaved county roads which are to be handled through the surface-treatment contracts and the secondary highway programs participated in by the Federal government.

The program has been presented to the County Commissioners in each county for their study and recommendations. It was presented to the legislature several weeks ago. No action, however, has been taken by that body.

Police Report Shows Crime Is Again Higher In 1938

The upward trend of crime continued in Maryland for 1938, according to statistics shown in the fourth quarterly bulletin of uniform crime reports just released by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Maryland followed the national trend in showing a decrease of crimes against persons, but in burglary and larceny the increases were substantially above the 1.5 and 5.7 per cent increases nationally. Auto thefts in Maryland moved ahead, contrary to the nation-wide decrease of 12.7 per cent.

FRIDAY IS LAST DAY TO INTRODUCE LEGISLATION

Several Recently Put In Hopper Affect Garrett County Affairs

With the deadline approaching for the introduction of new bills in the legislative mill, there was a bill introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Clifford Friend restricting expense accounts of Garrett county Commissioners.

Another bill was introduced by Delegate Darwin Martin relating to Garrett county assessment records.

Two bills passed in the Senate yesterday were those relating to the Garrett County Commissioners and the County Treasurer.

No more bills may be introduced after Friday.

One of the bills passed yesterday in the Senate related to payment of orders or vouchers issued by the County Commissioners specifying that these orders or vouchers be delivered directly to the Treasurer by the Clerk to the County Commissioners, and also empowering the Treasurer to borrow a percentage of the levy after October 31 of any year, but word has been received that this measure has been amended empowering the Commissioners to do the borrowing instead of the Treasurer.

Another bill made it the duty of the Treasurer to collect taxes that were unpaid for 1937 and any prior year, or to secure a declaration of insolvency.

A House bill introduced would allow interest to be paid on all orders of the Commissioners from date of conversions of orders into cash until date of payment.

Another bill which will probably be passed today relates to a discount allowed on taxes paid early in each year. No definite information concerning this measure, is immediately available.

To Pay Interest Dividend

It has been learned from reliable sources that within a very short time the Receiver of the Garrett National Bank of Oakland will pay an interest dividend to all of the depositors of that bank. This distribution will make the total amount paid to each depositor of more than 107 per cent on funds in the bank when it was ordered closed by the Treasury officials at Washington.

To Address Grange Meeting

Dr. H. F. Cotterman, lecturer of the Maryland State Grange, will address a joint meeting of Garrett county granges at Pleasant Valley Grange hall at eight o'clock this evening March 23.

The meeting will be open to those interested in grange work and their friends. Representatives from Sunnyside, Pleasant Valley and Ryan's Glade granges will attend. The Loch Lynn band, under direction of Harry Mickey, will appear on the program.

Offers To Sell Or Lease Garage

Joseph Hinebaugh, proprietor of the Hinebaugh Garage, is announcing in The Republican today an offer to sell or lease the garage along with his agency for International Trucks and Pontiac automobiles. This offer is being made, according to Mr. Hinebaugh, because other business interests take up all his time.

The garage is located on Green street, between Second and Third streets.

ARE HOPEFUL OF RELIEF FUNDS BEFORE DEADLINE

County Commissioners, However, Won't Say Where Funds Will Come From For March

REGULAR MEETING QUIET

Confident that county funds for relief would be available before the arrival of the deadline, was expressed on Tuesday by C. H. Browning, member of the Board of County Commissioners. Mr. Browning and Paul M. Friend were the only members present at the regular meeting of the Board this week, as Blaine Giessman, president, was confined to his bed on account of an illness.

Neither Mr. Browning or Mr. Friend would enlarge on the statement that funds to meet the emergency were expected to be available. Whether the money was expected from the same unnamed source that came to their rescue last month, or would come as a result of legislation at Annapolis, was not stated.

The deadline for the county's share of relief funds is March 31, else the State's share will be withheld for the month of March. Old-age pension checks were due on March 15. Those coming under the aid to dependent children fund account received their checks last week, when $310.55 was obtained from the contingent fund of the county as the county's share of the distribution. General public assistance cases have received no money for February or March, but have received orders for surplus commodities.

The Commissioners stated that the meeting this week had been an uneventful one. No delegations from the outlying districts of the county appeared before the Board in the interest of roads, schools or bridges.

GRAND JURY CONTINUES INVESTIGATIONS TODAY

Adjournment Expected This Afternoon; In Session Since Monday Morning

Investigation of alleged breach of the criminal laws by the grand jury was still in progress at one o'clock, after having been in session since Monday morning.

It is probable that the body will adjourn some time this afternoon, hence a report of their finding will not be available for the current edition of The Republican.

It was learned from Judge William A. Huster at 1:30 this afternoon that there had been 28 indictments found thus far.

Sportsmen To Meet April 10 At City Hall, Oakland

The next meeting of the Sportsmen's Association is scheduled for Monday evening, April 10, at the City Hall, Oakland.

The sponsors of the local association now feel that there is real opportunity to get a full measure of support for their program in the county provided there is a strong organized effort.

H. C. Riggs, president, was of the opinion that the reorganization bill sponsored by Governor O'Conor on conservation would be enacted which sets up a commission in charge of fresh water fishing and upland game. The Commissioners are to be active sportsmen who will serve without pay.

Application blanks for membership in the local group may be obtained from Mr. Riggs or any member. "Every true sportsman who is interested in seeing something done to preserve and increase the supply of game and fish should join this enterprise," he said.

Members are pledged to obey the conservation laws and to see that others do the same, to protect rights of farmers and land owners, and assist constituted authorities in enforcing game and fish laws.

The service last night was held in the Lutheran church, with Rev. D. C. Trimble, of the Episcopal church, delivering the message.

PETER INTERPRETS CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS AND DEATH

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 1:17-23; 2:20-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit.—I Peter 3:18.

A witness is one who knows by personal experience about that concerning which he testifies. Certainly no one could speak with more propriety or assurance concerning the sufferings and death of Christ than Peter. As one of the inner circle, he, with James and John, was with Jesus on almost every important occasion. He was on the Mount of Transfiguration, and with the Lord in the garden of Gethsemane. He witnessed His trial and in all probability His crucifixion. He was first at the empty tomb. Furthermore, he could speak as one who had in a moment of weakness denied the Lord and who had come by way of doubt and despair back to his faith in the Saviour. It is not only appropriate that we should study Peter's words on this subject but it is also the greatest possible theme with which to close our three-month study of the life and work of Peter. For all that he was and all that he did, can be explained only by his faith in a redeeming Christ.

I. Christ—the Saviour (I Pet. 1:17-23).

It is highly important that we meet the flood of smoothly phrased recognition of our Christ as the Master which at the same time denies Him as dying Redeemer. Hence we stress

1. A redemption by blood (vv. 17-20). This is a subject that all those who know God and "call on him as Father" (v. 17) approach in that reverential attitude which we call the "fear of God," which is not a cringing fear but a loving reverence. In that spirit we should proclaim that apart from the shedding of Christ's blood there can be no remission of sin. Money and other material things can only purchase other material and corruptible things. Our redemption could be bought only by the precious blood of the sinless, divine, and eternal Son of God, Jesus Christ (vv. 19, 20).

2. A life of faith (vv. 21-23). The faith and hope of the Christian are "in God." We do not trust in the arm of flesh. Our assurance is not in man or his devices. The gathering of riches, the increase of armaments, the acquisition of new territory by fair means or foul—let foolish men who know not God rejoice in such assurances of safety, but our faith is in God.

This life of faith is not an inactive thing, a settling back into a comfortable but effortless appreciation of God's great gift. It leads to obedience to the truth; fervent, unfeigned love of the brethren; purity of life (v. 22). Being born again means living in newness of life in Christ.

II. Christ—the Example (I Pet. 2:20-25).

Christ is not our example in the sense that we are to attain to eternal life and joy by an imitation of His life. That would be manifestly impossible, for we would have to begin where He began—He was without sin. But we "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." We need a Saviour, not an example, as far as redemption is concerned. Having been saved by faith in His blood, we are ready to look upon Him as our example.

1. Our suffering (vv. 20, 21). One of the serious problems of life is suffering, and as we suggested last week, being a Christian does not grant us any immunity. If we suffer because of our own sin, we must expect to bear the result patiently; but even above that, when we find ourselves suffering for well-doing, we are to glorify God by bearing it patiently for Christ's sake. Nothing is a stronger testimony for Christ than a true Christian spirit in time of trial and sorrow.

2. The suffering of Christ (vv. 21-25). Our minds turn to Isaiah 53 and Psalm 22, as well as to the Gospel narratives, as we think of our Lord's suffering. As we read the words, "Christ . . . suffered for you," we join the saintly expositor of the Word who fell upon his face sobbing, "For me, for me, He bore it all for me." How can anyone reject Him? How can you, unsaved reader of these lines, any longer turn this loving Saviour away?

These are trying days for the souls of men. In many parts of the world Christians are tasting the bitter cup of persecution. The day may come when we must meet the same fate, and even now we know what it means to bear the scorn of unbelievers. Shall we become fearful or embittered in our hearts? No, "consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds. Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin" (Heb. 12:3, 4). But He did! Wonderful Saviour!

Biographical Information

It might be interesting to look at the war records of the three in Washington who are doing their best to get us into another war. What did they do when the country was in need of soldiers? Here are the records:

WILLIAM C. BULLITT: 26 year of age, single, rich, no dependents in 1917. He found a job in the State Department and did not enlist.

HAROLD ICKES: 24 years of age, single, no dependents in 1898, when Illinois was frantically calling for volunteers for the war with Spain. He did not enlist.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT: In his seventeeth year, rich, husky in 1898, when New York also was calling for volunteers for the war with Spain. More than 20,000 boys of 16 and 17 lied like soldiers and gentlemen in order to volunteer, but F. D. R. stayed at home. He was 35 in 1917, healthy, husky, rich, but again he did not enlist. He stuck to his $10,000 a year civilian job in the Navy Department, his naval experience having been gained through sailing a catboat on Hudson River. Theodore Roosevelt, at 42, and occupying the same job, resigned in 1898 and took active service in fever-ridden Cuba.

These three are the sword rattlers of today, yelling their heads off over patriotism, America First, we can whip the world, down with dictators—and I wonder where Jimmy, Elliott, John and Franklin, Jr., will be if war comes again.

SPANISH AND WORLD WAR VETERAN.

An investigator is seeking the cause of a marked decline in the number of marriages. (Not on account of the three day law).

He might consider that it's becoming more difficult every day for a man to support a wife and a government.

* * *

Twenty years after the World War "to make the world safe for democracy," there were 315 million out of Europe's 550 million people who are living under dictatorships in twelve European countries, and democracy is banished from four-fifths of continental Europe.

And now most of the nations are "armed to the teeth" to start another war. Seems like nothing was learned, nothing was settled by that monstrous struggle.

As long as European nations are under the spell of Mars, the United States should be prepared. Preparedness for war is one of the best ways of promoting peace in a country such as ours.

During a discussion recently the question of transients and panhandlers came up. One said he always gave them the benefit of the doubt, and usually gave them something. Then he never had the guilty feeling that he had turned away one who was really in need of food or money.

Another thought that with all the relief funds, there should be some agency where a transient could go for a handout.

Still another said he had agreed with the second one until an incident occurred several weeks ago. A family drove up to this man's house and told a hard luck story. The home owner looked at the family car and the apparent "style" in which they were traveling, told them they could find lodging and food in the County Jail and just the same as told them to move on—that they weren't getting a handout there.

It turned out that the party was a family of friends whom the man had not seen for quite some time. So he concluded by saying that it was best to be very sure before turning anybody away.

There are so many people, however, who take advantage of the kind heartedness of others that they abuse the privilege and make it doubly hard for the worthy who are really in need. The best way, when a man wants money for a cup of coffee and a sandwich, is to give the man an order to a restaurant for the food and not give out any money. This is satisfactory, only, of course, when your own credit is good at the restaurant.

Somebody Has Right Idea

One of my unknown readers got the right idea about my suggestion last week for a proper costume for men to wear at parties, and this week I received a letter from Huntington, W. Va., showing a real artist's conception of it.

This young lady is hiding her light under a tub or maybe under the stove shown in the drawing she made and sent to me. With a little practice she could be on a par with Rembrandt—maybe.

She paints a man standing by a mantle, cards in his hand. His shirt is a collarless affair of yellow organdie, with short, puffy sleeves, revealing the somewhat bulging muscles of the man with the accompanying hair on his arms. His trousers are knee-length, purple in color, with orange belt and knee garters, no stockings, with the customary hair on the gentleman's limbs very apparent, concluding with pink slippers of the pump variety. His shirt carries a dog monogram.

Beside the mantle is the cause of all the trouble — the coal stove, with a full bucket of coal nearby. The artist even puts a vase with flowers on the mantle and above is a picture of a home with a tree and meadow, in which is depicted, I hope, a cow. It could be a dog, however, except that a dog rarely has a cow bell dangling from its neck.

From this description it is possible that your curiosity will get the better of you. If so, said picture may be seen by calling at The Republican office.

REPORT OF HEALTH WORK IN COUNTIES IS LISTED

Since 1934 State Has Had Full-Time Service In All Counties

Since 1934, Maryland has had the distinction of having full-time health service in every county in the State. The wide range of the health promotion and disease prevention activities carried on through the County Departments of Health is indicated in a report issued by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, of the work done in the counties in 1938.

The activities of each county is summarized with reference to communicable disease control or prevention; the health supervision of mothers and children; dental care of children; services for crippled children; the sanitary supervision of food handling industries, tourist and other camps; educational activities and other duties.

There were 16,185 cases of notifiable diseases reported to the State Department of Health from the counties; 8,700 home visits were made by the health officers and public health nurses to discover sources of infection and to establish the necessary measures to prevent the spread of the diseases. Over 20,000 young children were immunized against diphtheria; 6,842 persons were protected against typhoid fever and over 6,700 were vaccinated against smallpox. All protective measures of this sort were arranged in cooperation with the physicians practicing in the counties.

Nearly 6,000 persons were examined at the monthly chest clinics, held in cooperation with the Maryland Tuberculosis Association; 2,244 were added to those already under medical supervision and 572 were admitted to hospitals or sanatoria, and 14,000 home visits were made to persons who were suffering from the disease or who had been in contact with it.

Venereal disease clinics were held in every section of the State, with 6,639 admitted to medical service. Over 78,000 treatments were given and over 7,700 follow-up visits were made to the homes of the patients.

Monthly prenatal clinics were held in 19 counties with an enrollment of 1,943 expectant mothers. Child health conferences for the examination of babies and young children and of children reaching school age, were also held in all of the counties, with an attendance of 20,039 children. Over 36,000 follow-up visits were made to the homes by the nurses in connection with these activities.

Health supervision of the older children was carried on in cooperation with the State Depaartment of Education. Over 49,000 children in the elementary grades were given a physical examination and over 96,000 inspections were made in connection with the control of communicable diseases in the schools. Services for crippled children were a part of the program in all of the counties. Dental clinics were part of the school health work in 18 counties.

Over 8,000 sanitary inspections were made of public or private property; 945 of school property, and 1,095 of tourist and other camps; 8,371 of food handling establishments, 6,926 of dairy farms and 1,878 of milk and milk products plants.

THE LIGHT THAT SHINETH

For he flattereth himself in his own eyes, until his iniquity be found to be hateful.

Psalm 36:2.

Paragraph Opinions . . .

Among other things we'd like to know when this country is going to emerge from the emergency.

According to Representative Bruce Barton of New York, President Roosevelt is overdoing the emergency angle. Barton made a study of Roosevelt's messages and speeches and has found that the country is now in its thirty-ninth "emergency" since 1933.

With more people being employed now than during any other time of the depression, the government continues to offer more money to those on relief and now calls for an additional $150,000,000 to overcome a relief crisis. The President says that in the present relief crisis we are confronted with a condition and not a theory. It may be true, but it might be well to inquire as to what is causing the condition and why it has not been cured by six years of tremendous expenditures, much of it wasteful and inefficient.

In just one instance, the WPA has built a theatre at the World's Fair in New York at a cost of $250,000. A lot of people can be fed with $250,000.

The country will never be on a firm foundation until the Federal budget is balanced—until the money received is as great as the money spent.

GARRETT COUNTY NOTES IN REPORT INTERESTING

Copy Of Preliminary Report Of Highway Planning Survey Received

A copy of the preliminary report of the Maryland State-wide Highway Planning Survey, presented to The Republican by the State Roads Commission, through M. Bates Chaires, resident engineer, contains a number of interesting references about Garrett county and its road problems.

The survey began in Maryland in August, 1936, with objectives to determine the state of the highways, the volume of traffic as well as the kind and distribution of traffic, the adequacy of existing highways and bridges, the annual cost of adequate highways, the extent of use of the various systems by motor vehicle owners in different categories, and the sources and uses of available highway funds, all to the end that a justifiable program of future highway improvement may be developed.

There are in the county 99.4 miles of paved and 31.8 miles of surfaced State roads, a total of 131.2, or 14.6 percent of all roads in the county. Of the county roads there are .4 of a mile paved and 269 miles of surfaced; 330.6 miles of graded and drained earth; 136.4 miles of unimproved earth, or a total of 736.4 miles, or 81.9 percent. There are 31.5 miles of other public roads in the county. The paved roads include those with surfaces of bituminous concrete, bituminous penetration, cement, vitrified brick and block. Surfaced roads are those with soil, gravel, stone, shell and slag, bituminous treated.

The report shows that outside of the nine incorporated towns there are approximately 2,831 dwellings and farm units in the county and that only 76, or 2.7 percent are not situated along any public road.

A table shows that the better rural roads, paved and surfaced, while constituting 44 percent of the total mileage, serve 58.8 percent of the farm units and year-round dwellings and carry 91.5 percent of the traffic. On the other hand the poorer roads, while constituting 55.2 percent of the total mileage, serve directly 41.2 percent of the farm units and year-round dwellings and carry 8.5 percent of the traffic.

Another table shows that of the total travel in the county 83.1 percent is done on the State highway system, which is but 14 percent of the total rural public road mileage. It was stated no county road in the county carried as much as an average daily traffic of 300 vehicles.

Expenditures on the county road system for 1936 showed the county paid $5,900 from the 1½ cent gas tax on interest for highway bonds; that the State Roads Commission spent $39,257.79 for maintenance; $95,405,87 for construction and that the county spent $697.41 on other roads.

The net bonded highway indebtedness of Garrett county as of June 30, 1936, was $147,000.

In 1936 there were 3,297 passenger motor vehicles registered in the county—74 for hiring, 828 trucks, 2 busses and 17 others, for a total of 4,218.

License and registration fees and State tax on gasoline paid in 1936 by owners of motor vehicles in the county totaled $114,103.

Now President Of Packing Company

Andrew E. Nelson, of Brooklyn, New York, a resident of Oakland 35 or 40 years ago, was recently elected president of Adolf Gobel, Inc., of that city.

An item in The National Provisioner, an international and national trade paper, reads as follows:

"Andrew E. Nelson, executive vice-president of Adolf Gobel, Inc., Brooklyn, has been elected president of the firm, succeeding Frank M. Firor, resigned because of ill health. Mr. Nelson has been active in the meat packing industry for many years and enjoys a wide acquaintance in the field. For the past year he has been general manager of the C. Lehmann Packing Company, Inc., Brooklyn, and at the annual directors' meeting in December, 1938, was elected executive vice-president of Adolf Gobel, Inc., and appointed general manager of that company as well. Prior to his present connection he held executive positions with one of the larger packers."

to Section 3 of Article 27, which forbids and prohibits and provides punishment for the crime of abortion, the advertisement of any drug, medicine, or instrument, designed to produce the same, and the sale of any such articles. The practicle purpose of such a requirement is doubtful, as this is a crime difficult to discover, which only comes to the surface when the consequences of its commission have had unfortunate—often fatal results.

By Section 79 of Article 27, it is provided that "If any Clerk, Register of Wills, Sheriff, Collector of Taxes, Notary Public, or other officer, whose duty it is to collect revenue due the State of Maryland or any County thereof, shall, after the receipt of said revenue by him, wilfully detain the same in his possession and neglect to pay the "same into the Treasury of the State or to the County Commissioners, or the proper officers authorized to receive the same, for more than sixty days after the day upon which it is made by law his duty to pay the same, or if no particular day be apnointed by law for said payment, and such officer shall detain any revenue due to the State or to any County thereof, and which it is his duty to collect, and which he shall have collected, and shall neglect to pay the same into the Treasury of the State or to the County Commissioners, or the proper officer authorized to receive the same, for the space of six months after he shall have so collected the same, such officer so offending in either case shall be deemed to be a defaulter" and the judges of the Courts having criminal jurisdiction in this State, shall give this law in charge to the Grand Juries summoned to their respective Courts.

Section 285 of Article 27, makes it unlawful for any practicioneer of medicine or dentistry to furnish or present for the use of any person cocaine, heroine, opium, morphine, and certain other narcotic drugs, except under the strict regulations therein provided for, and it is made the duty of the judges of all Courts having criminal jurisdiction to instruct Grand Juries "to diligently inquire into and investigate all cases of the violation of the provisions of this sub-title (Health-Narcotic Drugs) and to make a true presentment of persons guilty of such violations."

It is the duty of Grand Juries in this State, by Section 22 of Article 51 of the Code, to "visit the Jail and inquire into its condition, the manner in which it is kept, and the treatment of the prisoners, and report the same to the Court." It is customary also — and Grand Juries are generally instructed to inspect the Court House and report its condition, together with such recommendations as may be made for the repair and improvement of both the Court House and the Jail.

The Court is not required by law to instruct Grand Juries in respect to the statute against carrying concealed weapons, but this offense is so often attended with such tragic consequences that it should not be ignored, or lightly regarded. The seriousness of the offense is such that the Legislature has imposed severe penalties for its violation, by providing for a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or imprisonment in the jail or House of Correction for not more than two years.

In Garrett County, the sale of beer is now authorized by law under such regulations as are imposed by the Act of 1935. In no county in the State, have the liquor laws been more faithfully enforced than in this County, and we can assume that there will be no relaxation of this alertness on the part of the Grand Juries or the enforcement officers of this County with respect to it.

Section 104 of Article 12 of the Public Local Laws, Title, "Garrett County," provides that the books of the County Treasurer shall be opened to the inspection of the Grand Jury. The only implication that can be drawn from this is that it is your duty to see that the books of the County Treasurer are carefully kept and monies received by him promptly and properly deposited. There is no need of your making an extensive audit of his books, as it is now provided by the general laws of the State that periodical examinations of his books shall be made by the State Auditor whose report will be available to you when required.

Section 22 of Article 20 of the Code requires that, in all counties except Frederick and Allegany, "Each constable shall be sworn up at every Circuit Court for the County, or Criminal Court of Baltimore, to the Grand Jury." This means that in Garrett County each constable shall be required to appear before the Grand Jury and report to it all violations of the criminal laws of which they may be cognizant or which may have been brought to their attention. This also means that if there have been violations of the criminal laws in their respective districts or communities of which they know—or should have known—that then their failure to take proper action or to disclose such violations to the Grand Jury, shall render them liable to indictment for malfeasence or misfeasence in office. Necessarily, the other law-enforcement agencies of the County are largely dependent upon local constables for information, and, this makes the office of Constable far more important than it is generally regarded.

By your oath, you will notice that you are also required to keep secret all matters which may come before you, the importance of which is such that we hardly think it necessary to enlarge upon this caution.

It is desirable that you perform your duties as speedily as may be consistent with the thorough investigation of all matters brought before you, or which may come to your knowledge. The very fact of your selection as Grand Jurors is founded on the judgment of this Court that you can and will properly and promptly perform the duties to which you have been summoned.

America Is Now Realizing The Real Danger Behind The Motives Of Hitler And Those Of His Kind Now At Work In This Country To Establish a Hitler-Controlled Dictatorship.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Recent articles and columns in various magazines and newspapers regarding un-American activities instigated and executed by crafty Nazi-Hitler hirelings, confirm the fact that America has ultimately awakened from her slumbering coma and now realizes the real danger behind the motives of these freedom-hating human termites who, like an unappreciative beggar, accept our protection and national hospitality under which they creep and begin boring from within in their incessant effort to establish an effective Hitler-controlled dictatorship. These alien termites, like a thief in the night, are as dangerous to democracy as deadly invisible germs are to our physical bodies.

Deep within every red-blooded, liberty-loving American is planted a patriotic embrayo that, when disturbed by the disclosing of plots against our Government and our freedom, is augmented to dangerous fighting proportions and develops into heartfelt loyalty to the only country in the world where free speech is guaranteed to even the most despicable minority.

With eighty German-American bund camps already established and their membership of 250,000 confronting us, I sincerely believe it behooves every thinking American citizen to be on guard against and to resent and abhor the obnoxious propaganda that has polluted the minds and homes of many straight-thinking, straight-living citizens by vividly depicting and portraying the life under a dictator as being advantageous if not pleasant.

"Scoop's Column" in last week's Republican gave an excellent example of the audacity, the insolent, bold determination of these Hitler-controlled human puppets that obey every wish of the Nazi chief. Large meetings in New York, protected by police against interference, are to me, similar in comparison to a group of slinking, suave outcasts who gladly accept the benevolent hospitality of some protecting individual and who upon receiving kind treatment arises and criticizes and rails and denounces the manner in which the household is run, and show a decided inclination and resolute determination to dictate its future management.

To real true Americans it is inconceivable that any element under American care, within American boundaries, would develop and possess such ruthless, intrepid, deadly intentions toward their protectors. It is incredible too, that such bitter hatred, faught with singular, abnormal contempt can be cultivated and so firmly instilled within the victims' heart that without hesitation these foolish, misled prey of stronger dominating minds would rise against the only true, free form of government that exists in the world today.

The quarter million followers already acquired means that America is harboring and protecting the rights of an enormous crowd of government enemies consisting chiefly of ignorant, disconted people who, with their poisoned minds, have no idea of the cruel, implacable personality of that vaunting, boasting, dictating Fuehrer, who undoubtedly guides every move—probably indirectly — of his United States henchmen.

It means too, that these incorrigible intruders against democracy must, by intelligent, careful investigation be checked, lest they accomplish their aim.

We must hold in scorn and disdain and revulsion the smooth wiles, the foreign-inspired cunning of this impending, ominous danger. Neither shall we allow our minds to become distorted by the effects of filthy propaganda. We must fight with vehement determination toward dispelling and destroying this threatening cloud that portends the danger behind concealed intentions of austere, bitter, democracy-destroying Germans.

The Dies committee, though much criticized, is one of our biggest hopes in eradicating these harmful human bacteria. I say: "More power to Martin Dies and his co-workers!"

WILBERT N. SAVAGE.
Sang Run, Md., March 14.

Judge George Stewart Brown, New York City, Makes A Suggestion For Marking A Highway, Recently Completed, That Is Appealing.

UNITED STATES CUSTOMS COURT
New York, March 16, 1939.

To the Editor of The Republican.

May I urge you to help get the Maryland State Roads Commission to put up signs at the junction where the new two miles of the road from Mountain Lake Park to Deer Park joins the concrete road near Deer Park, giving the distance to Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, Md., through Kitzmiller, Elk Garden, Romney and Winchester?

The building of these two miles last summer on the Mountain Lake Park road toward Deer Park opened up a new through highway to Oakland, Kingwood, Morgantown, etc., to Baltimore and Washington, much shorter to Washington than through Red House and much shorter to Baltimore through Romney and Winchester than by the National Pike, Rute 40.

The best place to mark this new route with signs would be at that new junction behind Deer Park that has now become a very important junction.

Incidentally the signs should also give the distance from that junction on to Oakland through Mountain Lake Park, which is five miles shorter than going around through Sand Flat, and also the distance from that junction to Pittsburgh.

This new and shorter way from Oakland to Baltimore and Washington was not completed until last summer. Now that it is finished attention should be called to it. This is for the direct benefit of the large summer colony in Garrett county. This new route of approach will benefit property values all over the county.

Please get busy and use your influence to have this new route advertised.

Sincerely yours,
GEO. STEWART BROWN.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, March 22, 1939.

"There is so little time left and so much to do." Whoever wrote those words must have had, at one time or another, close association with the Maryland Legislature. With less than two weeks of the present session left and a budget balanced only by slashing $225,000 a year from the relief program, or $150,000 for the two-year biennium, the Legislature would appear to be headed for a miserable mess.

This slash in the relief program is not all that is worrying the Legislative leaders for Governor O'Conor will soon introduce his supplemental budget which will call for an additional $475,000. If our arithmetic is correct it means that in the next few days the General Assembly finds itself faced with the problem of raising nearly $1,000,000. When all available funds have been considered in the original budget it is difficult to see where the additional one million dollars will come from unless some already overtaxed source is subjected to an additional tax. Although the plan for the registration of motorists has been dropped by the Senate it will no doubt be brought to light again, and will be cause for continued wrangling in the Senate. New taxes are being considered, but it is said that the registration plan would solve the problem easier than any other. In other words the automobile owner is still the best target when revenue is needed in a hurry. Perhaps if the Legislature had thought of the tax situation earlier in the game it could have been remedied without bringing an additional $2.00 fee on the motorist. And to think that there was once a man who talked of two-dollar tags!

Legislative leaders have begun to play their cards to head off any incipient rebellions, get through as much of the administration legislation as Governor O'Conor wants, and to weed out stacks of unwanted bills. The collection of bills introduced now numbers nearly one thousand. Oh, for a Legislature with the political philosophy of Congressman Bruce Barton who advocates the repealing of a law a day. House leadership this session apparently has been particularly poor, and signs of the development of a bloc determined to ignore the organization leadership have become more and more pronounced in recent weeks. It is even rumored in the executive department that there is a move on foot to farm the present leadership out to the bush leagues and put a new team on the field. The conduct of Democratic floor leader John S. White in the case of the fireworks bill, and the house bill to oust the state employment commissioner has set a new low for the General Assembly of Maryland.

Events leading up to the passage of the fireworks bill were probably the most disgraceful in the history of the state. As we reported in a previous column the lobbyists who gathered in the halls of the State House and opposed the fireworks bill were determined to defeat the bill at any cost and they almost succeeded. An appalling number of delegates changed their vote when the bill came to a final reading, and as a result the bill received a bare majority, and the lobbyists were defeated. To the Garrett county delegation we send orchids. Although they disagreed with the writer, they voted against the bill from the beginning and bore the strength of their convictions to the end. In checking the list of delegates who were once for the hill but later decided to vote against it we noted two delegates from Allegany.

We have favored the fireworks bill from the first and will even do our bit to gain its passage when it reaches the Senate. This measure should be enacted in the name of public safety to protect the great number injured by fireworks annually. The old argument that has been used by Western Maryland "wets" in their campaigns for beer and liquor that you can get it in West Virginia won't work in the case of fireworks because you won't be able to get them in West Virginia. The West Virginia Legislature has just passed a bill banning the sale of fireworks in the entire state so if we must follow West Virginia on the subject of beer it might be wise to follow them on the fireworks' issue.

During the past few weeks we have given you complete reports on the Garrett county delegation but from this point on we shall dwell with issues confronting the entire legislature because practically all local legislation has been taken care of and important statewide problems will be the principal issues.

In closing we are reminded of the saying that it isn't what you start that counts—it's what you finish!

Joint efforts by Britain, France and Soviet Russia and any other willing nation to unite in a common front against any further German aggression are being made at an international conference.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

The Great Stamp Plan

The latest development in the AAA hardly harmonizes with the sentiments which have exuded from various Administration spokesmen in the last few weeks. Or perhaps that idealistic and high-minded man, Secretary Wallace, has not been adequately appraised that the White Rabbit period has passed and the White House is now anxious to convince the country that no more experiments are contemplated.

* * *

Because the new plan of Mr. Wallace to supplement the pay of WPA workers by issuing to them specially designed blue and orange colored stamps with which they can buy food at grocery stores is certainly the most complicated, not to say cockeyed, experiment which has emanated from the New Dealers since Rexford Guy Tugwell went into the molasses business. It is difficult in a short space to describe the plan and in any space to prove its workability.

* * *

The features seem to be these—the AAA proposes to issue these stamps to WPA workers or others receiving Federal relief. An estimate of how much money a man should spend weekly on food will be made by the AAA and stamps to that value given him. Part of this is in addition to his relief pay. The grocers will accept the stamps as money and the banks receive them as money because of the Government guarantee to redeem them. So far as the WPA workers is concerned the stamps amount to an outright cash gift from the Government, but with a string tied to it that makes it impossible for him to spend the stamps on anything but food. The theory of the plan is, first, that it will increase the consumption of food and thus use up the surplus crops; second, that the increased consumption will stiffen sagging prices of farm products; third, that it is a method of feeding the hungry; fourth, that it elevates the scale of relief.

It is easy to understand that this plan will be acceptable to the WPA workers, as it increases their pay. And it is easy to understand that it will be acceptable to the farmers, as the AAA proposes to continue to buy up surpluse crops just as it is doing now. The new scheme will not supplant the old one—it merely supplements it. In addition, there is no reason grocers should oppose it. On the contrary, they probably will be for it in preference to the present free-hit-and-miss distribution of food to relief workers. In this way they will sell more food and get more money. So why shouldn't the farmers, the WPA workers and the grocers be for it?

However, the objections are so obvious and the economies so dubious that it is hard to see why anyone else should be for it or why it should be attempted at all except under desperate compulsion to do something. In some respects the new experiment is ridiculous. For example, it assumes in the AAA ability to accurately assay the individual appetite of the WPA recipient of the stamps. It decides how much food he ought to eat and insists upon buying it. But the real objections are far more serious. One, of course, is the intricate and expensive administrative bureau which would be required to put such a complicated plan into execution.

* * *

Another is the effect it will have upon the WPA worker who now gets $60 a month as relief payment, and the effect upon the man employed at practically the same pay in private industry. Clearly, the WPA worker will be better off on relief at $60 a month with what amounts to free food, than if he had a real job at the same pay. Similary, the $60-a-month employe of private industry would seem a sap not to get on relief, where this stamp arrangement gives him a wage increase.

* * *

In brief, this idea, which is to be tried out in some five cities, may be pleasing to certain classes, but to the country as a whole it would seem a very severe headache, indeed. It would provide an inducement for men on relief to shun jobs in private industry, and for those in private jobs to get on relief. A greater national disservice could hardly be imagined. An interesting point is made by Mr. Mark Sullivan, who asserts what is certainly true, that Congress would not pass any such legislation as this. Yet, under the blanket powers conferred in the name of Emergency, New Deal bureaus can thus proceed from one expensive experiment affecting millions of people to another without the necessity of presenting a bill, much ...sing it. Or even finding out if ...vants it.

MT. LAKE PARK

One of the "Old Timers" made the remark to us that they had lived thru many years in this community, but they had never seen such uncertain weather as we had this winter. Nor had they seen the month of March so variable. Well, it has been crazy weather. Wonder if that's where we get that "crazy as a March hare?" One day we have almost summer, then we waken up and find a blizzard.

There is a great deal of sickness in the Park, but fortunately nothing serious. Most of those ill are taking precautions and remaining indoors until they are well.

March, which includes the spring equinox, was at one time first on the calendar. Out of doors it is still the first of the year—or the beginning of things—new and fresh. New hopes, new faith. There is no season when our faith is more apparent than in the spring—for then life begins anew.

One of the Park's pioneer residents did not see this spring come in. Mrs. Annie Calhoun, venerable and respected woman, passed at her home Monday morning. Mrs. Calhoun did not get out in winter, but each spring would see her out of doors enjoying her yard and flowers.

GRANTSVILLE COMMUNITY AIDS WIDOW, 6 CHILDREN

Area Provides Shelter Costing $350 for Family In Distress

There are foreign missions and home missions, Ladies' Aids and missionary societies, Red Cross and public welfare, but in addition to all these good organizations the people of the Grantsville and other communities in that area have proven themselves to be truly Good Samaritans, and have put into practice the old adage, "charity begins at home."

Mrs. Clara Fazenbaker, a widow, with her six children, was without a home and without income. They eked out their existence while living in a dilapidated log shelter, without windows or doors. In fact, it had practically no roof and even some of the logs which should have been in the sides, were not there. Mrs. Fazenbaker's only possessions, aside from the makeshift furnishings of her inadequate abode, were three cows and a few sheep.

Whole Community Interested

The plight of this unfortunate family greatly concerned Nelson Orendorf, superintendent of the Glade Mennonite Sunday school, and he brought the subject to the attention of his son-in-law, Fenton H. Platter, who, at the time, was president of the Maple Grove Baptist Young People's Department. Mr. Platter then and there decided to do something about it. His own local church did not feel that it was able to render any great financial assistance. Undaunted, Mr. Platter endeavored to interest not only all the local churches, but to let the community in general share in the plan which he had in mind.

His efforts resulted in the promise of cash, material and labor, which would mean a decent and comfortable home for this family. Mrs. Fazenbaker sold all of her live stock with the exception of one cow, and with the proceeds purchased a small plot of ground from one of her neighbors. Following this, all contributors did their share and Mrs. Fazenbaker is now the owner of a good four-room frame dwelling with windows and doors and a roof that doesn't leak. The total cost was approximately $350. It required practically a year of effort on the part of the instigators of this good cause, but surely they must feel a sense of satisfaction in having done unto others as they would be done by. As Shakespeare says, "How far that little candle throws its beams! so shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Many Have Credit

Those responsible for the completion of this project are The Springs Mennonite Sunday school, the Bittinger Lutheran Sunday school, the Maple Grove Brethren Sunday school, the Maple Grove Baptist Young Peoples' Department, the Glade Mennonite Sunday school, the Grantsville Lutheran Sunday school, the Grantsville Reformed Missionary Society, the St. John's Lutheran Ladies' Aid of Cove, the Cove Evangelical Lutheran Sunday school, the Grantsville Methodist Sunday school, the Jennings Lutheran Sunday school, the Casselman Mennonite Sunday school, the Bethesda Brethren Sunday school, the Grantsville Reformed Sunday school, the Oak Grove Mennonite Sunday school, the Jennings Methodist Sunday school, Fenton H. Platter, Peter Yost, Henry Platter, Cleve Fazenbaker, Nevin Miller and A. G. Ross, all of whom contributed cash; the Glade Mennonite church, the Maple Grove Church of the Brethren, the Glade Amish church, the Bittinger Lutheran church and the Accident Lutheran church, which donated labor; Harvey Gortner, the Grantsville Planing Mill, Arthur Resa, Stewart Stahl and Baer and Company, who contributed material.

Some Fashion Headlines for Spring, 1939

Suits, Ensembles, Blouses

Suits of all kinds, with emphasis on fitted ones, bring in a new endorsement of blouses, particularly sheers and lingerie types. The contrast idea in blouse and suit, is a reflection of the shirtwaist-and-dress idea in dresses.

Fitted jackets — generally waist-length, are the basis feature, along with flared or pleated skirts. Fitted etons or boleros. Deviations: Straight jackets, boned waistline, wrist-length jackets, length to widest part of hips, jackets curved up at sides, peplum cut with flare back, boxy-"fitted", fullness from bust at front.

Padded Shoulders remain for tailored suits.

Flared and Pleated Skirts contribute to the youthful character of suits. Straight Skirts still appear according to tailleur tradition.

Blouses are a vital factor to suit styles, acclaiming lingerie types first. Cottons, linens, silks and rayon make the list of fabrics.

Silk suits are another contribution to the large classification. White or natural tussah, brocades, faille and marocain, checks and plaids. Linen prolongs the suit fashion into summer.

Full-length coats are most mentioned in connection with ensembles with a silk dress.

Other ensembles forms are: full jacket and narrow dress; longish capes and dresses; silk colored jackets and black sheer dresses; blouse and jacket of green and black skirt, with cyclamen belt.

Silks and Rayons

Silks are revived in line with the intense feeling for yarn-dyed weaves like faeille, taffeta and satin, not only for evening but for daytime. Paris rates patterned silks favorably, bringing stripes, checks and dots into prominence, or swinging over into entirely imaginative print motifs. Silk suits and coats more in evidence.

Faille, representing the yarn-dye silks that are so strongly favored in this spring's Paris fashions, is the most high-lighted fabric in silk classifications, used mostly for evening, but also for day. In evening frocks, it interprets both wide-skirted styles and the hip-draped 1880 ideas that are shown.

Taffeta is another interpreter of the trend in crisp, bodied silks, also favored for day and evening.

Moire is one other expression of this silk fashion.

Bengaline for jackets in color to go with black afternoon dresses.

Slipper satin is another yarn-dyed silk that makes this group of fabrics so vital to the fashion schedule, especially for evening.

Silk twills, including surah, are prominent both in plain and printed versions.

Dots, checks, stripes and plaids are most representative of the trend in patterned fabrics, both in prints and weaves.

Florals are not neglected, especially in gay and chintz effects. In a completely different mood from conventional dots and checks are the motifs in amusing and imaginative vein.

Evening Dresses

Evening dresses carry on the trend of romantic styles, with crinolines having more sponsors. Looming as a new interest in silhouette is the slim silhouette, either simple and straight, or modified by width at hips or at back.

Wide skirts, with crinolines significantly more numerous, dominate. Gathered fullness is also endorsed—at hips and hip yokes, gathors at top of hips. Width at hips is newest in presenting skirt width. Back fullness appears in several forms, including the bustle.

Narrow skirts as an impending style, most apparent in evening frocks.

Fitted bodices, definitely of basque type, are general.

The high waistline of directoire type is newest.

Decolletes are extremely varied—high, moderate and bare. Ruffles and borders outlining decolletes are new.

Sleeved evening frocks are represented in formal types.

Scarfs and shoulder capelets reappear.

BOND ISSUE BILL TO BUILD SAVAGE RIVER DAM PASSED

Two Important Steps Still Remain Before Work Can Start

What is probably the biggest forward step toward construction of the Savage River dam was taken at Annapolis last night.

Legislation permitting the Allegany County Commissioners to sell a million dollars worth of bonds to help finance the gigantic undertaking was given final approval in the House of Delegates, the Associated Press reported.

The measure authorizing the bond issue now goes to Governor Herbert R. O'Conor for his signature, which is nothing more than a routine matter.

Two Big Steps Left

Two important steps remain to be taken before work can be started on the project for which far-sighted citizens of Cumberland have been fighting so long.

The first is the agreement of benefiting industries to contribute some $400,000 towards the cost of the dam.

The second is the approval of the dam as a WPA project.

Designed to maintain a constant flow of water in the upper Potomac River during dry seasons, the Savage River dam would be an earthen barrier almost a quarter of a mile long and 180 feet high.

It would be built with aid from the Federal Government and cost approximately $2,500,000.

Besides providing a steady water flow, the dam would provide for the greater dilution of sewage and wastes and improve sanitary conditions in Maryland's far-western counties.

The dam would be in Garrett county, some thirty-five miles west of Cumberland and some distance west of the junction of the Savage River and the Potomac River at Bloomington.

MISS MINNIE MAE SHAFFER

Miss Minnie Mae Shaffer, aged 68 years, died at her home near the Mason school house, about six miles south of Oakland, on Saturday morning, March 18, after a lingering illness of about four years, during which most of that time she was an invalid.

She was a daughter of the late Benjamin F. and Eva Wilt Shaffer, and was born on the home place April 23, 1870.

Early in life she became an active member of St. John's Lutheran church at Red House. Although she led a busy life, no one in need ever appealed to her for help and was denied, and her acts of kindness were many. During her last illness a host of callers came to comfort her.

Farm life appealed to her strongly and she was devoted to her home. Her poultry was of the best and an old friend, now a prominent physician of Baltimore, recently declared that she was the best butter maker in Garrett county.

Her many activities drew heavily on her strength and about three years ago she showed signs of breaking. She bore her trials with Christian fortitude.

VOLUME 63. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MARCH 30, 1939. NUMBER 5.

FORESTERS SEEK MAN ON BLACK HORSE AS FIREBUG

District Forester Blames Series Of Forest Blazes On Mysterious Rider Near Sang Run

LOCAL OFFICER UNAWARE

An outbreak of forest fires in the heavily wooded section of this county in the Salt Block area, has put State forestry officials, and CCC members on the alert agnin.

H. C. Buckingham, district forester, of Cumberland, has reported that a horseman has been seen tossing lighted torches into some sections of the woods and has linked that action with the superstition that forest fires are "good" because they destroy insects and disease.

The story of the forestry officials, however, was causing much amusement among quite a number of citizens of the county this week. H. C. Buckingham, district forester, stationed in Cumberland, has corroborated the existence of the superstition and said "there is a passage in the Bible that says 'the woods shall burn.' Many of the people in that section actually believe that forest fires are a good thing. They think the fire kills snakes, bugs, and disease and brings the spring rains," he said.

George Browning, chief forest guard, said last night that as far as he knew no man had actually been seen setting fires, but there was one man suspected and that he and Sheriff J. W. Owens were going after him today. He also pointed out that the horse was a black one and not gray, upon which a man had been seen coming from the vicinity of a number of forest fires which apparently had been set purposely.

Browning said that there were 13 outbreaks of fires on Sunday, one of them on Salt Block burning 300 acres. Another one on Backbone burned 237 acres. Others included Eagle Rock, 50 acres; east Salt Block, 50 acres; Piney camp, 20 acres; two at White's Knob, 9 acres; Elk Lick Run, near Barnum, 75 acres; Vindex, 20 acres; Dry Run, 2 acres; Sines, 3 acres, and Underwood, 65 acres.

There were also eight small fires on Monday and seven prior to Sunday which burned 38 acres.

Buckingham expressed the belief that half the fires in the section are of incendiary origin, and called the "man on the gray horse" one of the worst he had encountered. Residents he said, won't tell the identity of the rider, who is said to cover a ten-mile stretch between Sang Run and Friendsville, lighting the fires with a toss of his hand, without dismounting.

Buckingham announced to Cumberland newspapers Tuesday that the lone incendiary case had been turned over to Neil C. Fraley, Garrett county State's Attorney, and that an arrest was expected within a few days, but the newspapers queried Mr. Fraley who stated that "I wasn't aware that the case had been turned over to me. However, I was in court all day and the matter may have possibly been referred to an assistant." Mr. Fraley's office girl said nothing had been handed to the office by Mr. Buckingham or any other forestry official.

Mr. Browning said he talked to Mr. Fraley last evening and that the trip today was expected to end in the arrest of the man.

Meanwhile a number of Oakland residents were scoffing at Forester Buckingham's version of the horseman. "Maybe it's Buck Benny riding again," one of them remarked. Buck Benny often rides on the radio ether waves, but never on a gray horse.

SERIES OF MEETINGS IS SCHEDULED FOR FARMERS

County Agent To Explain 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program

In order that farmers may obtain information concerning the 1939 agricultural conservation program, a series of thirteen meetings has been scheduled by John H. Carter, County Agent.

The new program will be explained and attention called to changes from last year's program. There will be no individual soil depleting acreage allotments established this year except for commercial wheat farms, Mr. Carter said. Neither will there be individual potato acreage allotments established for potato farms as in 1938.

Mr. Carter urges all farmers who wish to participate in the program to attend a meeting and to fill in and sign a farm program. The meetings will all be held at 7:30 in the evening and will be in the community school building unless otherwise stated:

April 3, Friendsville; April 4, Asher Glade; April 5, Selbysport; April 6, Accident; April 7, Ryan's Glade Grange Hall; April 8, Avilton; April 10, Sunnyside Grange hall; April 11, Swanton; April 12, Grantsville; April 13, Bittinger; April 14, County Agent's office, Oakland; April 15, Red Oak; April 17, Chestnut Grove.

The largest peacetime army appropriation bill in the nation's history went through the United States Senate in quick time Monday. The bill carries an appropriation of $513,188,000.

Attempted Robbery at Reckard and Glotfelty Garage

An attempt to rob the Reckard and Glotfelty Garage safe was unsuccessful last Friday night, those intent on the crime evidently having been frightened away by some incident.

The attempted robbery was not discovered until Saturday morning when it was found that the safe had been forced open with a pick and hack saw. The cash box within the safe would have been the next part of the safe to have been forced open, but for some unknown reason the person or persons engaged desisted in their efforts. Apparently nothing was missing from the garage proper.

Authorities were notified and were engaged in an investigation, but no arrests have been made.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR WILLIAM GIESSMAN

Brother of County Commissioner Found In Cumberland Hotel With Bullet Wound In Head

NO MOTIVE KNOWN FOR ACT

Lying across a bed in a Cumberland hotel with a bullet wound in his head, the body of William E. Giessman, 37, of Oakland, was found about 8:30 Saturday morning, March 25, by a chambermaid. Allegany county authorities said it was a "clear case of suicide," and no inquest was held.

Mr. Giessman, who had been employed recently by the Garrett County Commissioners as an engineer on county road projects, registered at the hotel shortly after 11 o'clock Friday night. He had attended the moving picture show at Oakland earlier in the evening. Allegany county investigator Terrence J. Boyle, said he was partly disrobed and apparently had sat on the edge of the bed, placed the muzzle of a .38 calibre pistol against his head and pulled the trigger, shortly after going to the room.

Dr. George P. Paulman, county coroner, reported that Mr. Giessman had been dead several hours when the body was found. The weapon was on the bed and the bullet which passed through his head, was also found nearby.

Mr. Giessman, brother of G. Blaine Giessman, president of the Board of County Commissioners, and a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Giessman, was said to have been despondent in recent months and in ill health, according to authorities. He left no message in the room and apparently left no message at the home of Mrs. John O. Thayer, where he resided with his brother. He was unmarried. The report of the revolver apparently was not heard by occupants of other rooms.

Mr. Giessman was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran church. He had been employed as an engineer by the Charles B. Hawley company, at the time of the construction of the Deep Creek Lake dam and power house, and also worked for the same company in North Carolina.

His body was brought to Oakland on Saturday evening and funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Bolden Funeral Home, with Dr. A. B. Leamer, pastor of the Lutheran church, officiating. Interment was in the Oakland cemetery.

Surviving are four brothers, Lester G. Giessman, of Morgantown, W. Va.; Lawrence Giessman, Fairchance, Pa.; Robert Giessman, of Cumberland; and Blaine Giessman, of Oakland. His father died on December 10, 1938. His mother died in 1911.

Trout Fishing Season Opens On Saturday, April 1

Trout fishing in most of Garrett county's streams begins on Saturday, April 1, and already quite a number of persons have procured licenses from the office of the clerk of the Circuit Court. The open season in Deep Creek Lake does not begin until April 15.

The Youghiogheny River below Swallow Falls is closed for rainbow trout fishing until July 1.

The Maryland Conservation Commission announced recently that almost 14,000 legal size trout had been stocked the past year in Garrett county streams, almost one half of the entire number stocked in the state. Nearly 40,000 are being held back for future planting during the season, it was also stated. The bulk of Garrett county's number were placed in Savage river, Piney run, and Bear Creek.

The open season on trout will continue to June 30, except in Deep Creek Lake where fishing is permitted until November 1, and in the Youghiogheny river below Swallow Falls, where it is permitted until November 30.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT MADE AVAILABLE TO TAXPAYERS

New Discount Regulation Passed By General Assembly Allows As Much As Four Per Cent

TAX BILLS IN THE MAILS

Approximately 7,000 tax bills were mailed to taxpayers in all parts of the county on Tuesday from the office of the County Treasurer, informing them officially the amount of taxes they are called upon to pay both to the county and to the State.

A pink slip was enclosed in the envelopes carrying the tax bills concerning a special discount made available as the result of a special bill rushed through the General Assembly within the past few days.

The new discount regulation allows four per cent discount on county taxes if paid during March and April, and a discount of three per cent if paid during May or June. No discount will be allowed after June 30, and after October 31 interest at the rate of one-half of one per cent per month will be charged and collected, according to the notice printed on the pink slips. The regulation applies only on county taxes.

Prior to the recent Act by the General Assembly only two per cent discount was allowed on county taxes if paid before June 1. One per cent was allowed if paid during June and July, with no discount given after July 31.

Four Boys Get Delayed Pay For Selling Coffee For Salesmen; Justice Hammond Assists

Four young boys of town got paid one day last week for some high class house to house selling that they had done two years ago, but they had to get the help of Justice of the Peace C. F. Hammond before they obtained their "salaries."

It was sometime in 1937 that Lee Thayer, Billy Casteel, Dan Browning and Pansy Hinebaugh were inveighled away from an interesting ball game being members of the winning team at the time, to sell some coffee for two salesmen from Elkins, West Va., who promised them that if they sold forty pounds to the housewives of Oakland they would either be given a trip to Pittsburgh with overnight expenses paid, or $3.00 each in cash.

These four industrious boys forgot their baseball game and got busy canvassing the town, calling on their friends and their friends' families and at the close of day had sold the prescribed amount of coffee, according to the testimony presented, but the salesmen departed and evidently forgot their promise to the lads.

Accordingly, they vowed "to get even someday." Come one day last week. The opportunity presented itself. Both salesmen were in town at the same time, with one automobile. Rushing to the Magistrate's office all four subscribed to foreign attachments against the automobile and the two men were brought in before Justice Hammond.

The boys told their story without the assistance of an attorney to handle the case and as a result the boys got their $3.00 each, but without interest. The two salesmen also paid several dollars in costs.

It is a bet that these boys from Elkins will not attempt to flimflam the four boys of Oakland again—not very soon, anyway.

Coal Bill Expected To Pass

A measure in the Legislature, already approved by the House and when is expected to pass in the Senate, is likely to cause a hardship on the owners of numerous small wagon coal mines in this county and may possibly drive them out of business, according to information received at The Republican office by phone last evening from Annapolis.

The measure would require these small mines employing one or two men to come under the State Safety regulations, which would force the owners to provide a lot of new and expensive equipment, air shafts, and other things which up to this time have not been deemed necessary for the safety of those engaged at work in the mines.

Oakland Machine Company Is New Dealer For Nash Autos

Appointment of the Oakland Machine company, Liberty street, as dealer for the Nash Motors Division of Nash-Kelvinator Corporation, was announced this morning by George T. Kerins, who, with C. N. Murphy, heads the firm.

The company will handle the complete line of Nash cars which consists of 22 models in four series—the Nash LaFayette Special, the Nash LaFayette DeLuxe, the Nash Ambassador Six, and the Nash Ambassador Eight.

Many new features are to be found in the 1939 models which are being well received in all parts of the country, Mr. Kerins said. Some of these are the "weather eye" conditioned air system for winter driving, the super-powered engine for low-prices series, and the new engine design, and sound proofing.

FORGER FOUND HANGING IN COUNTY JAIL SUNDAY

Body Of Noah Rodeffer, 22, Discovered Suspended From Chandelier, His Neck Broken

VERDICT BY SUICIDE GIVEN

The inert body of Noah Rodeffer, 22, Harrisonburg, Va., and a native of Bridgewater, Va., was discovered at noon Sunday hanging from a chandelier in the hospital ward of the county jail in Oakland. The neck of the dead man was broken.

Rodeffer and his wife, Evelyn Rodeffer, had been in the jail since January 15 on charges of forgery, awaiting action of the March Grand Jury.

Rodeffer allegedly forged checks and obtained money upon them from Charles C. Helbig and Samuel Aronhalt at two Oakland feed and flour mills, and upon making the discovery that the checks were wortnless, Helbig gave chase and overtook the couple near Hutton and recovered the money. Rodeffer and his wife were taken into custody a day or two later in Kingwood, West Va., and brought to Oakland and incarcerated.

Last week the Grand Jury in its sessions returned two indictments agninst both Rodeffer and Mrs. Rodeffer.

State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley was in the sheriff's office conferring with Mrs. Rodeffer and her father and brother at the time Rodeffer took his life. He had evidently been hanging about five minutes with his neck broken. Officials at the jail said there were evidences that Rodeffer had attempted to first use his belt as a noose. After it broke he attempted to use some rage which proved too weak. He next took a sash cord from a window in the jail, fastened it over the chandelier and apparently leaped from the bed, breaking his neck.

At an inquest held Monday evening a coroner's jury returned a verdict that Rodeffer came to his death as a result of suicide by hanging. His remains were shippped to Harrisonburg, Va., Monday evening where funeral services were conducted and interment made. Rodeffer was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Minor Rodeffer, of Harrisonburg.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, who is presiding at court this week, permitted Mrs. Rodeffer to return to Harrisonburg, Va., with her father, Mr. Joseph and her brother, who came to Oakland several days ago.

State's Attorney Fraley made the statement that Rodeffer was wanted in Virginia for offenses committed in that commonwealth and had served terms in prison upon previous convictions.

Fire Damages Home

The tenant house on the Andrew Helbig farm just south of town, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Linn Browning, was badly damaged by fire on Tuesday afternoon about 1 o'clock, and many household belongings of the Browning family were destroyed.

The fire was caused by a two-year-old child who poked a piece of wood in the kitchen stove and then put the lighted end in a basket of waste paper standing nearby. When the family had discovered the blaze the flames had enveloped the kitchen and one of the bedrooms. Practically the entire inside of the house was burned to some extent before the Oakland Firemen extinguished the flames.

Two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Browning were convalescing from an attack of mumps.

Solicits Money And Food; Is Taken To County Jail

A stranger in town who gave his name as E. C. Williams, Clarksburg, West Va., was arrested Tuesday on a charge of vagrancy, after he had solicited money, food and clothing from a number of Oakland people on the story that his baby had died at Crellin and other members of the family had no food.

Mrs. Frank Schell, one housewife who believed the story sufficiently to hand out a dollar, yet was doubtful enough to question him about his doctor, undertaker, etc., and when a check-up on these statements proved them false authorities were called and the arrest followed midway along Second street. The man was evidently making a house to house appeal.

Later at the Jail, Mrs. Schell identified him and recovered her portion of the donations. Williams will be accorded a hearing before a Justice of the Peace in the near future.

RELIEF CRISIS PASSES; BOARD RECEIVES $3,976

Loan Made By First State Bank Of Grantsville Under 1933 Act

Receipt of $3,976.00 yesterday by the Garrett County Welfare Board from the county for its share of all relief for March and part of February, was acknowledged this morning by Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary, which takes care of all agencies and makes it possible to distribute State funds to those in need.

The money was received as a loan from the First State Bank of Grantsville, and the loan was made under authority of the 1933 emergency act, which gives the County Commissioners the right to borrow up to eight cents on each $100 of assessable property for the needy.

Old age pension checks were mailed out yesterday afternoon. The amount received gives those on general public assistance $1,000 for March and also $1,000 for February. This sum, however, is only half of the amount asked for direct relief, it was stated. Direct relief clients have been aided by surplus commodities during February and March.

TEN COUNTIES SEEKING OWN ROAD MAINTENANCE

Amendment To Senate Bill Provides Power; Garrett Not Listed

Ten of Maryland's twenty-three counties are seeking authority to maintain their own county roads beginning October 1. Garrett county is not among the ten.

Provision for such action has been made in the form of an amendment to a bill now before the Senate, which originally would have empowered the State Roads Commission to continue to maintain county roads.

The amendments, besides returning the maintenance of county roads to the ten counties, provide that fifty per cent of the funds allotted to each of the counties from the proceeds of the gasoline taxes should be used exclusively for new construction and the remainder of maintenance of county roads, debt service and for incorporated towns.

There will be almost double the funds this next fiscal year as a result of the decision to stop gasoline-tax diversions.

The ten counties which would maintain their own roads are Baltimore, Frederick, Charles, Howard, Carroll, Cecil, Prince George's Harford, Montgomery and Washington.

Regardless of whether the counties or the Roads Commission maintains county roads, projects undertaken in the counties under the construction program could be added to the State Roads system, it was said.

ROBERT RUSH GETS THREE YEARS ON REFUND RACKET

Is Heaviest Sentence Imposed At This Term Of Court, Which Recessed Yesterday Afternoon

WAS ONLY ONE JURY TRIAL

Robert Rush, 19, termed by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan as the ringleader in the gasoline tax refund racket, which took more than a thousand dollars from the State Comptroller's office before it was discovered to be a racket by the youthful criminal, was sentenced yesterday to serve three years in the Maryland House of Correction. This was the heaviest sentence to be imposed at this term of Court.

The sentence came after Rush, Blaine Miller and Darl Harding had been found guilty by the Court on charges of forgery which grew out of the scheme of sending in sales slips showing that gasoline which had been purchased was being used on a farm for tractors, corn shredders, etc. The state allows a refund of four cents per gallon on gasoline purchased when it is not used on the public highways. Rush admitted to 26 claims, some of which ran as high as $45.00.

While under bond for his appearance before the Grand Jury he got into another scrape in Frostburg for which he was paroled, and although pleas were made for the parole of the young man, the Judge passed sentence as he viewed the degree to which all three were involved. Blaine Miller got one year in the House of Correction, and Darl Harding, who had already served two months in jail, was given an additional 60 days in the county jail.

The court term ended temporarily on Wednesday afternoon, with several cases to be called on April 17. There was only one jury trial, that being the case against Oliver Paugh and Ida Paugh, for sale of liquor. The jury rendered a verdict of not guilty as to Oliver Paugh, and guilty as to Ida Paugh on the first and second counts. She was fined $250, and if the fine was not paid, sentenced to six months in the House of Correction.

CHRISTIAN C. DURST

Christian C. Durst, aged 69 years, died Saturday morning, March 25, at his home near Grantsville. Mr. Durst suffered a stroke of paralysis several years ago, which rendered him a semi-invalid and a recurrence last Thursday at noon rendered him unconscious in which state he remained until death.

During his active life Mr. Durst was a leader in his community, being a progressive farmer and successful business man. He was a son of the late Charles and Rebecca Otto Durst, who resided in the New Germany community where he was born and reared.

On June 23, 1897, he married Miss Etta Bancord, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Bancord, residents of the eastern section of the county. Mr. and Mrs. Durst took up their home on a farm about four miles southeast of Grantsville and to them were born several children, three of whom survive: William Frye Durst, at home; Robert Louis Durst, and Mrs. Homer Rosen, of Akron, Ohio. Lynch, of Akron, O.; Mrs. Susie Colbflesh, of near Detroit, and Mrs. Herman Robeson, Avilton. Eighteen grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Durst was a life-long and consistent member of the New Germany Methodist church.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning, March 28, from the new Germany Methodist church, Rev. D. R. Carder officiating. Interment was in the adjoining cemetery. Pallbearers were Ellsworth and Morris Beachy, Henry F. Durst, Ralph Jenkins, Samuel Otto, and Albert Warnick.

JESSE JAMES LORAW

Jesse James Loraw, native of the Crellin community, died at the home of his niece, Mrs. Sylvia Stewart, East Oakland, on Sunday evening, March 26, following an illness of short duration, the deceased having suffered a stroke of paralysis on Saturday. He was aged 78 years. He was a son of the late William and Margaret Little Loraw, and resided at Crellin for fifty years.

He was employed for many years as a mill worker at the Crellin saw mill and was a member of Oak Lodge, No. 8, I. O. O. F. of Mountain Lake Park.

Surviving are four half-brothers and a half-sister, Luther C. Loraw and Mrs. Mattie Dodge, Albright, W. Va.; A. D. Loraw, Valley Point, W. Va.; John F. Loraw, Bruceton Mills, W. Va., and W. A. Loraw, Clarksburg, W. Va.

There seems to be a tendency this year where twins are born for the second one to arrive several days later than the first one, and a man in Kansas is wondering if it could be the WPA influence which causes the affair to be spread out over so much time.

A Dare

Another letter to me—unsigned. He dares me to print it. Says he's a HEAVY taxpayer, and a Democrat.

Well, I'll print it if he signs his own name to the letter—the big, brave man. And I'll bet my hat (the old one) that he won't be so heavy a taxpayer. I'll bet even more that he won't appear to sign his name.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our thanks and appreciation to all our friends for their kindness and helpfulness following the death of our wife and mother, the late Mrs. Christina Elizabeth Lee.

We especially want to thank those who sent flowers and donated the use of their cars for the funeral service.

CLEAN-UP TIME HERE

The time for the annual clean-up is here. The cellar, and attic, the closets and cubby-holes, the premises and outbuildings, the streets and alleys, the public eyesores, and in fact the entire community where needed.

A real spring program to beautify everything in Oakland and througout the county could be made effective if all organizations of the different communities were interested sufficiently to perform such a service.

The Mayor and Council could continue the practice of proclaiming a clean-up week and have trucks at the disposal of the citizens to haul away the rubbish. Firemen could inspect buildings and offer suggestions and recommendations to make homes and places of business less subject to the fire hazard, boy and girl scouts could clean up vacant lots, school children could be given suggestions to be taken home for a spring clean-up in every dwelling. There could be cooperation from the Rotary Club, lodge organizations, the Civic Club and others in helping to make each community clean-up minded. And of course all these groups couldn't do anything if the citizens themselves didn't bestir themselves and contribute their share.

Once started, such a campaign would gain momentum and every community in the county would be a better place in which to live, and a better place to have other people see and enjoy.

SOUNDS GOOFY——

The district forester's tale of the person on a white horse (neither Lady Godiva nor Young Lochinvar) who scatters fire through our forests, sounds just a bit on the imaginative side to us, although there are chances that such is not the case. However, if such a man rides between Friendsville and Sang Run, Mr. Buckingham ought to hire a couple of good deer hunters to watch the trail and catch him in the act. If there are people setting out destructive fires, they should be caught and punished, and it seems to us if anyone was close enough to detect a horse and a rider in the act of throwing a torch, he would have been recognizable—unless he had a mask.

There was nothing said of any mask—unless it was merely the mask of secrecy about the fires—but this point may have been overlooked by Mr. Buckingham.

There isn't much doubt that many farm people believe a burned over area is good for pasture and good for things in general. Whether it is true or not, we are not able to say. But it is our opinion that these destructive forest fires are caused more by carelessnes than by planned incendiarism.

Surely with all the incendiarism that Mr. Buckingham asserts, there would be at least one time that a person would be caught in the act. But to our knowledge no one has been convicted for this offense for years in Garrett county. Put we do keep seeing these stories in daily newspapers of incendiary fires. If there are facts to substantiate these stories there should be some arrests. If there aren't, these stories ought to stop. It gives outsiders a distorted opinion of Garrett countians.

From information gathered at first hand in the county, and not from Allegany county, it is our opinion Mr. Buckingham evidently was letting his imagination run rampant in his desire to create some astonishing publicity.

WILL BE 103 SATURDAY

GEORGE MARLEY

To Celebrate 103rd Birthday Anniversary On April 1st

George Marley, Garrett county's oldest resident, and perhaps the oldest man in Maryland, will celebrate the one hundred and third anniversary of his birth on Saturday, April 1, at his home in Deer Park. A dinner will be served upon the occasion to members of the immediate family as was done last year.

A year ago the celebration was on the quiet order, as Mr. Marley had been ill. This year, however, although Mr. Marley is in a weakened condition and spends most of the time in his room, he expects to be at the dining table with his family.

Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh, a daughter with whom he resides, said that one day last week he "ran off" by leaving his room and descending to the lower floor of the home by himself. The trip down and back caused his heart to do a little racing, but when asked the following day if he expected to repeat the performance, he laughed and replied, "I might."

His four children anticipate being with him on Saturday at the anniversary. They are Mrs. Henry Wilhelm, Gary, Ind.; Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh, Mrs. Robert Thrasher and George Marley, Jr., all of Deer Park. His sister, Mrs. Rebecca Cook, of Columbus, Ohio, is also expected. Mr. Marley became reunited with his sister in September, 1936, whom he had not seen for 78 years.

They did not know of each other's existence until three months previous to that. A story of his one hundredth birthday celebration had appeared in The Republican. The story was sent to England where relatives saw it and corresponded with relatives at Deer Park. Through them Mrs. Cook was located at Cleveland. Mrs. Cook then came to visit him at Deer Park and returned for his birthday celebration in 1937.

Mr. Marley was born in Stockton, England, in 1836, and came to the United States as the Civil War was breaking out. He enlisted in the Federal Army and served through the conflict. He settled in Deer Park in 1866, coming there to dig a well for Senator Henry G. Davis. He worked for Mr. Davis for more than 40 years.

Mr. Marley was engaged in battles at Gettysburg, Antietam, the Wilderness, and in less important engagements. He was wounded in a battle at Cape Hatteras when a spent shell struck his right leg and a bullet pierced his left ear. He was honorably discharged June 23, 1865.

At his birthday celebration in 1927 Mr. Marley received congratulations from the King and Queen of England, and also from Governor Harry Nice and Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt.

Employment Service Visitation Dates Are Changed

The dates of scheduled visits of the representative of the Maryland State Employment Service in this county have been changed, and the new dates will be effective until June 30, according to Milburn W. Mann.

The Oakland office will be open every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 8:30 a. m., until 4 p. m., in the McIntire building.

The representative will be at the fire department headquarters every second Thursday beginning April 6, from 9 to 11 a. m.; at Friendsville, in the election building, every second Thursday, beginning April 6, from 2 to 4 p. m.; at Kitzmiller, in the election building, every second Tuesday, beginning April 11, 1:30 to 4 p. m.; at Kempton, every second Thursday, beginning April 13, from 1 to 4 p. m.

Mr. Mann announced that if the Kempton mine worked three days in each week previous to the scheduled visit, that no visit would be made to that town.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, March 29, 1939.

If there had only been a Maryland Legislature in the day of Shakespeare then we would be certain that he was thinking of our legislature when he wrote "Much Ado About Nothing."

Always, much is said about the 'leadership'. This section has lots of it—and it leads it round and round.

Now that the present session of the Maryland Legislature is in the last few days we find the administration leaders bringing approved legislation down the home stretch with a bang—and a steam roller behind just in case.

A perfect example of the type of petty politics being played by the administration is the deal made between administration leaders and the C. I. O. The little last minute get together concerns Garrett county and the coal mines which employ less than five men. Heretofore the small wagon mines were not placed under the rigid requirements of the larger operators and as a result many miners were able to make a living by working small mines which ordinarily would be closed. The bill which places all mines under state supervision was sponsored by the C. I. O. but did not get very far until the deal was made with administration leaders and the hill turned into an administration measure. Already the bill has passed the House urged on by the steam roller and when it reaches the Senate it will naturally have executive backing. There is, however, a chance that it will meet its Waterloo in the Senate and small operators will be allowed to continue in their pursuit of a livelihood. This bill along with many others has been crammed down the throats of those who saw fit to object.

Word comes to us that the State Roads Commission will take over "main-street" in Swanton. This action follows the bill which takes the annual amount away from the community which provides for street and sidewalk upkeep and repair.

The bill which proposed to give Kempton a sum of money each year for roads and streets has apparently died in committee, at any rate it hasn't been heard from since we last wrote of it.

A bill which gives the county treasurer power to borrow $15,000 in January and February of each year has been passed. This bill also provides that the treasurer may borrow the equivalent of his unpaid taxes in October of each year if it is necessary to carry him over. It is stated in the bill that interest shall be paid on these loans perhaps this will settle part of the financial difficulties of the county and clear up the question of whether or not interest shall be paid.

At the request of the Garrett county Bar Association the term of Circuit Court has been adjusted in order that there might be a period of one week between the end of the Grand Jury and the beginning of the trial of cases.

With less than a week of session left we wonder how many promises have been kept and how nearly the present General Assembly has expressed the will of the people? Of this we are certain—there will be new taxes, there will be a new conservation set-up (still political) but new and the will of the Eastern Shore group, and there will be a revision of the Justice of the Peace system which should be some improvement on the old. When the show is over let's check up and see if the books balance when promises and achievements are compared.

We wonder at times whether the men and women we send to the state legislature realize the obligation they owe to the people who make it possible for them to occupy high office and in whom they have vested authority to be their spokesmen. This bit of advice might even be in order for legislators. Don't fear your critics. If your work is good it will last longer than they will.

When one thinks of the present General Assembly of Maryland it must not be forgotten that the entire set up has been dictated by the Governor and his advisers. They must give no excuses and make no apologies to the taxpayers of Maryland. We know now what to expect from Governor O'Conor during the next four years and those of us who have been close observers at Annapolis are inclined to be a bit skeptical as to his leadership and ability. From the old timers we understand that the moral of the legislature has set an all time low and according to usual form the Shore group has played in the center ring during the three months' revelry at Annapolis. The biggest plum of the huge amount voted to advertise the Chesapeake Bay and the Eastern Shore. Senator Friend took the floor to add an amendment to provide a part of the fund for advertising Deep Creek Lake and Western Maryland but the sandy shore lads can't think of any thing which does not put gravy on their waffles. The bill passed and Garrett has been ignored. What did Governor O'Conor promise Garrett county which has the Maryland?

All this talk about equality of men and women has been taken a compliment by quite a few.

Next week we will tell what they didn't do. Do check the record.

A Preventive Measure

Washington, March 25.

The fact that Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, voted for the reorganization bill, which passed the Senate last Wednesday, is pretty good evidence that the offensive features which a year ago aroused such nation-wide opposition have been eliminated.

* * *

In its present shape the bill represents an almost complete denial to the President of what he wanted. No one can compare this measure with the one he originally sponsored and escape that conclusion. That is too clear to dispute. When the record is reviewed it is also clear that if it had not been for the determined two-year fight made by Senator Byrd, the President would be in possession today of the really dictatorial power with which the original proposals sought to clothe him.

* * *

In any history of the Roosevelt regime, his course on this reorganization issue is bound to rank as one of his two major mistakes—just a little less damaging than the court-packing proposal, of which it was a companion piece. Conceding to Mr. Roosevelt the same desire other Presidents have had to reshape the great sprawling governmental structure so as to promote efficiency and reduce confusion, it is, nevertheless, accepted that he was inspired by two other motives not nearly so admirable. Unquestionably one was a determination to blanket Senator Byrd, the real organization pioneer of the period, who had presented a bill as early as 1935.

* * *

Resenting Senator Byrd's insistence upon economy and his general dissent from New Deal policies, the President moved to deprive him of credit. That is no biased statement. It is a fact fully known and attested. The other motive was an itch to gain the control denied him by the Supreme Court over those great quasi-judicial boards such as the Interstate Commerce, Federal Reserve and Federal Trade. There was the further desire to wipe out the Comptroller General, whose tendency to publicly question New Deal expenditures was deeply resented, to revamp the Civil Service setup, to create two new Cabinet posts.

* * *

When you consider what Mr. Roosevelt wanted and what he gets it is easy to understand why he is not pleased. In the first place, the Senate on motion of Senator Byrd, and by unanimous vote, has written into the preambly its first economy declaration since 1933. "The Congress," it reads, "declares that by reason of continual national deficits begun in 1931, it is desirable to reduce substantially government expenditures and that such reduction may be achieved in some measure by proceeding under the provisions of this Act."

* * *

Thus, economy is not only made the primary purpose of the bill but its desirability is unanimously voiced by Congress. This clashes with the President's original utterance on reorganization in which he asserted that economy was a minor consideration and the money saved would be trivial. It also directly contradicts the Roosevelt-Eccles theory, as outlined in the January message, when the President said that to reduce was to "invite disaster"—an idea to which, despite Mr. Eccles' tongue-in-the-cheek gesture, they both still cling.

* * *

But for the skill of Senator Byrnes, not enough of the President's proposals to even measurably save his face would have been left. As things stand, every one of the quasi-judicial boards is exempted from the provisions of the bill; the Comptroller General remains untouched and untouchable; the Civil Service Commission is not to be changed and there are not to be two new Cabinet officers and departments. Moreover, the President as specifically prohibited from incorporating into permanent departments any of the emergency agencies which expire at definite dates, unless Congress, itself extends their lives by law.

* * *

In addition, he is required to report in detail with every recommendation what economies are to be expected. In brief, there are in the bill many things to which the President was stongly opposed and there has been taken out almost everything he particularly wanted, except his six additional secretaries. Against this, although there were many who thought it an inexcucable extravagance, no fight was made because it would have seemed a personal attack. Mr. Roosevelt won on that and by going to extreme lengths in the exertion of pressure, he won on the method of confirming his recommendations. But every major feature of his original bill was lost. Naturally, not a great deal in the way of effective results is expected, for the simple reason that Mr. Roosevelt has no zest for the sort of reorganization to which he is now restricted. Real reorganzation will have to wait for another President. The real thing accomplished was the blocking of the wrong kind of reorganization.

GRAND JURY ADJOURNS AFTER FINDING THIRTY TRUE BILLS OF INDICTMENT

Investigating Body Was In Session Four Days and Examined Fifty-Nine Witnesses

The March Term Grand Jury of the Garrett Circuit Court adjourned last Thursday afternoon after having been in session four days.

The jurors had before them and examined fifty-nine witnesses and returned thirty indictments before completing their deliberations. The full report of the jurors is given below:

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland:

The Grand Jury for the March Term, 1939, hereby respectfully submits its report as follows:

We have had before us and examined 59 witnesses and have found 30 indictments.

Following the instructions delivered to us in the charge of His Honor Judge Huster, we have given careful consideration to the matters that have been brought before us and have carefully investigated all cases involving violations of the criminal laws and we have returned indictments in those cases where we believe the evidence warranted such action.

We have inspected the Court House, the County Jail and the Sheriff's residence and we find that they are generally in very good condition and neatly kept. We would, however, make the following recommendations:

First: We believe that there ought to be automatic water heated placed in the County Jail. The one in use is of an antiquated type and we would recommend that it be replaced by an automatic heater.

Second: We believe that the Sheriff's office should be equipped with modern equipment to be used in the apprehension of criminals. There is scarcely any equipment in the sheriff's office. We respectfully recommend to the County Commissioners that they provide the Sheriff with a reasonable sum to purchase the necessary equipment at an early date.

Third: We recommend that the walls and ceiling in the Grand Jury room be repaired and repainted. This recommendation has been made previously, but apparently has been overlooked and we think that this should be attended to promptly. The hallway leading to the basement we find is in need of repairing.

We also think the Commissioners should repaint the walls and ceiling of the Register of Wills office. This recommendation has been made by previous Grand Juries also and we hope that the Board will follow our recommendations in this respect promptly.

Fourth: Previous recommendations have also been made concerning the erection of a garage for the use of the Sheriff. We think something should be done regarding these recommendations.

It has been called to our attention that at times when the Grand Jury is required to be in session for the greater part of a week very little opportunity is given for the Sheriff and Clerk of the Court to have the witnesses summoned and the cases placed on the docket and ready for trial. We would, therefore, recommend to the Court for their serious consideration the advisability of permitting a week to intervene from the week that the Grand Jury is in session until the petit jury is called to hear the criminal docket.

We have examined the several offices in the Court House and find them to be in good condition and well kept. The records are in good shape and we found the various officers ready and willing to give us any information requested of them. The records are neatly kept and available at all times to the general public.

We believe the officers of the county are performing their duty in the enforcement of the criminal laws and we desire to thank the State's Attorney for his cooperation and assistance given us during our deliberations.

We extend our thanks to His Honor Judge Huster for the assistance he has given us in performing our duties as Grand Jurors.

All of which is respectfully submitted

W. O. DAVIS, Foreman.
C. E. SHARPS,
ALVA GORTNER, Clerks.

MT. LAKE PARK

We have heard of "spring fever" affecting people in many ways, but perhaps none so queerly as that of one of our local citizens—and he is considered a right smart man. Imagine him sitting on his front porch on a nice, balmy day with a fishing line and all the tackle that went with it, and he was, or said he was, really fishing. O well, it takes all sorts to make our small world.

If you value your life we should advise you to keep off that stretch of good road from the postoffice to the top of the hill. We mean, of course, if you are a pedestrain. Barney Oldfield would have nothing on some of those drivers. It makes a very fine place to race.

Speaking of this and that: You should see the new band headquarters in Loch Lynn. They are really beautiful, and large enough for real comfort. Rev. Harold Teagarden has accomplished a remarkable job in his wall paintings and decorations. This consists of panels showing natural scenery. It would be worth your while to attend a practice night. The new uniforms have been ordered and will arrive shortly. Caps and other equipment were purchased last season. We understand that the uniforms ran in the neighborhood of $500 or $600, and that it has all been paid for with the exception of about $75, which considering that most of this money was raised by the band and the band patrons through hard work, is pretty good. Wonder if Mt. Lake and Loch Lynn folk really appreciate this organization and all it can mean to this community?

Holy Week Services In Local Churches

St. Peter's Church, Oakland
Rev. William F. Sauer, Pastor

Plans are being made to hold the Tenebrae service at St. Peter's church in Oakland during the approaching Holy Week. Mr. Arthur Martini, who has studied ecclesiastical music, will be in charge of the Holy Week Office. The Tenebrae service will consist of chanting three Psalms of Matins, which will be followed by singing the lessons by the visiting clergy. Then will follow the sermon after which there will be a harmonized Benedictus, Christus Factus Est and Miserere Mei. Among the visiting clergy the following will take part in the Tenebrae: Rev. Paul Helsley, of Howesville, W. Va.; Rev. Francis Spiller, of Thomas West Va., and Rev. John Kelly, of Rowlesburg, W. Va. At the end of the Tenebrae there will be the Strepticus, which is a slight noise symbolic of the confusion which came upon the earth at the death of Christ.

"Christ Our King" is the theme of the sermon next Sunday. We have thought of our Lord as the Prophet and the Priest in this series of sermons. In this theme we are reminded that He is King of Kings, the Sovereign Ruler of God's Kingdom on earth. As such, He provides for the needs of all who become His subjects, protects them from all forces that seek to destroy the soul and prepares all to render loyal service. "Glory, laud and honor unto Christ the King!"

ALLEGANY UNION MINERS TRY TO INTERFERE HERE

Impending Clash Between Union And Wagon Miners Is Avoided This Morning At Grantsville

CITIZENS ARE AROUSED

An impending brush between union miners of Allegany county and unorganized mine workers of Garrett county was avoided temporarily at least, this morning when county authorities notified the union men that they had no business interfering with workers here and were advised to return to Allegany county.

Union miners came to Grantsville last night and this morning from the George's Creek section to try to get the wagon mines around Grantsville to close pending the signing of the new wage agreement for the union. The mines in Allegany county, which are organized, have been closed since on Monday.

Operators and citizens of Grantsville became aroused however, and notified county authorities, who were at the scene of the threatened picketing this morning at 6:30 o'clock when the two hundred or more unorganized workers of the wagon mines west of Grantsville arrived in trucks for their day's work.

Several State Police were on hand, besides local officers and a clash might have ensued as the union workers expressed themselves as determined to keep the local men from going to work.

When the workers of the Garrett county mines appeared from Grantsville, however, they were accompanied by at least two hundred citizens of the town, which surprised both union workers and county officers, one of whom remarked "it looked like the entire town was out to see that the men went to work as usual."

The Allegany county men finally dispersed. Local officers said two of the State Police remained on duty and that they would return to Grantsville this afternoon when work ceases for the day as a precaution against the return of the Allegany county men.

Open House At Meadow Mountain CCC Camp

More than two hundred persons attended the open house held at Meadow Mountain CCC camp, Sunday. After a tour of the camp F. W. Besley, State Forester, made an address. Brief talks were also given by Lieut. Charles Keltz, commanding officer; W. Harold Miller, educational adviser; Robert W. Sheckells, camp superintendent, and J. J. Davis, resident forester. Cyril Solomon acted as master of ceremonies. There were musical selections by the Oakland Boys' Band, after which a tour of the projects was made. The guests then returned to the mess hall where they were served refreshments.

Trucks provided by Mr. Sheckells, camp supreintendent, were placed at the disposal of the visitors to inspect the log cabins and other recreational features at New Germany and Big Run, near the Savage river.

William R. Offutt left Oakland on Saturday for Valrico, Florida, where Mrs. Offutt and other members of the family have been for several weeks.

COUNCIL REORGANIZES AT MEETING MONDAY EVENING

Irvin Rudy Named President Of City Body; Committees Named And Appointments Made

APPEAL SESSION IS SET

At the regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening, the reorganization of that body was effected with the election of Irvin R. Rudy as its president and the appointment of various committees.

The committees appointed are as follows: Water committee, Henry W. McComas, Jr., chairman; R. D. Houck and Delbert M. Davis; street committee, Emroy Bolden, chairman; Earl W. Shartzer and Irvin R. Rudy; finance committee, Delbert Davis, chairman; Irvin R. Rudy and Henry W. McComas.

Others named by Council include the following: Arthur Lawton, clerk-collector; James Compton, water superintendent; Julius C. Renninger, Jr., city attorney; C. F. Hammond, police magistrate; M. R. Maroney, street superintendent; W. H. Byrd, weighmaster; George Fulk, truck driver; B. B. Nethkin and W. D. Casteel, police.

A committee to have charge of the golf links was also named, consisting of R. D. Houck, chairman; Emroy Bolden, Delbert Davis and Henry W. McComas, Jr.

Appeal Session To Be Held

Council announced two dates for the annual appeal session, when dissatisfied taxpayers may complain concerning the assessments made upon their property holdings. The sessions will be held on April 17 and 18, beginning each evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Members also had under advisement the opening of Eighth street, between Green and Oak streets.

More than 11,000 small trees were ordered, to be used for planting on the water farm west of town, mainly for the protection of the town's water supply in the future, but incidentally to beautify the golf course too. There were ordered 1,100 white spruce, 5,000 Scotch pine and 5,000 Norway spruce.

Awaiting the outcome of a meeting of the Oakland firemen, no action was taken concerning a site for the community building, although its location was discussed to some extent.

No report of the auditor employed recently to go over the town's books, was made, as the work is not yet completed.

Bills amounting to approximately $1,250 were ordered paid. A report from clerk-collector Arthur Lawton, showed that more than $1,200 had been collected during the month of March, most of which was for back taxes. April, with the first quarter of water collections coming in, is expected to dump into the treasury much more than during the previous month.

Fast Driving Scored

The speeding of cars, delivery trucks and trucks through the streets of Oakland were scored severely by Council members and an investigation was ordered to stop this dangerous custom.

It appears that Council has had several complaints on this score from citizens who fear that some children or even older persons may be struck some day and perhaps killed.

Few Garrett Anglers Brave Rain And Cold Opening Day For Fishing

Although last Saturday, April 1, opened the trout fishing season in Garret tcounty, there didn't appear to be many anglers who cared to take advantage of the opportunity to cast their hooks.

For this there were several reasons. It rained practically the entire day and the temperature was not far from the freezing point, and then the streams were high and the water cloudy.

In spite of the weather, however, there were some, probably three hundred in the entire county, who braved the rain and other elements. Some were successful in getting a few legal size trouts, but the only item everybody got seemed to be a good "soaking," which has resulted in colds and influenza attacks for the less hardy of the groups.

Savage River, considered the best trout stream in the county, attracted the most fishermen, while Bear Creek also drew its share. Both of these streams were well stocked prior to the opening of the season.

STATE LEGISLATORS END THE SESSION IN MAD RUSH

Members Work Through Night To Clear Files; Bill to Ban Fireworks Killed By Senate

PIN BALL MACHINES OUT

The Maryland General Assembly adjourned its 1939 session sine die on Tuesday, April 4, after an all-night session in which the clocks in the House and the Senate were kept turned back from midnight for nearly twelve nours.

Since before dawn on Tuesday the Senate had marked time, its files clear, while jammed-up bills of the House were cleared out and sent over for passage or concurrence in amendments.

After the hot debate in the House and subsequent enactment of a bill licensing pinball machines, the bill was killed by the Senate. The Senate's action climaxed a long night of routine legislating. The House battle over the pinball measure, which was designed to yield revenues to finance a State-wide syphilis control program and increase grants to State-aided charitable institutions, had been brewing since early in the session.

Major legislation enacted included passage of the bill, backed by Governor O'Conor, to reform the coroner's system, reorganization of the parole department and reform of the magistrates' courts.

The Senate, 15 to 14, killed the measure designed to prohibit the sale of fireworks in Maryland. This bill was bitterly fought through the lower branch, but died within a step of enactment into law.

The bill to legalize jury service for women died in the Judicial Proceedings Committee of the Senate. The proposal had been enacted in the House by a close vote.

Legislation proposed by the Governor's Bowman Commission for governmental reorganization, was enacted in a majority of instances.

Bills passed in both houses included a state salary standardization survey; study of the state's higher educational system; sick leave and vacations for State employes; creation of the department of budget and procurement; abolition of the State mechanical engi-

TO COMPLETE FOREST FIRE TOWER NEAR TABLE ROCK

Foundations Already In; Will Be On Highest Elevation In State

Completion of the erection of an observation tower on the highest elevation in the State, near Table Rock, in Garrett county, is included in a development program to be undertaken this spring by the Forestry Department.

The foundations for the structure are already in and steel is being erected for a 100-foot tower on the Backbone Mountain, near Roth Rock, at an elevation of 3340 feet above sea level.

From the tower forest wardens will have an effective visual range of ten miles, and under favorable atmospheric conditions will be able to spot forest fires as distant as thirty to forty miles. The tower will cover an area in which many forest fires have exacted a heavy toll of timber.

The site is adjacent to the Potomac State forest, along the headwaters of the Potomac River. It will enable foresters to secure crosssights with the aid of observers in towers in the Monongahela National Forest in West Virginia.

The site for the tower is the gift of N. U. Bond, formerly of Garrett county, now residing in St. Petersburg, Florida, who also provided a forty-foot right-of-way over the three-quarter of a mile stretch from the county road to the mountain top.

A second tower is to be erected at McClelland's Lookout, west of Red Hill, Washington county, overlooking the Antietam Battlefield.

Salary Checks Mailed to School Board Employes

Salary checks for March were sent out yesterday by the Board of Education to school teachers, janitors, bus contractors, drivers, etc. In a letter attached County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun stated that the funds making the checks possible were furnished through the cooperation and helpful attitude of the Board of County Commissioners.

RIDES A BLACK HORSE

Jerome Kelly, 81, says he rides a lot but isn't a "Mystery Rider"

FOREST FIRE SUSPECT IS BROUGHT IN; QUESTIONED

Is Released Upon His own Recognizance Until His Statements Are Checked By Forest Guard

SAYS HE IS INNOCENT

Jerome Kelly, 81-year-old farmer of the Salt Block section of Garrett county, between Sang Run and Friendsville, returned to his home on Tuesday afternoon after being in Oakland upon two occasions during the past week for questioning by Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, in connection with a number of alleged incendiary forest fires in that area two weeks ago.

Mr. Kelly was released upon his own recognizance upon his promise to return to Oakland whenever wanted for further questioning. He was brought to Oakland by George M. Browning, chief forest guard.

Before leaving town for his home he stated to a representative of The Republican that he was innocent of the charge alleged against him.

"I don't want to see the forests burn," he said. He also stated he had been riding his horse early that Sunday morning through the woods, but had gone to Meyersdale with relatives, remaining there for a day or two before returning and that he could bring witnesses to prove his statements.

"You tell the people that I wouldn't do a trick like those foresters say I did," he vehemently said.

Mr. Kelly had seen the account last Friday in which H. C. Buckingham, District Forester, had accused a rider on a gray horse of throwing fire brands at various points in the forests as he rode along. Kelly owns a black horse.

Buckingham reported from Cumberland that the horseman had been seen tossing lighted torches into some sections of the woods, but George Browning said that as far as he knew, no man had actually been seen setting fires but that a man had been seen coming from the vicinity of a number of forest fires which apparently had been set purposely. There were thirteen outbreaks in the county in one day, several of them being in the Salt Block area.

Mr. Kelly, besides emphasizing his innocence, declared he knew of no one in that section who wanted to see a destructive forest fire.

Mr. Kelly, upon his visit here this week, wore a brown fur cap which covered his head fully and walked with a cane. He is a native of West Virginia, but has been a resident of this State for fifty years.

Mr. Browning said that no definite charge was lodged against Mr. Kelly but that his statements were being checked.

Orthopedic Clinic Scheduled

The regular bi-monthly orthepedic clinic for Garrett county will be held at the Court House in Oakland on April 19 and 20. All persons who have been seen in previous clinics are asked to make their appointments early. Those who have not had contact with the Health Department are asked to obtain a request from their physician for this service.

GROWING OF PEAS MADE POSSIBLE BY AGREEMENT

Cooperative Arrangement Made Between Pea Growers In County And Mt. Airy Canning Company

NET PRICE NOT TO BE SET

As the result of an agreement made yesterday morning by the Mt. Airy Canning Company with a number of Garrett county farmers, the latter will have an opportunity to grow and market peas again this year, but the price per ton to be paid the agriculturalists will depend upon the net profit received by the canning company after expenses of canning and marketing have been deducted. There will be no set contract price, such as has been the case for the past several years.

The canning company officials had previously decided not to operate at Loch Lynn this year because last year's crop, not only in this area but all over the country, had flooded the market and made it necessary to place in storage many thousand cases of the product, for which there was no immediate sale.

Canning Company Accede To Request

But because a number of the pea growers did not wish to lose this early cash crop, they appealed to the canning company to work out a plan, and the agreement yesterday morning was the outcome. Previous to this the farmers attended meetings at Grantsville and Mountain Lake Park Tuesday and favored the proposition presented by an overwhelming majority, according to those attending. There were present at the Mountain Lake Park meeting approximately two hundred producers.

Will Operate Cooperatively

The cannery, according to the agreement made, is to operate the same as in any other previous year, except that the pea growers will assume responsibility for the output along with the canning company. The growers are to produce and deliver the peas to the canning company and the company in turn will can, process and sell them and return to the growers the sale price, less charges and expenses of operation.

A separate set of books will be kept for the 1939 crop and upon sale of the canned peas and the collection of the purchase price, the balance standing to the credit of the crop after charges, expenses, etc., have been paid, shall be distributed to growers at so much per ton of peas delivered. It may be the same as last year or it may be lower or higher. Seed is to be furnished to the farmers at $1.00 per bushel.

Fred Richter, Accident fieldman and grower, estimated that there were approximately 300 pea growers in the county interested in the agreement and that 125 had already signed the contract. He estimated that last year the growers had received $100,000 from the sale of their peas to the canning company. The company last year contracted for peas at $52.00 per ton.

Mr. Richter said that the 300 growers would be signed prior to the time for planting, which is around April 25.

A Growers' committee consisting of one member from the four sections, Grantsville, Accident, Gortner and Mt. Lake Park, and a member at large, is to be named, which will have charge of the details and which will be the contact between the remainder of the growers and the canning company.

MT. LAKE PARK

And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me. John 12:-2.

Tomorrow is Good Friday. No matter what else you may take time for on this day you will surely read the whole story of the crucifixion. We trust that we had the space to give you what we have read in the last few days. At least we shall quote it, or part of it. First, let us say that the life of Jesus often seems far away in time and place. The story of his death seems even father away remont from us in its great tragedy.

"There is little chance that you and I will be executed as common criminals. In the mode of its actual ending the life of Jesus passes beyond anything we may normally expect. The cross stands in history as the supreme symbol of pain and injustice—and as such it stands alone. But it stands also as an inalienable pledge that earth hath no sorrow which Christ hath not shared."

In other words, there was no "unnecessary suffering" in the death of Jesus. That seems to us a worthwhile thought.

A very happy Eastertide to you all.

Easter Services

Rev. [illegible] Gamblin, pastor, announces regular worship service at 10 o'clock. Sermon, "The Symbol." Special music by the choir.

Prayer meeting at Pleasant Valley at the [illegible] evening at 7:30 at the P. [illegible] continuation of the study of the history of the Methodist church.

Sunday afternoon at the Steyer school house there will be an Easter service at 2:30.

Our first duty seems to be a correction regarding the Mickey Band. We have been informed that the cost of the uniforms will run in the neighborhood of $900 to $950 in place of the $750 we gave last week. The greater part of this has been arranged for but at that the band will have plenty to do to pay off all of this indebtedness, which means that the whole community will have to get back of this group and help them to the limit. And we should.

Several property sales are reported pending. Added to this the garbage collection actually happened the other day. So it's looking like the summer season has really gotten off to a good start.

Can't say that the weather man has given much encouragement. The winds are sharp and piercing and it's cold. Better not take your stoves down for a month or so.

The Mountain Lake Library is a busy spot on Friday. Formerly it was Library Day here on Saturday, but this day was changed by the librarian, Mrs. Gay Hayden. A number of new books have been received. how wonderful to have an
ALL-ELECTRIC KITCHEN

nearly any home can have one . . . this way

Our income payment plan makes it possible for nearly any home to have an all-electric kitchen. Payments scaled to income and based upon the amount of equipment purchased make it possible to have such a kitchen, either all at one time, or by buying on the step-by-step plan. Either plan is wise since the investment is in efficient, long lasting kitchen equipment. Such planning enables the housewife to put her cooking, her food bills and operating costs on a business-like basis, and to save money from the first. A modern electric kitchen helps to pay for itself in food savings and operating economies. We shall be glad to give you figures and to prepare plans either for an entire new kitchen or for the rearrangement of the equipment which you now have. The use of this service is free and obligates you in no way.

Smart Riding Habit that's Easy to Acquire

The model illustrated is the Buick SPECIAL model 41 four-door touring sedan $894 delivered at Flint, Mich.*

$894 AND UP delivered at Flint, Mich. * Prices subject to change without notice. Transportation, taxes and accessories (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra.

You've probably noticed that most of the folks who drive Buicks come back again and again to this great automobile when it's time to buy a new car.

There are two reasons for that. One's a money reason, the other's a pleasure reason.

Sticking to Buick means you're sure every year that you're getting top value, and no hunting all over town to find it.

Repeating on Buick means that season after season you ride behind the ablest eight of its size in the world—the Buick valve-in-head straight-eight, that Dynaflash powerhouse that's livelier and smoother and thriftier than engines of other type.

Year after year you'll travel in comfort—the smooth, easy, level-going comfort of the torque-tube drive and BuiCoil Springing, sailing along on a staunch and sturdy chassis that holds you true and steady to your course.

You always have room in a Buick—and this year you've a new and broader outlook through 412 added square inches of safety plate glass. And you're leading the style parade—no doubt about that—with appearance that's like a leaf from tomorrow's book.

All of which adds up, you'll find, to satisfaction so complete that once you've got the Buick driving habit, no other car quite seems to measure up.

Now this big strong resilient straight-eight costs less than you think. It's priced lower than a year ago—even below some sixes.

So why not simplify your car-buying for all time—get that smart Buick riding habit now.

In no other way that we know can you make sure of having so much fun. Or of getting so much value for every penny you spend!

"Better buy Buick!"

Paragraph Opinions . . .

STOP THE SPEEDERS—

The City Council should certainly be commended for the step it has taken to invesigate and stop this speeding thru the streets of Oakland by motor cars, delivery trucks and other trucks.

A check-up by Officer Thomas Curric of the State Police, or by local policement, as to who the guilty parties are, will go along way in slowing them down and lessening the great danger of a child or even an adult from being struck and perhaps killed.

The way some of these trucks dash around corners and speed on the straight roads and streets, a child would not have the least chance of survival if struck.

Of course children should look before attempting to cross a street and no one should step out from behind a parked automobile, but it isn't always possible to make persons realize the danger, and sometimes they forget. With children, in this respect they are not old enough to assume too much responsibilty. With older folks they sometimes take chances of beating the oncoming vehicle.

In the meantime the older people have to assume the responsibility for the children—including drivers of automobiles.

So, not only this newspaper, but many citizens are asking that drivers be careful and drive moderately. The few seconds gained by speeding isn't worth the life of a child, woman or man, nor is the time thought to be saved worth a broken leg or a fractured skull.

LOUNGING WITH THE LOBBYISTS . . . .

Annapolis, Md., April 5, 1939.

The end has finally come—the General Assembly of 1939 came to an end shortly before noon yesterday after a session which lasted twenty-three long hours. Legislators scattered to their homes, leaving a record-breaking mass of new laws and having approved the highest budget in the history of the State.

The Democratic State Administration will back off and pronounce the work of the legislature a good job well done. Those of us who cling to the principles of the Grand Old Party are more skeptical and will say that a large part of the work has been a failure and will be more apparent before long. But not to criticize too soon, the law makers couldn't enact so many laws without getting in some beneficial work. However, much of the major work is open to question and the future will determine whether it is beneficial or not.

Much of the new legislation concerns only the City of Baltimore, but too, there are new laws which are of vital importance to the counties. A $4,130,000 bond isuue was passed to provide funds for new construction and repairs. The difference between the old revenue and the new need will be raised by a two-year $17,000,000 program of special taxes, based largely on a classified income tax on both individuals and corporations. Diversion of gasoline tax money was ended, thus providing about $7,000,000 more for the State Roads System. Under the new roads set-up it may be possible to improve Route 219, the important connecting link between Routes 40 and 50.

Two new conservation agencies were created in place of the one commission now constituted. Although opposed by many conservationists, the new plan sets up a commission for the upland area and one for the Bay area. Perhaps Garrett county will receive her single State appointment on the new upland area commission.

A large part of the wholesale Bowman Commission is ready for the Governor's signature, and another part is in the legislative wastebasket, tossed there by legislators unwilling to adopt the proposals.

Some proposals which were abandoned are: the creation of a commission to make a study of the tax structure; the adoption of a general State transportation policy; the creation of a single unified conservation policy; reorganization of the State Roads set-up, and the consolidation of many other boards and commissions.

Particularly in the elimination of jobs did the Administration ignore the advice of the Bowman Commission. It must not be forgotten that one of the most powerful machines in the history of the State is now in control at Annapolis and it is not the intention of the leaders of this machine to lose either power or positions. The powerful O'Conor-Curran-Bruce machine is now attempting to complete its domination of Maryland politics by taking over the City Hall in Baltimore and completing the political downfall of Mayor Jackson and increasing the number of jobs open to those who have been playing follow the leader.

As we write thirty on the final sheet of copy from the 1939 General Assembly we would like to predict in passing that the so-called organization group in Baltimore will never take over complete control of the City of Baltimore with their candidate Mr. Charles H. Buck. If Mayor Howard Jacksoa is to be defeated Theodore McKeldin, secretary to former Mayor Broening, and a Republican, will be the man who will do it. McKeldin is young, vigorous and an able lawyer with plenty of inside experience in politics. He will make an excellent Mayor and don't be surprised if he comes down the stretch out in front on general election day. Maryland will hear much about Teddy McKeldin in the next few years.

Of special interest to Garrett county is the attempt to make pinball machines legal. The bill passed the House but met with overwhelming defeat in the Senate. It is understood from a reliable source that the Garrett county delegation was prepared to include a county bill to license pinball machines in the event that they were made legal throughout the State. The plan of the county delegation called for a fee of $70 on each machine and a distributors' license fee of $500, the revenue to be placed in a fund which when large enough was to be used for the establishing of a hospital in the county. If we must have pinball machines, the hospital idea was a good one and the originators of the plan were on the right track, but the Senate of Maryland has spoken and pinball machines must go by June 1, 1939. Let's not forget this hospital idea. If the demand is strong enough a method of raising the necessary funds can be arranged.

The coal mining bill which we wrote about last week, passed, but with an amendment, which will apparently save the day for the small mines. Mines employing less than five men will come under supervision of the State Mine Inspector who may close those mines which are very dangerous. It will not be necessary for these mines to install expensive safety equipment and follow regulations of larger mines. It is our understanding that there has been only one serious accident in the wagon mines in the past eight years, so State inspectors will find little to cause them to close these mines.

It is this writer's opinion that the entire delegation sent to Annapolis by the citizens of Garrett county should be congratulated. They have worked hard for the people and the county which they represent. Their conduct, both in the State House and outside of it, has been above reproach, which is more than we can say for many of those from other counties and the city districts. Although greatly in the minority, the gentlemen from Garrett county have done a good piece of work and seemed to know what was going on at Annapolis.

See you all in 1941. So long. . .

STATE LEGISLATORS END THE SESSION IN MAD RUSH

neering department; abolition of the assistant adjutant general's office; reorganization of the veterans' commission; reorganization of the state hospitals set-up; creation of a legislative council.

The Administration threw its full weight back of the Bowman Commission legislation. The Bowman proposals to extend the merit system failed to reach enactment. The proposal for reorganization of the conservation department failed, and a compromise separating Chesapeake Bay fisheries and upland game conservation was adopted.

An unofficial tabulation showed that the 1939 legislature passed an average of better than one out of every two bills introduced. The survey also showed 1,351 measures introduced and approximately 776 passed before the assemblymen adjourned.

It is said that Governor O'Conor plans a close study of all bills passed. He indicated that he did not intend to be rushed in making his decisions on which measures he would approve or veto. There will be no action on any measures not sponsored by the Administration until the State Law Department has studied them thoroughly and prepared for him a digest of their content.

In the meantime the Governor also warned against speculation on what action he would take upon particular bills. "Nobody will know what my decision will be on any pending measure until I announce what action will be taken. Such announcement will be made formally and over my signature."

Without increasing the State tax on real estate, borrowing for current expenses or diverting the gasoline tax, the $95,000,000 appropriations bill for 1940-41 is balanced on a pay-as-you-go basis. All provisions for the State's welfare program, $5,000,000 a year, were included in the budget appropriations.

The only change made in the $17,200,000 new revenue bill was the elimination of proposed reorganization of all motorists at $2 each and the substitution for it of an increase from one to two per cent in the automobile titling law. The provision calling for classified income taxes survived the passage through the legislature intact.

Va., dedicated the new chancel furnisrings and adornments which were memorials for former members of the congregation, on Sunday afternoon, April 2, with a special service. The church was filled for the dedication.
